Hubbell Wins In 11th, 2-1; Nats to Meet Crisis Today

Must Win Fifth of Series to Stay in Race With Giants for Title.

Rookie Ryan Hero Of Thrilling Duel

Drives In Winning Run, Launches Double Play; Manush Is Ousted.

By Shirley L. Povich
(Sports Editor of The Post).

The world series of 1933 smacks of a pronounced New York flavor as it moves into the fifth game at Griffith Stadium, where it may be interred this afternoon, with the epitaph of the Nats.

Three to one in favor of the Giants the series now stands, with the odds against Washington skyrocketing to 10 to 1 as the result of the 2-to-1 triumph of the New York team in yesterday's game. Defeat for the Nats today will mean the sad end of the series, victory will move the scene back to New York for a sixth game tomorrow.

Tumbled Into Defeat.

Stumbling on the threshold of victory, the Nats tumbled into the chasm of defeat yesterday in the fourth game as drama piled on drama, as frustration engulfed hope.

Limp with thrills, Washington fans to the number of 27,762 made a doleful exit from Griffith Stadium at the end of the eleventh inning that had moved with such kaleidoscopic suddenness that they were not yet ready to believe that the Giants had beaten the Nats. On the very brink of success, the Nats met with a cruel denial in that eleventh inning.

Ryan Comes Through.

The author of that extra-inning triumph for the Giants, an obscure figure for ten innings, compared to the brilliance of Pitcher Carl Hubbell, was John Collins (Blondy) Ryan, rookie shortstop, whose only previous claim to fame had been the penning of that now-notorious "They can't beat us" telegram to his teammates who had left him home, injured on a midseason Western trip.

Meriwell was a piker, Alger an oaf, compared to the heroic manner in which Ryan injected himself into the world series proceedings after the game had worn its way into extra innings. Scoffing at the weakness implied by the fact that he works in eighth place in the batting order, he had slammed a solid single to left field off Monte Weaver in the first half of that eleventh inning to break up a pitching duel in which Weaver and Hubbell had been deadlocked.

Bases Are Loaded.

Came the Nats' half of the eleventh, to do or die. They did—and died. Fred Schulte launched the inning with a brisk single to left. Joe Kuhel laid down the conventional sacrifice bunt. First Baseman Bill Terry waited for the ball to roll foul. With a pernicious wriggle it remained fair, and both runners were safe. Then Bluege sacrificed, both runners advancing. There was great to-do among the Giants. To pass or not to pass

Legion Favors Sound Dollar

Hayes, New Commander, Explains Convention's Inflation Stand.

Chicago, Oct. 6 (AP).—Edward Hayes, the American Legion's new National commander, tonight said the convention's stand on inflation primarily was to insure maintenance of sound currency.

"I consider the convention action on inflation as a mandate to me as commander," he said. He added, however, the four-point veterans rehabilitation program, adopted yesterday, would be his first concern.

The legion approved a report of the Americanism committee, advising the Government to consider carefully the danger of inflation before engaging in expansion of currency.

"It was a stand that any interested American would take," Hayes said, adding that after the chairman of the committee explained it meant maintenance of a "sound dollar," the convention was unanimous in its approval.

Bandits Take $6,700; Kidnap Taxi Cashier

Chicago, Oct. 6 (AP).—Six armed men held up the Checker Taxi Co. today and escaped with $6,700.

The bandits kidnaped the company cashier but threw him from the automobile injured a few blocks away.

Wedell Misses Flight Goal.

Camden, N. J., Oct. 6 (U.P.).—James "Jimmy" Wedell, well-known speed flier, failed today in an attempt to make a nonstop flight from New Orleans to Roosevelt Field. He landed tonight at the Camden Airport.

Hoover Urged For League's Jewish Relief

Group Seeks Selection as High Commissioner in Aid to Refugees.

Geneva, Oct. 6 (U.P.).—An effort to draft Herbert Hoover as high commissioner for the League of Nations in charge of Jewish relief was started here today, gaining a wide following.

His years of relief work in Belgium during the World War and later in Russia and Armenia were recalled.

The name of Theodore Roosevelt, jr., Governor General of the Philippines during the Hoover administration, also was mentioned. Both names were left open for discussion.

The Hoover boom indicated thoroughly, however, that the United States would be asked actively to assist the league in the proposed movement under its auspices to find work and homes for thousands of German-Jewish refugees now roaming Europe, many penniless and without passports—literally without a country.

A resolution asking the league to take up this work for the Jews was placed before the league assembly's technical commission. The resolution orders Pierre Avenol, secretary general of the league "to convey this resolution to States that are nonmembers and request them to give every assistance in providing the refugees with employment." program of closer cooperation with

In view of President Roosevelt's program of closer cooperation with the league, there was little doubt in league circles tonight that Washington would object to this plea.

Hoover Lacks Facts.

Palo Alto, Calif., Oct. 6 (AP).—Reports from Geneva that Herbert Hoover has been proposed to direct Jewish relief activities of the League of Nations today drew a statement direct from Paul Sexson, his secretary, that the Former President "knew nothing about it."

Henry Hazlitt Named To Succeed Mencken

New York, Oct. (AP).—Henry Hazlitt, former newspaper man and one of the editors of the Nation, will be the new editor of the American Mercury, from which position H. L. Mencken will retire in January.

Hazlitt formerly was with the New York Evening Post, the New York Sun and other newspapers.

Wife in Kidnaping Scare Sues Mate

Mrs. Cox Asks Divorce, Names Two Women.

New Orleans, Oct. 6 (AP).—Mrs. Thelma Goertz Cox, whose recent disappearance from her home here with her 2-year-old son and her parents led to a kidnaping scare, today filed suit for divorce against George M. Cox, 55, shipbuilder of Chicago and New Orleans, charging misconduct.

Mrs. Cox, 27, a second wife and Cox's former secretary, asked $5,000 a month alimony and an injunction to prevent Cox from visiting her or their son, George Manion Cox, jr.

Her suit named two Chicago women as corespondents.

O'Meara Breaks Record With 46 Glider Loops

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., Oct. 6 (AP). Jack O'Meara, 26, of New York City, made 46 loops in a glider today for a new world's record.

In an event preliminary to the National Air Pageant scheduled for tomorrow and Sunday, O'Meara was pulled up by an airplane to a height of 8,000 feet, where he cut loose and started his loops. The former record of 35 loops was held by Russell Holderman, of Leroy, N. Y.

German Stand On Disarming Perils Parley

Proposal to Put Nation on "Good Behavior" Turned Down.

Geneva, Oct. 6 (AP).—Restatement of the German attitude on disarmament, rejecting the so-called "good behavior period," was presented orally today to representatives of the United States, England and Italy. So far as could be learned no approach has been made to France, to whom the German position is understood to be not acceptable.

The German attitude is understood to contemplate arms equality at the end of a four-year period, which would not be regarded as one of trial, but rather a period of progressive disarmament by Germany's neighbors.

Views Given Davis.

After it had become generally known Germany had approached London and Rome, Count Heinrich Weizsaecker, new German minister to Berne and one of the German arms delegates, informed American Ambassador-at-Large Norman H. Davis of the German position.

The impression left with the American representation was that the Germans intend to leave an open door for future disarmament negotiations to be resumed with arrival Sunday of Rudo't Nadolny, another German arms delegate.

Weizsaecker told Davis Germany did not wish to be put on good behavior. He explained Germany desires to be granted defensive armaments immediately and wishes to see other nations disarm to her level.

Reach Critical Stage.

He explained Germany is ready to transform the reichswehr into a short-term army, but seeks standard equipment the same as other nations.

That disarmament negotiations had reached a critical stage was generally accepted. A French spokesman said that even the Italians find the German answer "intransigeant." The Italians declined to make a statement, but the British representatives were described as deeming the situation serious.

France has been described as ready to reduce her standing armies at the beginning of the trial period, but not her armaments.

Outlaw Seized For Massacre

Bob Brady Badly Wounded Fighting With Sheriff in New Mexico.

Tucumcari, N. Mex., Oct. 6 (AP). Bob Brady, 23, escaped Kansas convict wanted for the Kansas City Union Station Plaza massacre, was wounded and captured with a man who refused to give his name on a highway east of this city tonight.

Sheriff Ira Allen said at first he believed the unidentified man was Wilbur Underhill, 30-year-old killer, but dropped that theory in the face of official descriptions placing Underhill's weight from 170 to 200 pounds and his height at 5 feet 11 inches.

"I am not Underhill," said the prisoner, who weighed 130 pounds and was 5 feet 6 inches tall.

Brady, shot twice in the back and once in the liver, is not expected to live.

Lupe Velez Plans To Wed Weismuller

Los Angeles, Oct. 6 (AP).—Lupe Velez, Mexican film actress, said tonight she and Johnny Weismuller, former swimmer, will be married within four days.

Disclosure of the couple's plans for marriage came after Weismuller had a final divorce decree from Bobbe Arnst, actress, recorded but a few moments before the 5 p. m. deadline.

Dog Earns Keep; Retrieves $10 Bill

Finds Money Owner Lost and Brings it Home.

Cody, Wyo., Oct. 6 (AP).—Fred Garlow has tangible reason to believe his Chesapeake retriever is some dog. Garlow lost a $10 bill while shopping.

He searched for it without success, but next morning when he went to feed the dog, there was the animal carefully guarding the bill after carrying it home.

Garlow had trained the dog to pick up anything he dropped.

Fertig Quits Tammany For McKee

Leader in Bronx Refuses to Run for Office With O'Brien.

Chief Curry Starts Firing "Tiger" Mutineers as Revolt Grows.

New York, Oct. 6 (AP).—M. Maldwin Fertig, Democratic candidate for president of the board of aldermen on the ticket headed by Mayor John P. O'Brien, announced tonight he is no longer a candidate and urged support of Joseph V. McKee's independent ticket.

"To continue my candidacy would, in effect, mean to champion a cause which is not in my heart," said Fertig, who recently resigned as counsel to Gov. Lehman in order to make the race. His withdrawal leaves the contest between Nathan Straus, jr., the McKee candidate, and Bernard S. Deutsch, fusion nominee.

Fertig is a resident of the Bronx, where Leader Edward J. Flynn is supporting McKee.

Tammany Strikes Back.

Tammany Hall, alarmed by signs of its machine cracking, tonight struck back at deserters. City employes who are leaders in Edward J. Flynn's revolting Bronx organization were to "walk the plank."

McKee has electrified the city by the speed with which he has assembled a ticket representing powerful elements.

As the McKee candidacy gained momentum open rebellion began breaking out within Tammany and its allies. Tammany desertions were followed by defections in Queens and Brooklyn.

Albert Goldman, commissioner of plants and structures and a member of Mayor John P. O'Brien's cabinet, was the first Bronx leader to get his walking papers.

He was told to resign by the mayor if "out of sympathy" with the administration. Goldman refused to quit. Nine other Bronx district leaders, who voted to bolt Tammany and back McKee, were expected to be let out by the mayor.

"Recovery Party."

McKee named his ticket the "recovery party," and into it came two veteran Tammanyites—former Senator John Godfrey Saxe and Edward G. Hagan.

In Brooklyn the Oneida Club bolted from John H. McCooey, leader for years, and a delegation of district captains was led into the McKee camp.

In Queens the first break away from John Theofel's organization was reported. Joseph A. Doyle, tenement house commissioner, and James C. Sheridan, deserted to McKee.

"There is a long list of them here and they are growing every minute," said McKee.

Big Serpent Seen Again in Canada

Victoria, British Columbia, Oct. 6 (AP).—A reputed 80-foot sea serpent, reported first seen last Sunday, has shown itself to at least seven persons. R. C. Ross, of Tod Inlet, today said he saw the creature—greenish brown in hue and with a profile like a camel—off Ten Mile Point.

W. B. Grant said he saw a creature resembling a serpent some time ago off Victoria golf links.

Five persons yesterday declared they had seen the monster.

Student Is Used As Bandit Shield

Robber Shoots, Kidnaps Bank Cashier, Flees.

Gambier, Ohio, Oct. 6 (AP).—Using a college student as an unwilling human shield, one of two robbers today engaged in a gun duel with the cashier of the Gambier Peoples Bank, wounded and kidnaped the official and escaped with an undetermined amount of money.

Sawed-off shotguns were carried by two young men, who robbed the Bank of Trenton of $200. They later were repulsed by gunfire of Cashier James Jones at the First National Bank at Seven Mile.

A young colored man attempting robbery of the Bank of Silverton was shot in the shoulder and captured by guards.

Britons Plan 475 Millions Offer to U. S.

"Irrevocable Decision" Not to Pay Debt in Full Reported.

Lump-Sum Alternative Will Be $4,750,000 Semiannually.

(Copyright, 1933, by the United Press.)

London, Oct. 6 (U.P.).—Great Britain has come to the "irrevocable decision" never to resume full war-debt payments to the United States, the United Press was told today by an unimpeachable source.

The government, strongly favoring outright concellation, has instructed Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, war debts delegate in Washington, to offer only two alternatives in the forthcoming discussions, it was said.

These are:

Lump-sum settlement in gold of not more than 100,000,000 pounds sterling ($475,000,000).

A series of "token payments" of 1,000,000 pounds sterling ($4,750,000) every six months in lieu of full semiannual installment of about $95,500,000.

Will Urge Lump Sum.

The British are anxious that President Roosevelt consent to a lump payment of 80,000,000 pounds sterling ($380,000,000), in gold, which might be increased to 100,000,000 pounds ($475,000,000) if the President insists.

London dispatches representing the British Government as "irrevocably" committed against resuming full war debt payments, and as prepared to offer a $475,000,000 lump sum in gold or, alternatively, $4,750,000 semiannually in silver, are believed by the State Department to originate with Prime Minister MacDonald.

In any event, officials here, while aware the old schedule of payments never would be resumed, were interested in the suggested compromises, which so far have not been mentioned by Sir Frederick Leith-Ross and T. K. Bewley, British representatives who called yesterday on President Roosevelt preparatory to resuming debt discussions Monday with Undersecretary of the Treasury Acheson.

Acheson in Conference.

Mr. Acheson later discussed the debt question with the President, supplementing conferences last night in which State Department officials participated. So far the discussion has not touched specific terms of any sort.

Sones Leads 46 Aviators in Race

Wins "Treasure Hunt" by Unofficial Score.

New York, Oct. 6 (AP).—P. J. Sones, of Haines City, Fla., was believed tonight to have won a cross-country aerial "treasure hunt" which began Tuesday in St. Louis and ended this afternoon at Roosevelt Field.

Although the official scores have not been announced, unofficial computations showed Sones led the 46 planes that finished with 400 of a possible 700 points.

Helen McCloskey, of Pittsburgh, is believed to have won second place. Lieut. Comdr. Frank Hawks led the group from Tarrytown, N. Y.

Plane Lands on Top Of Another; One Hurt

Boston, Oct. 6 (U.P.).—An airplane, piloted by a Chinese student aviator, landed on another plane at Boston Airport today, injuring Jack Hartt.

Hartt, practising landings, was about to leave the ground when the other ship, piloted by a member of the Chinese-American Patriotic Association, dropped down from the skies and wrecked both planes.

Girl Shot as Police Battle Holdup Gang

Chicago, Oct. 6 (AP).—Yvonne Collins, colored, 22-year-old night club entertainer, tonight was in a critical condition from a bullet wound received when she was caught between the cross-fire of detectives and four robbers in a Cottage Grove avenue cafe.

Threatened Keenan Children Get Thrill in Being Guarded

Agents Assigned to Protect Family of Kidnappers' Prosecutor.

Guarded to and from school each day, the children of Joseph B. Keenan, assistant Attorney General, are the envy of all the youngsters in Chevy Chase.

Classmates of the Keenan children enjoy the thrill that comes only in an era high-powered as this—the age of machine-gun bandits and kidnaping.

Because their father, the relentless prosecutor, is waging war on the kidnapers, threatening to exterminate racketeers, the outlaws, in turn, threaten the Keenan children. Keenan is now in Oklahoma City preparing for the trial of George (Machine-Gun) Kelly, one of the alleged kidnapers of Charles F. Uurschel.

As a consequence, two Department of Justice operatives have been assigned to escort the children to school each day. Agents arrive each morning at the Keenan residence in fashionable Chevy Chase and take the children to school, a private institution, a mile away from the Keenan home. The men remain in the vicinity of the school until recess, when they again "contact" their charges. At the close of school the little Keenans, four in number, are taken home.

The Keenan children are William, 12; Joseph B., jr., 8; Betty Jean, 6, and John David, 4, in kindergarten.

President Calls Steel Chiefs in Mine Strike; Cotton Loan Ordered

Roosevelt Authorizes Use of $350,000,000 as Expansion Move.

Similar Steps Are Likely to Boost Wheat and Other Staples.

In another credit-expansion move, President Roosevelt announced yesterday a Commodity Credit Corporation to loan an estimated maximum of $350,000,000, at 10 cents a pound, on cotton.

Similar price-bolstering advances may be made on wheat and other staples, it was announced.

The President, at the same time, confirmed Henry Bruere's appointment as a "liaison officer," over all Federal credit agencies, though his office, the White House said, was at present "in his hat."

The President revealed that his plans for freeing several hundred million dollars in closed banks would be announced in a statement early next week.

While the White House was announcing these developments, it became known that the Federal Advisory Council, at its mid-September meeting here, adopted a hitherto undisclosed resolution recommending amendment of the Federal securities act and the Glass-Steagall banking act to permit industry to obtain capital funds more readily in the investment market.

Capital Found Restricted.

The council held that sections of both acts are restricting private capital.

In describing creation of the new credit agency, for which a director and personnel have yet to be chosen, the President said the corporation would obtain its initial capital of $3,000,000 from NRA emergency funds and would have authority to borrow from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation on the security of commodities.

Its first function, he explained, will be to carry out the administration's recent promise to cotton farmers to loan them up to 10 cents a pound on all cotton above the middling grade.

This is intended to peg the price of cotton to prevent its dropping under 10 cents. If the price goes to 15 cents or more, the administration will sell its holdings to prevent a runaway market, the White House explained.

Acreage Must Be Cut.

The cotton loans are to be on a 4 per cent basis to farmers on present crops between now and June 30, 1934. Only farmers who agree to take 40 per cent of their acreage out of production next year, under the scheme of rental of the land to the Government, are eligible for loans.

Chairman Jesse H. Jones, of the British Speed Naval Building

Program Will Be Rushed in Race to Keep Pace With U. S., Japan.

(Copyright, 1933, by the United Press.)

London, Oct. 6 (U.P.).—Great Britain is speeding up her 1933 naval building program in a desperate effort to maintain her traditional mastery of the seas.

The United Press was informed on good authority today that the naval program would be advanced several months in view of the naval construction programs in the United States and Japan.

The admiralty spokesman, asked for official confirmation, refused either to confirm or deny the report.

The British construction program approved for 1933 includes, small cruisers, 4; destroyers, 9, and submarines, 3.

Normally, construction of these new and up-to-date warships would not begin until next February or March. However, the British government has kept an uneasy eye on the naval programs in the United States and Japan, her two chief rivals on the sea, and was believed prepared to push ahead her normal shipbuilding schedule to keep pace with the fast-moving naval race long feared and now apparently under way.

Furthermore, radical alterations in the British small cruiser designs to enable them to carry additional guns were being ordered, it was learned authoritatively.

Watermelon Feast Saves 5 Men's Lives

Boiler Blows Up as Group Walks Out to Dine.

Medford, Oreg., Oct. 6 (AP). Their fondness for watermelon was credited today with saving five men from death in the explosion of a sawmill boiler.

E. P. Dutton, owner of the mill, said a boy came to the plant with a load of watermelons and the men were given a few minutes off the job to eat them.

The boiler blew up just as they walked out.

HENRY BRUERE,
New York banker, whose appointment as "liaison officer" over all Federal credit agencies was announced by President Roosevelt.

Senator Dale, Vermont G.O.P. Leader, Dies

Has Been in Upper Branch Since 1923; Served 5 Terms in House.

Island Pond, Vt., Oct. 6 (AP).—Porter Hinman Dale, 66, senior U. S. Senator from this State, died at his summer home in the mountain town of Newark, near here, late tonight. He was a Republican.

Senator Dale was stricken ill about a month ago, but had apparently recovered. Three days ago he was stricken with a heart ailment and was ordered to his bed.

He was elected to serve an unexpired term on November 6, 1923, and was subsequently twice reelected. Previously he had served five terms in the House of Representatives.

Dale was born in Island Pond on March 1, 1867, attended Vermont schools, later studied at Philadelphia and Boston, and for two years was associated with the Shakespearian scholar and actor, James E. Murdoch. Subsequently he studied law under his father, the late George N. Dale, and was admitted to practice in Vermont courts in 1896.

He was chairman of the Republican State Convention in 1898 and again in 1920 and was a chief deputy collector of customs for the port of Island Pond for some years.

Senator Dale was appointed a judge of the Brighton Municipal Court in 1910. The same year he was elected to the Vermont Senate. He was a member of the Republican State Committee for several years.

He leaves his wife, two sons, George, a Washington lawyer, and Timothy, an Island Pond banker, and a daughter.

Senator Dale was active in the interests of Government retirements. He was coauthor of the Dale-Lehlbach retirement bill introduced in 1930.

India Row Splits 2 British Parties

Labor Demands Release of Political Prisoners.

(Associated Press.)

The two leading British political parties, Conservative and Labor, took opposite views Friday on the problem of India.

The Labor party demanded the release of Indian political prisoners in a resolution criticizing the British policy.

The Conservatives passed an amendment approving the course Britain was pursuing. This includes the withholding an announcement of what England intends to do until the joint parliamentary commission makes a report on India.

Peru's President Bars Resignation of Cabinet

Lima, Peru, Oct. 6 (AP).—President Benavides refused today to accept the resignation of Premier Jorge Prado Ugarteche and his cabinet, because "the government is satisfied with their important services."

The cabinet offered its resignation to allow the executive freedom in choosing new secretaries.

28 Dead in Forest Fire; 70 Reported Missing

Los Angeles, Oct. 6 (AP).—The list of known dead in the Griffith Park Canyon fire was raised to 28 today with the death of Fernando y Alenzuela.

Some seventy county laborers are still reported missing. It is believed some of them are among the 13 unidentified dead.

Pinchot, Asked Troops, Puts Pittsburgh Row Up to Roosevelt.

Approval of Check-Off Plan Aim of Parley Set for Today.

Representatives of three major steel companies owning "captive" coal mines will confer with President Roosevelt today to effect a quick settlement of the strike which was reported yesterday as increasing in seriousness in the Pennsylvania fields.

Following an appeal from Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania for the Federal Government to take a hand in the strike situation around Pittsburgh, and a conference with Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson, the President summoned Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the board of the U. S. Steel Corporation; Charles M. Schwab, head of the Bethlehem Steel Co., and Nathan L. Miller, of the American Iron & Steel Co., to the White House.

Approximately 20,000 miners employed by steel companies remained on strike when the bituminous miners came under the Blue Eagle last week.

Steel Firms Accused.

They charged the companies refused to acknowledge provision of the commercial mine code which required recognition of the "check-off" clause, under which union dues of miners are deducted from their pay.

Continued riots caused citizens to appeal to Gov. Pinchot for troops. The governor, it was learned yesterday, hesitated to send State troops into the field because of danger of further rioting, preferring to make another appeal through the President, if possible, for an amicable settlement with the steel heads.

He explained the seriousness of the situation yesterday both to the President and to Johnson, and the latter likewise stressed the importance of another appeal to the mill owners to abide by the "check-off" provision of the code.

Johnson said later that even if the mine owners do agree to the "check-off" system there is possibility the situation still would not be settled. This is because of reports from Pittsburgh that hundreds of the disturbing element are not striking miners, but hoodlums.

Difficulty in Prospect.

It was admitted the President may experience difficulty in bringing the steel men into agreement on the disputed section of the coal code, but under the NRA the administration is empowered to force recognition of codes or require licenses to operate. It was not thought likely last night, however, that Roosevelt would go to these lengths to gain the point, despite the growing seriousness of the situation.

From one official source it was learned last night the President probably will tell the steel men that unless they agreed to live up to the check-off provision of coal code, a code would be imposed on their coal companies providing explicitly for such conformation.

The alternative plan would be to permit each miner, on the first of

German Backs Mercy Killing

Justice Head Would Give Doctors Right in Case of Incurables.

Berlin, Oct. 6 (U.P.).—The Prussian ministry of justice issued a memorandum today suggesting a provision that licensed doctors be immune from prosecution for killing persons suffering from an incurable disease.

The memorandum stipulated that the advisability of putting such a person out of his misery should first be certified, however, by two official state physicians. Furthermore, the act must be demanded by the afflicted person and members of the family.

Hopson Ready To Talk, Bank Probers Told

Hurley Ends Long Hunt by Telling Committee Witness Is Ready.

The Senate Banking Committee's four-week search for Howard C. Hopson, Associated Gas & Electric Co. official, ended abruptly in the caucus room of the Senate yesterday when Patrick J. Hurley, former Secretary of War, promised to produce the witness when needed.

Retained as counsel by Associated Gas & Electric Co. interests, Hurley asked to make a statement. He said he sought to protect 350,000 stockholders of the giant utility holding company from "half-truths" and from efforts of "so-called chislers" attempting to form bondholders' protective committees.

"The company has made its books and records available to Mr. Pecora and will continue to do so," he said.

Hopson Missing Month.

Hopson, who controls large utility holdings of his own in addition to Associated Gas & Electric connections, has been missing from his New York offices more than a month, Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, said.

Hopson objects to giving investigators private books of his own companies, except under subpena.

"He feels he should not be compelled to divulge confidences of disinterested parties disclosed in those books," the former War Secretary added. "But he will do so under subpena, provided he is permitted to appear at the same time and explain the entries."

Following Hurley, Charles M. Travis, also representing Associated Gas & Electric, gave the committee Hopson's present Chicago address.

Hurley and Travis took the stand just before the committee recessed for week-end its investigation of Dillon, Read & Co. and associated trust companies. The recess followed disclosure of large losses sustained jointly by Dillon, Read & Co. and the United States & International Securities Corporation in a $30,000,000 trading account they organized in railroad securities.

Suggests Unloading.

Senator Couzens (Republican), Michigan, suggested "some wise guys" must have been unloading on the trading syndicate when Ernest Tracy, president of the investment trust, detailed precipitous value shrinkage in stock of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad Co. and the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad Co. purchased for the trading account.

Hurley took exception to a widely published statement by Pecora that the Associated Gas & Electric Co. was a "corporate labyrinth" suggesting in its complex make-up the Insull structure.

"No statement could have been more damaging," he said, holding policies of the Associated Gas & Electric had been "exactly opposite" from those pursued by the Insull concern.

Pecora said one of his objects in subpenaing Hopson is to ascertain why Associated Gas & Electric paid between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000 in fees to Utilities Accountant & Tax Consultants, a Hopson company.

Share Values Dwindle.

Earlier, with Tracy on the stand, Pecora developed how shares of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific purchased in 1929 at a cost of $5,500,000, and stock in the St. Louis & San Francisco, costing $5,800,000, later dwindled in market value to $150,000 and $43,000, respectively, in a trading account organized by Dillon, Read & Co. and one of its trust companies.

Counsel brought out the joint account suffered a $2,300,000 loss in Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific stock alone. Tracy said losses were prorated between Dillon, Read & Co., and United States & International Securities Corporation. The latter organization originally put up $30,000,000 to establish the account, he said.

Hearings will be resumed next Tuesday, when Pecora expects to go into Dillon, Read & Co.'s South American bond flotations.

Hopson Asks Subpoena.

Chicago, Oct. 6 (AP).—H. C. Hopson, vice president and treasurer of the Associated Gas & Electric Co., today said he had left New York on physicians' orders to take a rest and had been visiting the World's Fair two weeks.

He said agents of the Senate Banking Committee had not served papers on him requiring his presence in Washington.

Hopson said he demanded issuance of a formal subpoena to protect himself and his clients whose confidential affairs might be subject of questions.

Philippine Senate Hits Freedom Act

Vote Against Acceptance, However, Not Final.

Manila, Philippine Islands, Oct. 7 (Saturday) (AP).—The Insular Senate today rejected, 15 to 4, a motion offered by Senator Sergio Osmena in favor of accepting independence under the Hawes-Cutting act.

Senator Osmena had agreed, however, with Senators Manuel Quezon and Manuel Roxas the vote was not final.

The vote, the first taken directly on the issue, came after Quezon and Osmena agreed not to hold a national plebiscite on the act.

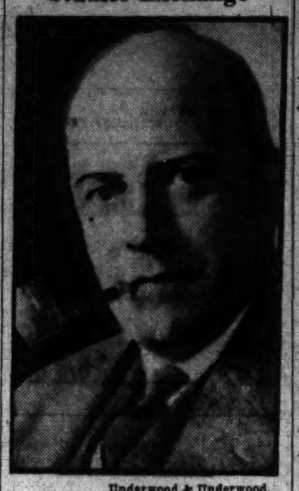

Early Agreement Seen In Sugar Market Dispute

Early agreement on the division of the American sugar market was predicted yesterday by Senators Kendrick, Wyoming; Wheeler, Montana and Adams, Colorado, after they conferred with President Roosevelt, the Associated Press reported.

"Sleep" Epidemic Ended.

St. Louis, Oct. 6 (AP).—Dr. Joseph Bredeck, St. Louis health commissioner, said tonight the "sleeping sickness" epidemic which began in mid-July had ended.

Pacifist Dean Will Talk Here

Tom Mann, British Labor Crusader, on Anti-War Congress Rostrum.

Tom Mann, 77-year-old British labor leader, will head a list of pacifist speakers at a mass meeting, sponsored by the United States Congress Against War, in the Belasco Theater at 8 p. m. Monday.

Active in English hunger strikes and other union movements, Mann recently figured in a controversy with American immigration authorities. He was denied admission to this country to address a New York antiwar rally, but later gained admission.

Many organizations allied in the congress protested that Mann does not hold membership in societies advocating overthrow of governments by force.

Other speakers will include Henri Barbusse, French author, and Henry Wadsworth Longfellow Dana, descendant of the poet. A delegation of pacifists will welcome Mann and Barbusse when they reach Union Station tomorrow at 2 p. m.

Mendel to Address Chemical Society

Virginia Section to Hear Yale Professor.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 6 (AP).—Dr. Lafayette B. Mendel, sterling professor of physiological chemistry at Yale University, has been secured as the opening speaker of the 1933-34 series of lectures sponsored by the Virginia Section, American Chemical Society.

Dr. Mendel's subject will be "The Challenge of Nutrition to Chemists." He will address the meeting to be held here October 13 at the Academy of Medicine Building.

He will be introduced by the president of the Richmond Academy of Medicine, Dr. Carrington Williams.

Fincastle Frees Suspect in Death

Body Found on Railroad Tracks in July.

Fincastle, Va., Oct. 6 (AP).—Granting a defense motion to strike out the prosecution's evidence, Judge Benjamin Haden last night freed Guy Tipton, of Narrows, road construction worker, of a murder charge in connection with the death of Clyde Lynch, of Gala.

Lynch's body was found on the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad tracks near Eagle Rock on the morning of July 16.

The State offered as a possible motive for foul play alleged objections of Lynch to Tipton's attentions to Miss Eva Hayes, Lynch's cousin.

Farmer Slain in Row Over Debt of Dollar

Anderson, S. C., Oct. 6 (AP).—Eugene Shaw, farmer, was shot to death at Belton today by Howard Coker, 23, a textile operative. Coker said he shot in self defense.

He said Shaw drew a knife in an argument over a dolar owed him by Coker.

Diamond Line "Padded" U. S. Bills, Charged

Witness Says Dockendorff Knew of Overcharges for Stevedoring.

Charges that the Black Diamond Steamship Lines, while operating vessels for the Government, had "overcharged the Government" in its stevedoring operations, were made by a former Black Diamond employe at yesterday's hearing before the Senate committee investigating ocean mail contracts.

"I was told I needn't lean over backward to be honest. Dockendorff accused me of not cooperating with them, and asked for my resignation," said Benjamin B. Harnett, former Black Diamond operating manager.

Dockendorff is J. E. Dockendorff, president of the Black Diamond.

Questioned by Senator Black (Democrat), Alabama, chairman Harnett said he found the Government was being overcharged by "bills padded with overtime charges and extra labor items, which were never performed."

Told Charge Was False.

"I discovered an item of between $50 and $50 overcharge. Charles Hamilton, chief stevedore, told me the charge was false, that no service had been performed," said Harnett.

He said Hamilton explained it was in the form of a loan to Steve O'Connor, whom Harnett identified as the son of T. V. O'Connor, then chairman of the Shipping Board. Hamilton said young O'Connor had borrowed money from him at various times and the only way he could get it back was to "get an extra labor permit to cover the amount."

"Did you discuss the matter with Dockendorff?" asked Chairman Black.

"Yes; and he said I wasn't cooperating with them. I told him it was petty larceny and I didn't mean to be a party to it."

"Did Dockendorff try to say the charge was just and fair?" questioned the senator.

"No. I believe he knew the circumstances, and that for him it wasn't any question of fairness and honesty."

Overruled, He Says.

Harnett said he had objected to several other similar charges, but always had been overruled by Dockendorff.

Chairman Black introduced correspondence showing E. A. Kelly, then vice president of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, was opposed to the charges of the Empire Stevedoring Co., subsidiary of the Black Diamond. He called V. J. Sudman, secretary and treasurer of the Black Diamond, to question him on this correspondence.

"Since the beginning, from 1920 to 1930, we had controversies with Washington officials over stevedoring charges," said the witness, "and Kelly always started them."

Chairman Black adjourned the hearing to October 17.

Hitler, Hindenburg Honor Pioneers

Tributes Paid First Group Landing in America.

Philadelphia, Oct. 6 (AP).—Chancellor Adolf Hitler and President Paul von Hindenburg extended hands across the sea today in memory of the hardy group of German pioneers who were the first from their nation to set foot on American soil.

The occasion marked beginning of a two-day celebration of the 250th anniversary of the landing of the first Germans in America and the founding of Germantown. Heads of the German government wired felicitations for success of the festivities.

Thirty-three adventurers arrived in the New World October 6, 1683, and the second national congress of the German-American conference was in session today as a preliminary to a great celebration in their honor tomorrow.

Virginia Slayer Dies In Electric Chair

Convicted of Killing Wife and Father-in-Law.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 6 (AP).—Frank Mann, of Nansemond County, died in the electric chair at the Virginia Penitentiary today for the murder of his wife, Dorothy Mann, and his father-in-law, David Floyd.

The execution followed Gov. Pollard's refusal to grant a respite.

The body may be claimed by members of the family, Maj. Rice M. Youell, superintendent, said.

Judge Expels Reichstag Fire Suspect for Insulting Court

Communist Wishes for Gun to Use on Officials.

Leipzig, Germany, Oct. 6 (AP).—Georgi Dimitroff, shouting "I wish I had a gun—I would use it," was expelled from the court room today after he taunted justices hearing the Reichstag fire trial and called a policeman a liar.

The court room was in a tumult and spectators laughed as the defendant, former leader of Bulgarian Communists, handicapped prosecution's efforts to substantiate charges of treason against him and Blagoi Popoff, another Bulgarian.

Dimitroff was led from the court room by police and placed in his cell after the presiding judge, Wilhelm Buenger, exclaimed, "my cup is full," and ordered him removed for "insulting the court."

This followed a tirade by the defendant during which he charged the court records had been falsified.

His parting remark as he was taken out the door was: "I want to save my head, my sentence already is fixed."

The spectators laughed at the comment of Dimitroff while the court was questioning him about books and pamphlets confiscated in his library.

He called Police Commissioner Heisig a liar after telling the court a document frequently being referred to was falsified.

I. W. Truxtum Named Collector at Norfolk

President Roosevelt yesterday appointed I. Walke Truxton, of Norfolk, Va., as collector of customs for District No. 14 with headquarters at Norfolk, according to the Associated Press. He succeeds Joseph L. Crupper, of Alexandria, Republican, resigned.

Poison Afloat

Broken Gangplank Drops Lethal Cans in Harbor.

San Pedro, Calif., Oct. 6 (AP).—Floating somewhere in the San Pedro harbor tonight were two metal cylinders, which health authorities said will bring instant death to anyone who opens them without proper precautions.

Each is filled with poison. They were being taken aboard the Italian ship Fella, by George Arnold, ship fumigator employed by the Federal Department of Health, when the the gangway collapsed.

The cans went overboard and were swept away by the current. Arnold suffered slight injuries in a fall to the wharf.

Each can contains poison sufficient to kill every living thing in a ship's hold. A search of the harbor was started.

Strike Areas Quiet, Pending Labor Parleys

Richberg Sees Prospect of Peace in Mines Under NRA Code.

(Associated Press.)

Watchfulness replaced disorder and bloodshed yesterday at steel plants and coal mines as strikers and owners awaited the result of efforts to smooth over difficulties.

In Illinois, where 19 persons were wounded Thursday in an outburst of interunion warfare, Donald Richberg, NRA counsel, conferred with miners and owners, and reported he saw hope for a solution of difficulties under the NRA bituminous coal code.

Six companies of the Illinois National Guard controlled Harrisburg, scene of the shooting at Peabody Mine No. 43. The shaft was closed by Gov. Horner to avoid fresh disturbances.

At Ambridge, Pa., where one man was slain and a score of others beaten and wounded Thursday, and in the Fayette County, Pa., mine area where two deputies were wounded, there was comparative quiet. Pickets, however, kept vigil at mines and mills under the guard of heavily armed deputy sheriffs.

Harvey O'Connor, 38-year-old Pittsburgh author and instructor, was freed as a suspect in the Ambridge rioting.

Strike leaders at the Weirton Steel Co.'s plant at Steubenville, Ohio, where police had hurled tear gas bombs at striking mill workers, exhorted strikers not to give in.

Striking tool and die makers in the Detroit area were reported by employers to have returned to work "in large numbers," following an ultimatum by seven automobile companies, making Friday the "deadline" for a return.

Fascist Leader Beaten by Mob

O'Duffy Badly Hurt as Dublin Crowd Fights Troops.

Dublin, Oct. 6 (U.P.).—Troops shot, used tear gas bombs and bayonets tonight to disperse a mob which attacked members of the semi-Fascist Blue Shirts, including Gen. Eoin O'Duffy, leader of the organization.

Police being unable for hours to disperse rioters who gathered about a hall where O'Duffy attended a meeting of his new United Ireland party.

O'Duffy was badly beaten by the mob which closed in on him and his chief lieutenant, Commandant Cronin, as they entered the building.

The mob set fire to O'Duffy's automobile and it was destroyed. The rioters stoned police repeatedly and withstood one baton charge after another.

Groups of Blue Shirts were ambushed in the streets and stoned and beaten. The rioters continually cried, "Up De Valera," "Up Republicans," and "O'Duffy is a traitor."

Nazi Book Burning Spared Libraries

Berlin Director, Visiting U. S., Denies Losses.

New York, Oct. 6 (AP).—Privy Councillor Hugo Kruess, director general of the Prussian state library of Berlin, arriving today en route to Chicago to attend a meeting of the American Library Association, said that not a single scientific work of any kind had been destroyed in the so-called "burning of Jewish books."

He said he was anxious to "spike the rumor that the Prussian state library or any other important library had lost valuable works."

"At the time of the 'burning of the books,'" he said, "a decree was issued that no books in any of the principal librares of Germany were to be molested. That decree has been meticulously observed. I told my chief aid, who is a Social Democrat, that if any one came to the library and attempted to take out books that they were to be kicked on the shins, and I meant it."

Pact Brings Ohio Coal Mines Under Blue Eagle

Cleveland, Oct. 6 (AP).—Ohio coal operators and union mine workers tonight signed an agreement for operation of Ohio mines under the NRA.

Officials of the United Mine Workers of America and seven officers of the Ohio Coal Control Association signed a pact they said immediately guarantees operation of mines in District 8 without interruption, regardless of labor controversies.

Roosevelt Calls For Immediate Data on Soviet

"50-50" Chance of Quick Action on Recognition Seen by Officials.

Despite opposition of the American Legion and the American Federation of Labor, renewed this week, President Roosevelt has called for immediate submission of complete memorandum on the question of Russian recognition.

In high administration circles, it was said the question "is moving into advanced stages and the chances are fifty-fifty" it will be taken up shortly for disposition.

It was indicated, however, that while the decision lay with the President, it was not likely quick and unconditional recognition, which has been strongly urged, would be granted.

Negotiations Expected.

It appeared probable final action would be reached through negotiations covering points of difference, requiring time to adjust.

The situation at the moment is this:

Russia desires diplomatic recognition and credits which would enable her to make purchases of goods she needs, amounting, according to a figure given by M. Litvinoff, commissar of foreign affairs, at the London Conference, to $1,000,000,000.

America, upon her part, desires to recognize Russia because hers is a de facto government and because diplomatic relations with her opens up the way for full and profitable commercial relations.

Red Propaganda Doubted.

Some Government officials closest to the question feel that Russia is so occupied with her own success now that she has neither the time nor the means to agitate for the "world revolution."

The chief remaining factor is that of Russian debts to this country, dating back to the Kerensky government. There is also the issue of property of American citizens, amounting to $300,000,000, seized after the Russian revolution.

Church Group Picks D. C. Men

Clerical and Lay Delegates Elected to Methodist General Conference.

Roanoke, Va., Oct. 5 (AP).—Dr. Harry M. Canter, of Staunton, and W. W. Millan, of Washington, will lead the Baltimore conference clerical and lay delegations respectively to the 1934 general conference, of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, the results of the first ballot taken at today's session of the 149th meeting of the Baltimore conference showed. These two held the highest majority in their respective groups.

Dr. Forney Hutchison, pastor of Mount Vernon Place Church, of Washington, D. C., and Dr. Nolan B. Harmon, jr., Baltimore editor of the Baltimore Southern Methodist, were other clergymen elected on the first ballot.

Alfred H. Dudley, Baltimore banker; John E. Easter, Roanoke business man, and M. L. Walton, jr., Woodstock lawyer, also received majorities on the first ballot.

Dr. John C. Copenhaver, pastor of Epworth League Church, Washington, D. C., and Dr. J. Howard Wells, presiding elder of the Washington district, were elected on the second ballot this afternoon. The laymen gave no individual a majority, and Bishop William F. McMurry, presiding officer, declared no election in this instance.

Reports of pastors occupied most of today's sessions and the character of a majority of the ministers was passed. Sacrificial giving and an optimistic spirit as to financial efforts prevailed in most of the reports. The passing of character will continue tomorrow.

Steel Chiefs Called In Coal Strike Peril

the month, to file with the company a written assignment of the amount of his union dues, to be turned over at once to the union.

At Gov. Pinchot's conference with Johnson in the NRA offices were John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America; Edward F. McGrady, Assistant Secretary of Labor and Assistant NRA administrator; Gerard Swope, Walter Teagle, and George L. Berry, all members of the coal arbitration board set up last July.

It was understood this group, after talking with Pinchot, still thought agreement of the operators to live up to the "check off" might settle the problem.

Both Johnson and Donald R. Richberg, general counsel for NRA, denied last night there is a rift between them because of divergent views on application of the "check off" to the mines owned by the steel corporations. Johnson previously expressed "amazement" that Richberg had told steel corporation officials the clause did not apply to the Pennsylvania coal district, while it was the general's opinion it did so apply.

Johnson said there was no quarrel between himself and Richberg, but the latter had simply "made a mistake."

Richberg, who has been in Illinois for several days attempting a settlement of difficulties in coal fields of that State, also issued a denial.

Richberg explained that when he had the subject up with the steel corporations owning mines he thought the check-off system was not used in Pennsylvania coal districts.

"Since then," he said, "I understand miners have negotiated an agreement for the check-off. The time element caused the confusion."

Johnson talked with Richberg by telephone after reports of disagreement became public. Richberg was to return to Washington today.

Davis Absent From Drawing, Witnesses Say

Defense Enters Evidence Senator Did Not See Money Awarded.

New York, Oct. 6 (AP).—The defense in the lottery trial of Senator James A. Davis today sought to prove that the Pennsylvanian was not present at Mooseheart, Ill., when his lodge conducted a drawing for charity.

Defense witnesses, including Catholic and Protestant chaplains—and officials of Mooseheart—the orphans' home of the Moose Lodge—each testified they did not see Davis in the building where the drawing was held.

Davis, director-general of the Moose, is charged with sending lottery tickets across State lines. Theodore Miller, a high official in the fraternity, is on trial with him.

The senator's sister-in-law, Mrs. Samuel Davis, postmistress at Mooseheart, testified she had written the senator's wife to have "Jim come out" from Washington and see his sick brother. The Government had sought to show that Davis went to Mooseheart to attend the drawing.

Roosevelt Orders Huge Cotton Loans

Reconstruction Finance Corporation, issued an explanatory statement. It said, in part:

"Effort will be made, if possible, to employ the normal channels and agencies for lending upon, handling and storing the cotton.

"It is the intention of the R. F. C., if possible, to arrange a form of guaranty that will be acceptable to banks and others lending directly to the cotton producer that will enable such banks and lending institutions to make loans under regulations to be prescribed by the R. F. C.

Interest 4 Per Cent.

"The interest rate will be 4 per cent to the farmer, and loans will be made at 10 cents per pound at the warehouse on low middling or better as to grade and ⅞ or better as to staple; 8 cents per pound on low middling or better as to grade and below ⅞ as to staple.

"No premium will be allowed on account of variations in grades and staples above low middling ⅞, and no variations in the rate of loans will be made on account of the location of warehouse in which the cotton is stored."

The producer will be permitted to store in or ship his cotton to any available warehouse that is satisfactory to himself and the R. F. C., and in making loans, the rate will be 10 cents per pound at the acceptable warehouse.

The text of the Federal Advisory Council's resolution adopted September 19, follows:

Since the Securities act of 1933 came into operation, the normal issue of corporate securities by responsible corporations has almost ceased. It has become evident that large corporations, with responsible boards of directors, will not undertake capital issues because of the liabilities which the act imposes upon them and the individual members of their boards of directors in regard thereto.

It has also become evident that responsible investment bankers will not act as underwriters of corporate issues, because of the liabilities imposed upon them under the terms of the securities act of 1933. That this is so, is clearly established from the fact that no nationally known industrial or public utility company has undertaken any new financing under the Securities Act of 1933.

Grave Problem Seen.

This situation presents a grave problem in connection with the National Industrial Recovery program and with the ordinary restoration of credit operations of financial institutions. Unless this situation is changed, companies with maturing obligations will not have the usual facilities provided for the refunding thereof, and many sound companies may be faced with receivership because of inability to obtain capital funds for refunding purposes.

Similarly, industrial progress requiring new capital will be prevented through inability to obtain capital funds, even though sought by sound and seasoned enterprises. There is nothing which will help so much in increasing employment and aiding in the consumption of capital goods as the possibility of carrying on adequate capital financing.

The banks of the country could not undertake to lend their depositors' funds to corporations to enable them to discharge their maturing capital obligations or to make capital additions, because the volume of loans required for refunding and new capital requirements would be beyond the capacity of the banks to meet.

Banks Declared Hampered.

Under the banking act of 1933 banks are, in effect, prohibited from underwriting the capital requirements of the industries of the country, either directly or through affiliates. This provision has restricted, in a great measure, the investment banking facilities of the country.

It is essential that the industries of the country (including public utilities) be enabled to finance their ordinary capital requirements either for refunding or for new capital in the investment markets, and it is apparent that amendments to the law must be made so that it will not stifle the legitimate flow of capital into industry.

Accordingly, it is hereby

Resolved, That, in aid of the national recovery program, the securities act of 1933 and the banking act of 1933, should be amended in such respects as may be necessary to enable industries of the country to obtain capital funds in the investment markets, retaining in such laws such provisions as may be necessary properly to safeguard the interests of the investing public.

Labor Plans Honor Today To Dead Chief

Memorial to Gompers Will Be Dedicated by President.

Led by President Roosevelt, the American Federation of Labor this morning will honor the memory of Samuel Gompers when the bronze memorial to its late leader is dedicated. The exercises, starting at 10 o'clock, will be held in the triangle on Massachusetts avenue between Tenth and Eleventh streets.

President Roosevelt will deliver the dedicatory address, 17 years after Woodrow Wilson dedicated the A. F. of L. Building, a block away. Seating for 2,500 has been provided and more than 10,000 are expected.

Scant hope remained last night that the statue would be unveiled by Shirley Gompers MacKay, great-granddaughter of the labor champion. Ill with a cold since Monday, her father, Dr. William MacKay, said she probably would be unable to appear. In this event, her place will be taken by her 9-year-old brother, James Calvin, it was said last night.

The memorial shows Gompers seated below the altar of justice. Figures symbolic of labor clasp hands across the altar. Behind them are Justice and Liberty. Protection of the home is symbolized by a mother holding her baby and a child, its head bowed, portrays appeal against industrial exploitation.

The program for the exercises follows:

Opening, "Stars and Stripes Forever," Sousa; invocation, the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington; selection, "Trees," Rasbach; presentation of President Roosevelt by William Green, president of the American Federation of Latbor; dedicatory address, President Roosevelt; unveiling, Miss Shirley Gompers MacKay or James Calvin MacKay; selection, Pilgrims Chorus from "Tannhauser," Wagner; address, President Green; selection, "Celeste Aida," from "Aida," Verdi; benediction, the Right Rev. John M. McNamara, auxiliary bishop of the archdiocese; "America."

Machine Gun Sale Faces NRA Curb

Johnson to Aid Crime War in Arms Industry Code.

Possibility of an effective curb on machine-gun sales to gangsters appeared yesterday with the announcement by Administrator Hugh S. Johnson that the NRA will establish a code for the arms and ammunition industry.

Cooperating with the Department of Justice, Assistant Deputy Administrator H. M. Halstead, jr., asked arms manufacturers at their code hearing recently to give careful consideration to the request of the Department of Justice to restrict sales of machine guns.

The manufacturers agreed to take the matter under advisement.

New Bootleg Haven Sighted In Dry States

Rockefeller Study Group Favors Rooting Out Bone Dry Laws.

New York, Oct. 6 (AP).—The Rockefeller liquor-control study warned today that "unless past experience is reversed" the surviving dry States, after adoption of the repeal amendment, will become a bootleggers' paradise.

"Operating from there as a base," the study said, "the illicit liquor traffic should not be allowed to run cheap, inferior liquor into wet States for sale in competition with legal but perhaps higher-priced article."

Dealing with State regulations after repeal, the report—sponsored by John D. Rockefeller, jr., and made by Raymond B. Fosdick and Albert L. Scott—said any one who regarded the bootlegging warning lightly should examine the efforts of Canadian provinces to shut out American bootleggers.

Prohibition Discarded.

"In view of the widespread evils which followed adoption of the eighteenth amendment," the report said, "we frankly are not impressed with the possibilities of prohibition as a method of control, even in individual States. We believe in stringent regulation of beverages of high alcoholic content. We do not believe that such regulation is possible under a strict form of prohibition."

Citing that repeal of the eighteenth amendment leaves untouched the laws and constitutional provisions existing in various States, the report declared:

"The possible future success of State-wide prohibition will depend entirely upon whether there is within the State an overwhelming majority in favor of this type of control.

Present Abuses Lurk.

"If an uncompromising, bone-dry prohibition is attempted, failure to marshal a preponderant sentiment behind it will, we believe, admit all the abuses which have recently been experienced under the national regime.

"* * * Nothing is to be gained by passing a law which serves merely to satisfy the consciences of those responsible for it."

The twenty-first amendment forbids the transportation of intoxicants into any State holding such traffic illegal, the report noted.

H. N. Brawner Takes Bride

Wealthy Washingtonian Weds Miss Ludwig in New York.

Henry N. Brawner, wealthy Washingtonian, was married in New York Wednesday to Miss Iola Ludwig.

The bride, a trained nurse, attended Mrs. Brawner, who died six months ago.

They were married in the Little Church Around the Corner, by the Rev. Charles P. Warner, rector of St. Albans Parish, a close friend of the bridegroom.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Brawner, son and daughter-in-law, were in attendance.

Brawner built up the Chestnut Farms Dairy to the largest milk distributing firm in the District. He sold out to the National Dairy Products Corporation at a price reported to be $3,000,000.

They will make their home at 3520 Rittenhouse street northwest.

World-Wheat Cut Meeting Discussed

MacMurray Sees Officials of State Department.

(Associated Press.)

The world wheat situation was gone over yesterday with State Department officials by John V. A. MacMurray, Minister to the Baltic States, who will represent the United States at the International Wheat Conference in London.

The London meeting on November was called in the hope of bringing Soviet Russia into an agreement to limit wheat exports.

MacMurray recently returned from London, where he was in conference with representatives of Soviet Russia.

President Reduces Mechanics' Hours

Orders Cut From 40 to 35 a Week.

With less than three months until expiration of code agreements, President Roosevelt yesterday ordered modification of all signed after October 1 by abrogating authority for employers to work mechanical employes as much as 40 hours a week for six weeks.

The President ordered that on all new agreements, mechanical or factory workers and artisans are not to be employed longer than 35 hours a week.

Death Sentence Given Trio Slayer

St. Louis, Oct. 6 (AP).—Paul Barbata was sentenced to death today by a jury for the murder of 18-year-old Lillian Salamoni last January 6.

He killed the girl, her father and brother, at their home, after the men had ordered him to cease his attentions to the girl, because he was married.

Barbata pleaded insanity.

Leaders Split On Rum Plan Of Rockefeller

Efforts to Take Profit Away From Industry Branded "Joke."

Wet and dry leaders here last night were in wide disagreement over proposals of John D. Rockefeller, jr., for control of the liquor traffic after repeal.

F. Scott McBridge, superintendent of the Antisaloon League of America, said control will not work and Rockefeller will be "greatly disappointed" in endeavoring to take the profits out of the liquor traffic.

Rufus S. Lusk, Washington manager for the Crusaders, antiprohibition organization, said eliminating profits from the liquor traffic, as proposed by Rockefeller, is the "only approach" to the post-repeal problem.

Woman Calls it Joke.

Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson, president of the National Women's Democratic Law Enforcement League, said it is a "joke" to presume profits ever can be separated from liquor dealing.

The Rockefeller views, outlined in a foreword to his forthcoming report on liquor control, were endorsed only partially by Dr. McBride. He took flat exception to the suggestion that the profit motive could be eliminated from liquor. He added:

"We heartily agree with Mr. Rockefeller when he says we should take up again the slow march of education as the real and fundamental approach to the liquor problem."

Mr. Lusk, on the other hand, insisted temperance education properly should be left to the home, church and school.

"I have seen only a brief Associated Press article on the Rockefeller liquor control plan, and so can not comment on the report as a whole," Dr. McBride told The Post.

"From what I have seen, however, I am of the opinion Mr. Rockefeller will be disappointed in endeavoring to eliminate profits from the liquor traffic.

"We favor no license or tax system of alcohol because alcohol is a poison drug. We know of no system that will control liquor. To try to do so is to tinker with the liquor problem.

Favor Total Abstinence.

"The name liquor control is an insidious misrepresentation. We are for total abstinence."

Mrs. Nicholson's views tallied closely with those of Dr. McBride.

"Every plan of liquor control has failed in the past," she said. "I do not look for any to succeed in the future because of the money back of liquor.

"I agree with Mr. Rockefeller that total abstinence is not only the wisest, but the safest position for both individual and society because liquor is a habit-forming drug."

Mrs. Pitney, Widow Of Journalist, Dies

Mrs. Marguerite Pitney, widow of Fred B. Pitney, World War correspondent of the New York Herald, died suddenly Wednesday night in Alexandria.

Mrs. Pitney, who lived in Westfield, N. J., died soon after she reached the home of Mrs. Robert Frame, 161 Washington avenue, Alexandria. Her death was attributed to heart trouble.

Pretty Widow Of Desperado Free in Killing

Jurors Hold Her Insane in Giving Death Gun to Jailed Mate.

New York, Oct. 6 (U.P.).—Cecelia McCormick, pretty widow of a desperado who committed suicide after killing a jail warden, was found not guilty of first degree murder tonight by a jury in Brooklyn Criminal Court.

The jury decided Mrs. McCormick had been temporarily insane when she carried a pistol into the Raymond Street Jail to her husband, held on a charge of robbery.

Andrew "Red" McCormick, her husband, shot down Head Keeper William McConnell and then killed himself with the gun she had handed him.

Mrs. McCormick stood trial for first degree murder after her mother and her baby, born after "Red" McCormick had killed himself, had been refused permission to attend the trial by the court.

She said in her own testimony that she had taken the gun to the jail because she believed her husband intended to enter a suicide pact with her in the visiting room of the prison.

A. F. of L. Votes For Continued Member Drive

Strengthening of Existing Unions Aproved as Vital for Cause.

Continuation of the organization campaign, which has swelled the ranks of union labor since formation of the NRA, was decided on yesterday by the American Federation of Labor convention.

Strengthening of existing federation units was called for in a report of the executive council, approved by the convention without a dissenting vote.

"We urge upon all organization of labor and their individual members," the report read, "to support and cooperate in every effort which may be made in their localities to organize the unorganized and to build up and strengthen the existing organizations."

The report urged that all workers "be accorded the widest opportunity to organize and become affiliated with the American Federation of Labor."

Postmaster General Farley and Rev. Francis J. Haas, member of the NRA Advisory Council, both made pleas for continued peace between workers and employers.

The convention labor blocked a resolution indorsing striking soft coal miners and censuring union officials who ordered them to return to work before they had definite guarantees their demands had been met.

Farley asked labor "to continue to exhibit a recognition of the patriotic cooperation which the great majority of employers have rendered to the President's recovery program," and added:

"There can be no doubt that great numbers of individual employers, great numbers of industrial corporations and business houses increased wages and lowered hours without knowing exactly how they would find the means with which to finance this expansion.

"From the very beginning of the recovery effort, emphasis has been laid upon the purpose of the Administration to bring about results by conference and adjustment, by reason and intelligence, rather than by force. Nothing should be permitted to interfere with this method."

Admiral Byrd's Ship Faces Libel Action

Wilmington, N. C., Oct. 6 (AP).—Libel proceedings against the Bear of Oakland, supply ship for the Byrd antarctic expedition, were threatened tonight, the result of a difference of opinion over the proper tonnage fee for towing the Barkentine into Southport Harbor yesterday, after it sent out a call for assistance.

R. B. Sone, owner of the Tug Blanche, wants $1,000 for towing the Bear.

Former Hawaii Governor Dies At Honolulu

Wallace R. Farrington Held Office From 1921 to 1929.

Honolulu, Oct. 6 (AP).—Heart disease today ended the career of Wallace Rider Farrington, 62, Governor of Hawaii from 1921 to 1929.

Mr. Farrington had been absent from his office at the Honolulu Star-Bulletin, of which he was publisher, most of this year due to the ailment.

President Harding chose Mr. Farrington as Governor of Hawaii. For two terms he occupied Iolani Palace. After President Hoover took office the governor asked for retirement. He said he wanted to go back to his newspaper.

He was born in Orono, Maine, May 3, 1871.

He came to the islands in 1894 to become managing editor of the Pacific Commercial Advertiser. Four years later he became manager of the Evening Bulletin, which later merged under his direction with the Star. Mr. Farrington was married in 1896 to Catherine McAlpine Crane, of San Francisco. Mrs. Farrington and three children survive.

Funeral services will be held Sunday from Central Union Church, followed by Masonic services at the cemetery.

Long Illness Fatal To Mrs. Fannie Hardy

Mrs. Fannie Hardey, 75, died at her home, 221 Eighth street northeast, yesterday, after several years' illness.

Although a native of Newport, Md., Mrs. Hardey lived in Washington 30 years. She was associated with St. Joseph's Catholic Church.

Mrs. Hardey is survived by four sons and a daughter: James William, Eugene A., John C., and Joseph R. Hardey, of Washington; and Mrs. Mabel A. Laughlin, of Arizona.

City Projects To Arts Board

Improvement Program Is Being Considered at 2-Day Meeting.

Washington improvements to be financed under the public works program were laid before the Fine Arts Commission yesterday at opening of a two-day session.

Replacement of Chain Bridge, being considered also by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, was discussed. Plans were presented for a new naval testing basin at the Navy yard. Landscaping at the new Public Health Service Building is included in the program, along with widening of Constitution avenue between Virginia avenue and the Potomac River.

The commission is considering completion of the Mall project, for which $600,000 has been allotted. At the request of Judge Gus A. Schuldt, Police Court, the commission will give further consideration to the proposed courts building in Municipal Center.

Nazis Exonerated By Dolfuss' Aids

Bombing Blamed on Party, But Not Shooting.

Vienna, Oct. 6 (AP).—Police said tonight they were convinced the bombing of the headquarters of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss' Patriotic Front organization at Frems early today was a Nazi job, but they did not see any connection with the attempt this week on the chancellor's life by Rudolf Dertil.

Police said they found an application card for membership in the Austrian Nazi party filled out by Dertil.

Germans Lauded In Dodd's Speech

Tribute Paid Contribution to American Culture.

Berlin, Oct. 6 (AP).—United States Ambassador William E. Dodd, speaking on the 250th anniversary of the founding of the first German settlement in America, paid tribute tonight to German contributions to American thought and culture.

He mentioned participation of the German immigrant in the Revolutionary and Civil Wars and then, referring to the World War, said:

"It was a fearful test for millions of Germans in the United States, but they stood the test manfully, although, like so many others, were nonplussed at the end, and have not yet fully realized the fact that the world is no longer composed of free and disentangled nations."

C. G. Dickson, Of Copyright Office, Is Dead

Services for Acting Chief Clerk Will Be Held Sunday Afternoon.

Casper G. Dickson, 57, acting chief clerk of the copyright office, Library of Congress, died yesterday in Garfield Hospital following a brief illness.

Mr. Dickson had been employed at the library since 1899. He was a native of Philadelphia. Complications developed following a heart attack two weeks ago.

Since 1901 Mr. Dickson had lived in Kensington, Md. He was a member of the Kensington Lodge of Masons and an elder of the Warner Memorial Presbyterian Church.

He was educated at Macalester College, St. Paul, Minn., and Drexel Institute, Philadelphia. He was local representative of the Home Fire Insurance Co., and the Fidelity and Casualty Co.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Harriet S. Dickson, and two daughters, Elizabeth and Mary Dickson, of Kensington.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. from the Warner Presbyterian Church. Rev. Fred A. Kullmar, pastor, will officiate. Interment will be in the Rockville Union Cemetery.

Loans Rescue 12,793 Homes

Mortgage Holders Lauded by Federal Director for Cooperation.

Reporting 12,793 impending foreclosures had been prevented during the first six weeks' operation of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, Chairman William F. Stevenson yesterday expressed gratification over the cooperation accorded the new agency by mortgage holders throughout the country.

His report covered operations in the corporations' 257 branch offices up to September 23. Branches now are operating in all 48 States and the District of Columbia.

Loan applications approved total 51,730, in amounts totaling $149,114,877. The combined value of properties on which threatened foreclosures were averted exceeded $36,000,000. Approximately 500 other homes were saved through negotiated settlements, without the aid of Federal loans.

These operations are independent of the older Federal Home Loan Board, which in its first year, ending September 30, advanced $66,732,310 on mortgage loans and approved applications calling for $11,869,666 more.

$398,000,000 Held in Banks May Be Freed

Eight Maryland and Two Virginia Institutions to Be Reopened.

Frozen deposits of $398,735,000 are listed in 376 banks, for which reorganization plans have been approved by the Treasury, it was announced last night.

Slightly more than 50 per cent of deposits can be released if the banks carry out the plans agreed upon and are licensed to reopen, the Treasury estimated.

"Additional percentage will be available as slow or doubtful assets are converted into cash," the Treasury stated.

Eight Maryland banks under conservators hold $5,974,000 in frozen deposits, while $5,072,000 is held in five Virginia banks under such control.

Following are Maryland and Virginia banks for which reorganization plans have been approved, as of September 30, with location, name, amount of frozen deposits and unrestricted deposits respectively:

Maryland — Brunswick, Peoples National Bank, $839,000 and $15,000; Centerville, Centerville National Bank, $1,250,000 and $74,000; Chestertown, Third National Bank, $1,142,000 and $173,000; Friendsville, First National Bank, $201,000 and $10,000; Hancock, First National Bank, $486,000 and $28,000; Parkton, First National Bank, $804,000 and $6,000; Pocomoke City, Citizens National Bank, $544,000 and $37,000; Port Deposit, Cecil National Bank, $708,000 and $21,000. Syrian, Held 17 Years in Slavery by Arabs, And Mourned as Dead, to Join Kin in America

Lost as Child in Desert, He Grows to Manhood as Wandering Captive.

New York, Oct. 6 (AP).—Adbo Hiwany's boy is coming home after 17 years in Arabian slavery.

Adbo—he sells smelly seeds to fellow Syrians in Brooklyn can scarcely believe it, for he thought his son was dead.

And behind it all is a strange drama of servitude and the French Foreign Legion, caravans and olive trees, desert baracoons and veiled eyes, minarets and mecca.

Adbo had one son, M'Tanos, and a "big beard" and an ox when he came to America. He left M'Tanos and his other child, Anna, with his kinsmen and sailed away.

Wanders Into Desert.

Then M'Tanos, only 11, forgot his father's warnings and ventured into the desert. They found a pile of bones a few days later and a letter was sent to Adbo that M'Tanos was dead.

Years passed and Anna came to America. She wouldn't believe her brother had died.

"The Arabs," she whispered to her mother as they boiled their mutton and pounded their bread and stirred the soup with a huge wooden ladle.

And so it had been. Bearder tribesmen, sweeping down from the sand dunes, had found M'Tanos playing in the desert and snatched him away. They bartered him into slavery. His masters taught him the story of the prophet and how to prostrate with his face toward Mecca when the priest droned the evening prayer.

Travels With Owners.

Over all the strange byways of the Euphrates Valley, along the Babylon trail, to Damascus' gate and the bazaars of Bagdad, then back to the Atlas Mountains in far-off Africa, his masters took him to tend their sheep and patch their tents and sharpen their scimiters.

M'Tanos grew to manhood with a "big beard" like his father. Then the Foreign Legion came and scattered the tribe. The soldiers took the slaves to Syria and freed them. He wandered to Homs, his native town, and friends cabled Adbo.

Adbo was cagey. "The Arabs," he told Anna, "are tricky. M'Tanos is my first born and my goods and name are his. It might be a trick——"

He insisted that M'Tanos identify himself.

Olive Tree Recalled.

Did Adbo remember the olive tree by their Syrian home and the ox and the fields? M'Tanos cabled his father.

The seed merchant will send soon for M'Tanos, maybe in six weeks.

"He's a big man now," said Adbo today.

"With a big beard," echoed his wife.

"But mama," smiled Adbo, "he must cut it off in America."

Welles' Recall Demanded as 3 Die in Havana

Newspaper Calls Envoy "Only Conspirator" Left on Island.

Havana, Oct. 6 (AP).—Bombings and shootings resulted today in the death of three persons and wounding of six in Havana, but reports from the interior indicated conditions were generally quiet there.

The dead included two Communists, Felix Viti, 23, and Luis Melian, 19, who were killed when three men fired into a cafe. Two of their companions were wounded. The other death was of an unidentified man who was slain by a shot fired from an automobile. The four others injured were victims of the bombing of two laundries.

Attack on Welles.

Sumner Welles, American Ambassador, was attacked by Alma Mater, student newspaper, which proposed that he return to the United States.

Humberto de Cardenas, author of the article, described Mr. Welles as "the only conspirator left in Cuba" and suggested that a public fund be raised "to embark Welles—who ought not and can not remain in Cuba."

Officials at the American Embassy admitted Mr. Welles visited the home of Dr. Cosme de la Torriente last night while Carlos Mendieta was there. Both de la Torriente and Mendieta are political leaders.

Embassy informants said the visit to De la Torriente was a personal one and that Mendieta just happened to be there.

Political leaders continued secret conferences. Two groups of Americans, Spanish War Veterans and the American Legion, consulted over treatment of officers who surrendered in the National Hotel.

The former are considering asking President Grau to permit the officers to leave for a foreign country.

Asylum Inmates Revolt.

The legionnaires kept their deliberations secret.

Persistent reports are that feeling between the ABC secret society and the Student Directory is becoming worse.

The official death list in the National Hotel battle was revealed today as 14 officers and 20 soldiers, but the list does not include civilians. Inmates of the Mazorra Asylum revolted today and the government sent troops.

Reports of minor racial conflicts were received in the capital, bearing out the belief that this situation thoroughout the island continues grave.

Sugar mill strikes at Media Luna in Oriente Province were settled.

Dr. W. S. Skinner presents a traveling bag, farewell gift from friends at Chemistry and Soils, Agriculture, to Alexander Krasnitz, 28. Mr. Krasnitz will resign next Saturday to study biological chemistry at the University of Paris, where he will work for his Ph. D. Mrs. Krasnitz will accompany him. Left to right are E. A. Beavens, Dr. Skinner, T. L. Swenson, Mrs. Coral Strasberger, Mr. Krasnitz, Mrs. Hilda Dale and Harry Stepakof.

ENTERING its third week, the "most vigorous and militant organization effort ever initiated in Washington" is proceeding toward substantial accomplishments in improving welfare of the Government worker, officials at the National Federation of Federal Employes announced yesterday.

BAKER.

Membership applications are pouring into headquarters, says John W. Ginder, president of the District Federation of Federal Employes Unions. Luther C. Steward, N. F. F. E. president, reveals a similar response from local unions over the country. The federation recently launched a drive for 100,000 members.

Success toward winning a Civil Service court of appeals is stimulating increases in N. F. F. E. union rolls, it was said. "Success of the conciliation plan," Mr. Steward stated, "which requires no appropriation and no legislative action, will strengthen our case materially when we go to Congress again in behalf of a true appellate body such as a Civil Service court of appeals. N. F. F. E. members should be in the forefront in an effort to assure success of the plan."

PROGRESS on reallocation was reported at the Society of Federal Translators meeting this week by Burton H. Lamore, Translating Bureau, State, president of Lodge No. 19, A. F. G. E.

J. W. Perkins, Translating Bureau, State, chairman of the subcommittee on reclassification, told the session of his conference with F. W. Brown, assistant chief of Examining Division, Civil Service. Details of raising minimum requirements for admission to the translator examination were discussed. Later, Mr. Lamore, Kenneth Rogers, International Postal Service, Postoffice, and Arthur Lebel, Translating, Bureau, State, interviewed Ismar Baruch, chief of Personnel Reclassification Division, Civil Service. The entire subject of minimum qualifications and reallocation was studied.

Resolutions pledging support of Lodge No. 19 to the entire A. F. G. E. program were adopted. Miss Johanna H. Boernsen, Naval Intelligence, spoke on translating in the Navy Department.

Suicide Linked In Mail Theft

Indictment of Night Club Operator Bared When He Shoots Self.

Chicago, Oct. 6 (AP).—United States Attorney Dwight H. Green said tonight Edgar B. Lebensberger, night club operator who killed himself today, had been named in secret indictments charging him with complicity in a $500,000 mail robbery here last December.

Green made his statement shortly after Federal authorities arrested Joe ("Boss") McLaughlin, minor politician, on reported indictments in the same case, and Sol Stern.

Clarke B. Ritchie, an attorney, also was arrested late today and freed on $5,000 bond in connection with the case. Details of the charges against him were not made public.

The first lead to the indictments came as a result of the discovery of nearly $100,000 of unclaimed bonds in a closed Texas bank, officials said.

Lebenberger's body, clothed in silk pajamas, was found in his apartment. He shot himself, a coroner's jury declared.

Dealers Spending Aids "Buy Plan"

Will Offer New Products, Increase Advertising.

Increased advertising appropriations and presentation to the public of new and improved products at fair prices, were promised yesterday in hundreds of letters and telegrams from small merchants and manufactures to Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, Recovery Administrator, in response to his plea for support of his "buy now" campaign, which opens next Monday.

Advertising agencies reported orders from large clients to increase newspaper and magazine advertising in anticipation of larger business.

$200 Gold Pin Missing.

A gold barpin, valued at $200, was reported stolen or lost yesterday by Beverly H. Hatch, 1708 Massachusetts avenue northwest.

NRA Revision Plan Reported Nearly Ready

Reorganization Proposal Up to Policy Board and Johnson.

Plans for reorganization of the National Recovery Administration were reported virtually complete complete yesterday, and probably will be carried out as soon as approved by the policy board and Administrator Hugh S. Johnson.

Tentative plans provide four assistant administrators. They are understood to be Kenneth M. Simpson, present deputy administrator for the automobile, steel and coal industries; Malcolm Muir, Gen. C. C. Williams and Arthur D. Whiteside.

Simpson's division, according to early plans, is to be in charge of matters pertaining to extractives, such as coal and minerals. Muir would have charge of construction, machinery, lumber and material products. Gen. Williams' department is to look after chemicals, leather and miscellaneous industries, and Whiteside's, trades and services, textiles and clothing and wholesale and retail codes.

Deputies in Simpson's division will be Col. R. W. Lea, Phillip Kemp, James P. Davis and O. H. Kings, the latter only part time. Malcolm Pirnie, Tom Glasgow and Kings were selected tentatives as deputies under Muir, and those under Williams will be Richard B. Paddock and Ward W. Pickard. Lindsay Rogers and W. L. Allen are to be Whiteside's aids.

Expansion of the National Labor Board, which may become a permanent part of NRA, yesterday followed a request from its chairman, Senator Robert F. Wagner, to President Roosevelt. The President appointed four new members, bringing the board's membership from 7 to 11.

The four are Edwin N. Hurley, Chicago, and Austin Finch, of North Carolina, representing employers, and George L. Berry, of the pressmen's union, and Father Francis J. Haas, of Catholic University. Father Haas already was a member of the Labor Advisory Board of NRA.

Gaithersburg Scene Of Club Dance Tonight

The Curley Club will sponsor a country dance at Gaithersburg tonight as guests of the Rev. John J. Gallaghan, pastor of the Catholic Church.

John L. Donnelly, directing the dance, will be assisted by Ben Swann, Joseph Fallon, Mary Zurn, Bernie O'Leary, Mary Dempsey and Helene Gingras. Club members and friends will assemble at Knights of Columbus Hall here at 7:30 p. m. and go to Gaithersburg by automobile.

Masons Plan Huge Meeting In Alexandria

Lodge Will Be Host to Many Thousands Next Thursday Night.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

One of the most important Masonic meetings in Alexandria during the fall and winter will be held in George Washington Masonic National Memorial Temple next Thursday night, when Alexandria-Washington Lodge will be host to distinguished Masons from every section of the United States, who will attend the annual sessions of the General Grand Chapter, Royal Arch Masons; the General Grand Council, Royal and Select Masters, and the Supreme Council, Scottish Rite Masons.

The meeting will be at 8 o'clock. Arrangements to entertain several thousand are being perfected.

Dr. Robert South Barrett, worshipful master of Alexandria-Washington Lodge, will preside. Charles H. Callahan, past grand master of Masons in Virginia, will speak on Gen. Washington's connection with Alexandria.

A phantasy, entitled "The Spirit of Washington," by Sanford G. Donaldson, grand master of Masons in South Dakota, and sovereign grand inspector general of the Scottish Rite in his State, will be given.

The meeting will be open to all Master Masons of Alexandria and vicinity.

8 Years for Robbery.

Dallas C. Williford, 25, of Washington, yesterday pleaded guilty in corporation court to robbery, and was sentenced by Judge William P. Wools to eight years in the penitentiary.

Williford and a companion, Littleton May, on September 12 held up and robbed a Washington taxicab driver, Edward E. Bowen, took his cab, and drove to a point near Richmond, where, it is charged by police, they robbed a filling station. The men were captured in Alexandria. May pleaded guilty and was sentenced to 10 years. Williford pleaded guilty to only a part of the charges.

Insull and Eftax Deny Acquaintance

Latter, Whose Cash Was Seized, Makes Oath.

Athens, Oct. 6 (AP).—Constantine Sotirous Eftax, whose Chicago bank account has been attached, said tonight he swore in an affidavit at the Athens American Consulate yesterday that I "never knew personally, met or had any relations" with Samuel Insull.

Extradition of Insull, former Chicago utilities operator, to the United States is being sought.

It was announced today that the hearing on the extradition plea had been postponed until next week.

Insull said he did not know Eftax, had never met him or heard of him.

6 Navy Planes Quit Panama for Coast

Only One Stop Scheduled in 3,296 Miles.

Six Navy planes which flew from Norfolk to Coco Solo, Panama, last month, plan to take-off today from the Canal Zone in a one-stop flight to San Diego, Calif., it was stated at the Navy Department yesterday.

In the Virginia-to-Panama flight the Naval aviators covered 2,059 miles, setting a new world's record for plane formation flight.

The fliers, under command of Lieut. Comdr. Knefler McGinnis, will hop to Acapulco, Mexico, a distance of 1,644 miles. Fuel will be taken on there. The second leg of the flight will be 1,648 miles.

Ramsey, Alleged Aid of Kelly, Indicted

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 6 (AP).—Langford Ramsey, young attorney and former brother-in-law of George "Machine Gun" Kelly, was named in four indictments returned by the Federal grand jury at Jackson, Tenn., today.

Mount Rainier Council Votes To Fix 'Holes' in Traffic Rules

Will Pass Law to Uphold Arrests of Alleged Violators.

There's little to be gained, it seems, in questioning a town council's authority. When a council finds itself without authority it proceeds to get it.

As a result of the traffic-violations controversy in Mount Rainier, town council yesterday decided to pass an ordinance providing authority for arresting motorists passing red lights at Rhode Island avenue and Thirty-second street.

Councilman F. B. Mathias charged the lights were at fault. He contended they were turned so motorists could not see them in time. But his contention was ineffective.

Though they voted for the motion authorizing Bird H. Dolby, corporation counsel, to draft the necessary ordinance on traffic violations, Councilmen Mathias and Norman Pruitt contended the action might hurt their demurrer to court action instituted by the American Automobile Association to test the legality of certain traffic arrests, particularly the arrest of Emily G. Smith, 1438 Meridian place northwest, on September 10.

In their demurrer the mayor and town councilmen contended they were not the proper defendant in the case.

Virginia Firms Balk at Bonds On Mortgages

Officials of Home Loan Owners Corporation Fretted by Stand.

Concern was expressed by officials of the Federal Home Loan Owners Corporation yesterday over virtual refusal of Virginia building and loan associations to accept the corporation's bonds in return for mortgages on Virginia homes.

Representatives of the Virginia associations have communicated to the board, officials said, virtual refusal to cooperate, indicating resentment of the corporation's interest in this field. Unless this attitude is changed, officials of the corporation doubt benefit of the Federal home owners' relief law in Virginia.

Foreclosures in Virginia, it was pointed out, declined only 10, from 245 to 235, the first eight months of this year, as compared with 1932.

Officials said Virginia building and loan associations promised cooperation in reducing foreclosures, but they fear that unless the associations accept the corporation bonds, the number will not be reduced materially.

Virginia Fraternal Order Names Officers

The fourth district council, Order of Fraternal Americans of Virginia, elected the following district deputy officers for the year.

Alton Money, president; L. A. Washburn, vice president; C. E. Babcock, secretary treasurer; F. U. Sanderson, chaplain; A. N. Crump, marshal; Wade Hamilton, warden; W. W. Wyncoop, inner guard, and J. F. Swart, outer guard.

Buttons Will Protect Mt. Rainier Safety Zones

Protective buttons will be installed to mark safety zones at car stops in Mount Rainier, the Washington Railway & Electric Co. announced yesterday.

The town will retain the white lines and plant the buttons. The zones are on Rhode Island avenue at Thirty-third and Thirty-fourth streets

Girl, 5, Rescued In Venezuela, On Way Here

Irma Welch Was Restored to Father by U. S.; Reaches Miami.

Miami, Fla., Oct. 6 (AP).—A shy little Venezuelan girl arrived here from South America today to make her home with her American father, following a separation that ended only after three years of diplomatic negotiations between the United States and her native country.

She is 5-year-old Irma Frances Welch, daughter of James E. Welch, of Shreveport, La., who was engaged in the oil business in Venezuela for years before he lost custody of his daughter and then went to Washington to wage a legal battle through the State Department for her return.

Irma was born in Ciudad, Bolivar, where she lived with her father and mother, who was a Venezuelan girl. Welch said his wife left home when the child was eight months old and never returned. A year later Irma was placed in custody of Domingo Savelli by order of a Venezuelan court.

Because of his efforts to regain custody of his daughter, Welch said he was arrested and kept in jail for 43 days. He was released, he said, "on the grounds that the whole procedure was illegal."

Leader Selected By Church Club

William Cavanaugh Heads Clarendon Group.

William J. Cavanaugh was elected president and big brother last night at an organization meeting of Columbus Boys Club of St. Charles Catholic Church in Clarendon.

Others elected included Albert Morris, first vice president; Francis Mattingan, second vice president; Albert Toulotte, financial secretary; James McCausland, recording secretary, and Charles Moore, sergeant at arms.

The club is sponsored by Edward Douglas White Council, Knights of Columbus.

Canada Will Pay Heavy Tax on Liquor to U. S.

Montreal, Oct. 6 (AP).—Canadian distillers who hope to sell their products in the United States if prohibition is repealed expect to face a heavier tax in shipping across the border than they pay in the domestic market.

The present Canadian tax is $7 per gallon of 760 ounces, while the tax in the United States will be $1.10 plus $5 import duty on a gallon of 128 ounces. In terms of the Canadian gallon, the American tax would be about $7.62.

Pole Removal May Be Asked At Underpass

12 Organizations' Aid Is Sought by Takoma Park Group.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 8706 Georgia Ave., Silver Spring, Md. Telephone Shepherd 2363.

Twelve organizations have been asked to sponsor a mass meeting to consider action to force the Potomac Electric Power Co. to relocate its poles at the Piney Branch underpass of the Baltimore & Ohio tracks.

J. Bond Smith, former counsel for Takoma Park, Md., and civic and political groups in Montgomery County made the request.

Smith points out that efforts by himself and property holders had failed to convince the electric company of the advisability of moving the posts and suggests the matter warrants calling a mass meeting.

Copies of his letter were sent to the District Commissioners, the Montgomery County Commissioners, the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission, the Fine Arts Commission, the District Public Utilities Commission, the Washington Board of Trade, Maj. E. Brooke Lee, of the Maryland State Roads Commission; the Takoma Park Chamber of Commerce, Takoma Park Community League and the citizens associations of Takoma Park (D. C.) and Maryland.

The company rejected as impracticable the proposals to provide underground cables, remove the wooden poles to rear lots or provide ornamental iron street lamp posts.

Loan Saves Home.

Montgomery County's first Home Owners Loan Corporation mortgage was filed yesterday at Rockville, Md. The mortgage was for $633.91 on the property of Mrs. Annie Coupard, 29 West Middle avenue, Rockville.

The loan was granted by the district office of the corporation at Hyattsville to recover the Coupard home, recently sold for taxes. Under the terms of the mortgage the home is deeded back to the Coupard family.

Reorganization Planned.

Republican Party reorganization in Montgomery County was forecast with the announcement that Walter W. Dawson, Rockville attorney and Republican member of the Maryland House of Delegates from Montgomery County, and James F. Mount, of Gaithersburg, have been named to the State central committee.

Dawson and Mount take the places left vacant by the resignation of Paul Sleman, of Chevy Chase, and Wilson L. Townsend, of Kensington.

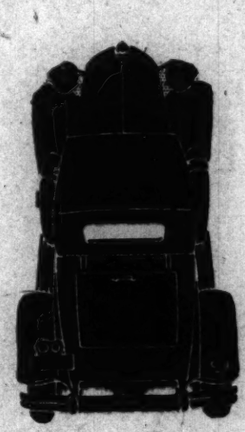

Dawson has been elected chairman of the committee. Election of a secretary-treasurer has been postponed. Other members from the county are Mrs. John A. Holmes, of Montrose; Mrs. Donald E. Clark, of Four Corners; Simon Smith, of Rockville, and Clarence C. Keiser, of Bethesda.

Kelly and Wife Plan to Enter Guilty Pleas

Seven Others in Urschel Case Will Receive Sentences.

Oklahoma City, Oct. 6 (AP).—District Attorney Herbert K. Hyde announced tonight that George (Machine Gun) Kelly, and his wife, Kathryn Kelly, will plead guilty tomorrow, disposing of the last of the principals indicted for the kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel, oil millionaire, last July 22.

The announcement followed conferences with Mrs. Kelly today and came after James H. Mathers, attorney for Kelly, had said the machine gunner would plead guilty in an effort to save his wife from punishment.

Seven others convicted in the kidnaping will come before Federal Judge Edgar S. Vaught tomorrow for sentencing. Among them is Mrs. Kelly's mother.

Motions for new trials and arrest of judgment filed in behalf of the seven were overruled by Judge Vaught today.

The Kellys, pleading guilty, will receive their sentences with Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Shannon and Shannon's son, Armon, on whose farm Urschel was held captive nine days; Harvey Bailey, Albert Bates, Edward "Barney" Berman and Clifford Skelly.

In the first trial Bates was pointed out by witnesses, including Urschel, as one of the kidnapers. Kelly also was named as one of the kidnapers.

Life imprisonment is the maximum penalty under the new "Lindbergh" abduction statute, which was attacked by defense attorneys today as unconstitutional.

Convicted Jailer Faces Bribe Trial

Bailey Aid Is Charged in Second Indictment.

Dallas, Tex., Oct. 6 (AP).—Bribery charges next face Thomas L. Manion, foreign war veteran who once "drank the pirates' oath in blood," and Grover C. Bevill, a butcher, convicted of aiding Harvey Bailey in the Labor Day escape from the Dallas jail.

"I am still innocent despite the jury verdict," said Manion, who was suspended as a deputy jailer after the escape.

Joseph Jones, assistant United States attorney, announced Manion and Bevill probably wil go on trial in January on an indictment charging them with bribery and conspiracy to accept a bribe.

How to Keep Well

(By Dr. W. A. Evans.)

Apraxia.

Some children have a natural inability to write; that is, they are outstandingly poor in penmanship. In some instances, this peculiarity is a part of the child's make-up, and may have been a part of his heritance. It is these cases that are under consideration. Just now we are not even thinking of the children who write poorly because they are awkward about everything, or even those who have no natural manual dexterity—who never can do things well with their hands. The limitation now is to those who are very poor in penmanship and who can not be taught by the use of copybooks or any other stereotyped school method. The word alexia is used to indicate those who have the inability of a peculiar kind to read. A companion word, apraxia, is used for the inability to achieve good penmanship.

Dr. S. T. Orton, who has done much valuable research in speech difficulties, attributes this type of lack of ability in penmanship, as well as difficulty in speaking words, to a rivalry between the two sides of the brain. All the thinking portions of the brain, at least, are built in duplicate. One set of the thinking machinery is on the right side of the head and goes by the name of the right hemisphere; while the set on the opposite side is called the left hemisphere. Between the two there is a wide, deep canyon, but at the lower and rear areas there are bands by which the two are connected. Commonly, the machinery on one side dominates and that on the other is either held in reserve or plays second fiddle. Since fibers from the left hemisphere serve the right side of the body, and since most persons are right-minded, right-footed and right-eyed, we know that customarily the left hemisphere dominates the right.

In the case of the left-handed people—who, incidentally, are left-footed and left-eyed—it is the right hemisphere which dominates. As a rule, the dominance of one side over the other is clear cut and well defined, and the other appears to be content to take orders. Occasionally the two continue to be rivals and to more or less interfere with each other all through life. That is the condition Dr. Orton thinks exists in typical alexias and apraxias.

Dr. Orton says some children with apraxia as to penmanship do mirror writing very well. Others write upside down without difficulty. [The people in this group have one qualification for a good room clerk in a hotel.]

He advises all parents and teachers of children of the poor penmanship group to study their charges as to mirror writing and upside down writing. The way those children hold their pens and the slant they give the letters they make will often indicate that the trouble is due to incomplete dominance of one side of the brain.

Another way of expressing the basic failure is to say that they fail to establish the adult pattern of cerebral dominance. When the difficulty with penmanship is found to be of this type the teaching should be directed to training the brain in dominance of one hemisphere and away from rivalry between hemispheres.

Radio Waves and Ripples

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, Newton Baker and Leopold Stokowski with his Philadelphia Symphony will radio for charity on Columbia networks a week from Sunday.

It's a radio send-off for Baker's National Mobilization of Human Needs committee.

The program is scheduled for a 10:30 p. m. opening, to continue for half an hour. Four more broadcasts to speed up the campaign against hunger and cold this winter will follow.

Both networks have made announcements of the Gompers memorial broadcasting today. The President is one of the speakers. Bishop James E. Freeman, of Washington Cathedral, gives the invocation. Other speakers are American Federation of Labor President Green and the Right Rev. John M. McNamara, auxiliary bishop of Baltimore diocese. Mr. Gompers' great-granddaughter, L. Shirley McKaye, unveils the statue. The program starts at 10:30 a. m. and continues an hour.

Whitecaps.

WOL—Wall Streeter, 12:45 p. m.; football scores, 5:57 p. m.; Central Union Mission Glee Club, 10 p. m. WJSV—Eddie Dooley, 6:30 p. m.; King's Henchmen, 7:30 p. m.: Symphonic Strings, 9:30 p. m. WRC—Georgia-Tulane football, 4 p. m.; Grau San Martin address, 8 p. m.; Lucky Strike, 9 p. m. WMAL—Waldorf-Astoria Orchestra, 8 p. m.; Jamboree, 9 p. m.; Cuckoo Program, 10:30 p. m.

To keep its policing powers intact, the Federal Radio Commission is compelling broadcasters to report all stock transfers when application for license renewal is made every six months.

There has been a growing tendency among radio license holders to sell studio facilities to a corporation, retaining the Federal license themselves. The commission has contended that inasmuch as studio stock can be transferred without its consent, the effect of the sale was transfer of the license without the written approval required by law.

The commission saw its prestige as policeman of the airwaves slipping away.

WOL shies at radio advice-givers. Often people do what loud speakers tell them. Sometimes they make mistakes thereby, bad ones, and right away the studio's in trouble.

That's one of the reasons why WOL took A. B. S. Advice Giver Ben Sweetland off the air. The other reason was that Advice Giver Sweetland was radioing what the trade knows as direct messages, speaking to the person involved as if in a telephone conversation, against Federal Radio Commission regulations. The advice-givers lead all broadcasters in popularity. The human appeal is sure fire. WOL, however, likes to avoid complications.

The WMAL-WRC statistics department wants listeners to know the station's fan mail receipts are looking better.

Last month the total was 6,339 letters, all signed. Of these, 4,000 or so were for the WMAL Breakfast Club, 700 for Pianist Jimmy Harbison. Last year in the same month the best both stations could do was 1,250.

Things like that make the bosses happy.

Dominican Tenor Eduardo Caso, whom WMAL likes to consider a "find" despite microphone experience elsewhere, has received four weeks of broadcasting starting this morning at 10:15. Rudolph Schramm will be there with a concert piano. In his spare time, Caso is the Pampas Nights tenor for N. B. C.'s Southeast network.

Miss Mattie Gibson, Children's Hospital superintendent, was called to the phone right in the middle of the recent furnace fund broadcast.

Asked a feminine voice: "Weren't you nursing at St. Paul's Hospital in Manila about 20 years ago?"

"Yes."

Replied the voice: "Well, you nursed me."

Miss Gibson didn't catch the voice's name, but heard it promise to come over some time.

WJSV will be on the air until 12:30 Sunday morning with the Los Angeles NRA broadcast. The Los Angeles Philharmonic Symphony, Opera Tenor Sandy Mackenzie and the usual number of movie people will be the principal microphoners. The program will open at midnight, just in case you're near a loud speaker at that time. And who isn't, any time?

Alexandria Ministerial Association leads off with the Rev. J. M. Jennings, Free Methodist Church pastor. The association begins a long broadcast series through WJSV this morning at 7 o'clock.

Washington has heard that Bernard Brown, onetime WRC and WJSV announcer, has taken himself a wife on the West Coast. The former Louise Brown, Capital girl, is the bride.

Ice Box "Safe" Robbed of $100.

Thieves broke into a store at 2814 Thirteenth street yesterday and stole $100 from an ice box, used by the proprietor, James Bevans, as his safe, he reported to police.

From a Pacific Coast high school Leah Ray was graduated to radio and the movies. She sings with Phil Harris and N. B. C. Friday mornings. Hollywood gave her a job in a Maurice Chevalier picture. Henry Therriah is a "Painter of Song" for the Ed Wynn chain. He's a tenor of operatic stature.

Retail Prices.

In its October review the National City Bank of New York discusses the prospects and causes of the expected increases in retail prices during the early fall and winter. According to the Fairchild index of department store prices, there was a rise of nearly 19 per cent in such prices between May 1 and September 1, and the compiler of the index hazards the opinion that during the next few months the average advance from the low point will approximate 35 per cent.

One of the reasons given for anticipating a continuance of the upward movement of prices is the fact that in all cases stocks on hand have not been marked up to the current replacement basis. It is said, for example, that on September 1 men's suits were selling at retail in some instances for prices below current wholesale figures. The review warns against hastily concluding that sharp advances in retail prices are proof of profiteering.

Until the causes of retail price increases are more fully understood judgment should be suspended. It must be remembered that, at each stage of production, costs are being increased by adoption of codes, processing taxes are being added in some instances, raw materials are advancing in price, and provisions limiting or eliminating discounts are being embodied in trade agreements.

Repeal Problems.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has made a contribution to the study of liquor control in the form of a report on conditions and control measures in Canada and European countries as well as in the American States. Two investigators—Raymond B. Fosdick, lawyer, and Albert L. Scott, engineer—have completed a survey of liquor control measures at the request of Mr. Rockefeller. Their findings and conclusions are to be placed at the disposal of State officials and citizens who are attempting to formulate measures to replace Federal prohibition.

The report carries the indorsement of Mr. Rockefeller. Until last year he was an ardent supporter of prohibition. But he became convinced that "in the attempt to bring about total abstinence through prohibition, an evil even greater than intemperance resulted; namely, a nation-wide disregard for law, with all the attendant abuses that followed in its train." With unusual candor, Mr. Rockefeller reversed his stand and aligned his influence behind the repeal movement. Now he is trying to promote the cause of temperance without resort to compulsion.

In considering the objectives to be sought under the new setup the Rockefeller report places the abolition of lawlessness first. "Any program offered in lieu of the eighteenth amendment," says Mr. Rockefeller, "must make that its chief aim, even if—and I weigh carefully what I say—the immediate result is temporarily away from temperance." In view of the close alliance between bootlegging, racketeering and the activities of gangdom, there will be widespread sympathy with this attitude.

"The second objective," says Mr. Rockefeller, "is the focusing of all the forces of society upon the development of self-control and temperance as regards the use of alcoholic beverages." In concurrence with his investigators, he regards elimination of "the profit motive" from the liquor traffic as of vital importance, and believes that taxes on intoxicants should be levied primarily to end lawlessness and foster temperance, with the production of revenue as only a secondary objective.

Some dissent from this latter viewpoint may be expected. The administration hopes to obtain a stream of revenue from the liquor trade to finance relief projects and permit abolition of nuisance taxes now in effect. Likewise some States are planning to draw heavily upon the liquor business for revenue. It is quite likely that the desire for greater income will determine the immediate policy as to liquor taxes.

The information in the Rockefeller report may have an important influence upon proposed solutions of the liquor problem.

The End of Boobery.

H. L. Mencken is breaking into the news again. But this time, instead of announcing some new object of his derision, he issues a statement that he is retiring from the editorship of the American Mercury.

It might seem perfectly natural that a man who for ten years has been bound to a stiff schedule of editing and writing, should want to resign out of sheer fatigue. But whoever knows Mr. Mencken's writings or his personality knows that it is not a question of fatigue at all. His energy remains phenomenal.

No, it is not Mr. Mencken who is worn out. The truth is this: it is the vast target of his long abuse that is worn out. For twenty years he has belabored, with battering-ram, flail, and laughing-gas, the millions of American citizens whom he called "boobs" and "morons," and whose self-expression was "buncombe."

He jeered at their booster clubs and their mystic orders; he denounced their preaching of prosperity-time business "service" and their adulation of "constructive criticism;" and when he thought of their prohibition, he blew up.

His method was not that of the old scold. For with high inspiration he discovered that the best cure for all the social ills of the Nation was laughter—a healthy, Rabelaisian, air-clearing roar of mirth.

He roared down through the decades, and finally by the very force of his breath, blew his foes asunder. He exploded the boobery. And now he himself, regretfully, has been forced to realize the fact. He lashed so well that the enemy lies stretched out on the field, unable to offer any more resistance. There is nothing left for him to do but to wipe the gore off his piratical cutlass, push the steel home in its scabbard, and trudge off the scene, an unhappy victor.

The rest of his lifetime—he is only a little over fifty—will be devoted to longer and more theoretical literary works. He will bring up to date his masterpiece of American scholarship, "The American Language." There probably will be an end to his magnificent tirades of abuse punctuated by their songs in praise of beer and excellent living. The boisterousness will subside at last.

The danger of it all is that the country may begin to regard as a classic the man who always prided himself on being an incurable iconoclast. It is a sad prospect. But one could expect little else from a man so paradoxical as to be both the Nation's first gustatorian and its leading grammarian.

The Zero Hour.

Again the Nationals dip their flag to the incomparable Hubbell. But they do so with honor, after the best fought game of the world series, lasting eleven innings. Washington seemed on the point of winning in the eleventh, but an unlucky grounder to Ryan dispatched two men, with bases full and only one man out.

It was a heartbreaking finish, from the viewpoint of excited fans, and especially since it greatly increased the handicap under which the Nationals now labor in striving for the pennant. They must win the remaining three of a possible seven games, while the Giants can lose here and in New York Sunday and still be even with the Nationals.

Yesterday's game differed greatly from that of Thursday. The distinguishing feature of yesterday's battle was teamwork—magnificent teamwork on both sides, with Hubbell slightly better than Weaver in the box. With the exception of Terry's homer and Moore's double, the batting was without marked individuality. The infielding of both teams was superb, as the score indicates. Weaver seemed to weaken in the eleventh, and was replaced by Russell. Some of the fans believed that if Cronin had sent in Rice as a pinch hitter instead of Bolton in the eleventh the game would have been won—but these are in the class of Maud Muller's romance of what "might have been."

Terry's strategy in conserving Hubbell threatens to win the series for the Giants. Hubbell can rest a while, and yet come in at the crucial time, while the Nationals have no counterpart in the pitcher's box.

In the remaining games, if more than one is to come, the Nationals must have all the luck and the Giants all the bad breaks if the world pennant is to float from the dome of the Capitol. But who can doubt that good fortune and the do or die spirit may work wonders in baseball? History is full of instances in which victory has been snatched from the jaws of disaster. If the Nationals will now do the snatching, with one or two friendly "assists" from Lady Luck, their fame will be all the greater because of the odds that have accumulated against them.

Poland's "Elite" Senate.

The "government bloc" in Poland, which holds sufficient power to make its plans effective, announces through its chairman that the constitution of the republic is to be changed during the coming winter. A senate is to be created, having legislative powers coequal with the diet, and presumably certain executive powers.

The most novel feature of this change is the fact that ordinary voters will not participate in the election of senators. The government will nominate one-third of the number, and the others will be elected, according to the official statement, by "the elite of the nation, that is to say persons who are distinguished by special talents fitting them for directing the fortunes of the state—persons considerably above the common run."

These superior individuals are identified by their membership in the Polish "Virtuti Militari" order and as holders of the "Independence Cross." They are mainly persons who have distinguished themselves upon the field of battle, as the decorations are given only for military services. While there may be a few swivel-chair holders of these decorations, the bulk of the elite electorate will be war veterans.

A great improvement upon democracy is anticipated from this new "elitarian" system. The common people are not to have everything their own way. The government and the veterans will have power to check them. By some mysterious method not known to the outside world, all Poles holding war decorations are thereby ascertained to be "distinguished by special talents," making them more highly qualified than mere citizens to direct the state. As the government distributes the medals, it can increase at will the number of persons possessing special talents—an advantage not possessed by any other nation of people. By judicious bestowal of decorations the government doubtless can increase the number of senators under its control by much more than one-third of that elite body.

There is much food for thought in this novel political departure in Poland. Hard-pressed administrations in democratic countries, harassed by tyrannical and capricious electorates, may envy the good fortune of the Polish government in finding a way to rise superior to the common run of voters. And yet, if the projected new Polish senate should prove subservient to its masters, like other poor mortal legislative bodies, what would prevent it from insisting upon a huge bonus for its constituents, the wearers of medals, and deadlocking the diet until it accepted the bill?

But it is unnecessary to borrow trouble in regard to the Polish reform. A government that can make a constitution can mend it. If it deprives its citizens of political equality their only recourse is to make their own constitution and then subject their government to it. This was done by Americans in the brave days of old, although nowadays many Americans seem to believe that their government is not subject to the Constitution.

The National Library.

The Library of Congress has become one of the most useful institutions in the United States. In 1800 it was established for the special purpose of furnishing legislative reference service to members of Congress. From that humble beginning it has become a national library.

In recent years the library has grown rapidly. Congress recognized the urgent need for more space in 1930 when it authorized an addition and an annex to the library building at a cost not exceeding $6,500,000. The addition is now almost completed, at an expenditure of $1,475,000. Construction of a five-story annex to cost more than $5,000,000 will begin soon under an allotment of $2,800,000 from the public works fund.

With the completion of these additional quarters, the Library of Congress will be in a class by itself. The main building, which has been occupied since 1897, is the largest, most ornate, and most costly library structure in the world. The original investment in a national library is now to be doubled. Space available for books, manuscripts, maps, magazines, motion picture films, etc., as well as for study and research, will be greatly extended.

This American national library has especially fine book collections in the fields of history, political and social science, bibliography, public law and legislation, the fine arts, local American history, biography and genealogy. Recently valuable collections of incunabula have been added to its store of literary treasures. Close at hand is the Folger Shakespeare Library, which is unequaled by any other institution devoted to a single literary figure.

Scholars from all parts of this country and from many foreign lands come to Washington to take advantage of the Library of Congress. The service which this institution renders to Congress and the executive departments is but a small part of its work. University, State and municipal libraries may borrow from this central institution many books which they do not possess and are unable to obtain elsewhere. Further extension of the library's service to the country as a whole may be expected as its facilities are enlarged.

Some senators want an extra session and some senators don't, thus maintaining the time-honored equilibrium of that august body.

The Nationals simply must not deprive New Yorkers of the pleasure of two more outings at Coogan's Bluff.

When John Barleycorn becomes the biggest taxpayer in the country he will create a precedent if he doesn't squawk.

After having voted for repeal, several States discover that they are dry after all, anyhow, and nevertheless.

No one objects to the pork barrel when its contents go to feed the hungry.

A Big Noisy World.

By William Ullman.

It is a different world for some tens of thousands of our fellow beings. A far larger, more threatening and bewildering world.

Time, six years of it, has pushed outward the boundaries of their daily routine. Until now they have lived in a realm limited to the immediate vicinity of the place they have known as home. Save for their shortest voyages over its borders, they have been accompanied by an adult; guarded with a care that can not fail to have transmitted to their consciousness the strong implication that the larger world is fraught with danger and misadventure.

Now these thousands have started to school.

Bravely they venture forth every day into a sphere peopled with strange and unsympathetic adults who move with lightning speed in a most mystifying and disconcerting way. To the verbal warnings he has been given to be careful, the 6-year-old feels an instinctive sense that something is seriously amiss in a world so large and which moves with such a noisy flight of speed.

Let the motorist read his eyes as he stands at the crossing waiting. The intelligent one can not fail to see in them the child's profound sense of his pitiable smallness, his unfitness to cope with his big, new world. A glance should be sufficient to inform any thinking adult that the youngster's weak guard is down.

If, however, the youngster is helpless, the adult is not.

Unlimited is his opportunity to welcome this newcomer among the elements that compose traffic, to minimize his fears, to take from his eyes that quality of wistfulness. These are things that can be done only by those whose traffic wisdom contains a large element of sympathy. Into that group every motorist would prefer to be. Into it, unfortunately, many never find themselves, for they forget to observe and reflect upon the expression of the 6-year-old who every year at this time becomes a new segment in the thing called "traffic."

A Fly in the Ointment.

The Once Over.

By H. I. Phillips.

THE BALLAD OF THE BACK SEAT DRIVER.
(In the more than old-fashioned manner.)

I.

'Twas at a crowded crossing—
Crowds hastened to the spot
Whence came a cry of anguish
And one loud pistol shot.
Inside an automobile
There lay a woman dead;
Beside it stood the driver
Who with emotion said:

Chorus.

"I am this lady's husband;
Long years ago we wed.
I loved her very dearly
But shot her through the head.
I p'raps should not have killed her—
It is not right to slay—
But with these back seat drivers
It is the only way!"

II.

As crowds then swarmed about him
He knelt beside his wife
And said: "My sweet, you forced me
To turn and take your life;
You gave too many orders
On each and ev'ry ride."
Then, summoning a copper,
He very softly cried:

(Chorus.)

III.

They took him to the hoosegow
And threw him in a cell.
"If you'd kept still," he muttered,
"You'd be alive and well.
You'd always give directions
To stop or turn or go"—
Then, calling to the sergeant
He cried: "I'd have you know:

(Chorus.)

IV.

All night he lay and muttered:
"I'm very sorry, dear.
But, sweet, you drove me nutty
By shouting in my ear.
When I would take a north road
You'd say: 'The right road's south!'"
Then to a chief detective
These words came from his mouth:

(Chorus.)

V.

To court he soon was taken,
Where, mopping up a tear,
He sobbed: "She drove me to it
By orders from the rear.
In most confusing traffic
She'd bellow what to do,
And as I told the others
I also say to you:"

(Chorus.)

VI.

"She'd tell me when to light up,
And when to blow my horn,
And shriek 'Your brakes are burning—
I know the bands are worn!'
She'd call me down for coasting,
And criticize the way
I'd turn around in traffic—
And so, dear judge, I say:"

(Chorus.)

VII.

"On week day or on Sunday
She'd tell me where to go,
And bawl me out for speeding
And squawk if I went slow.
She'd criticize the route that
I'd pick out to the shore;
She never kept her mouth shut—
And, as I said before:"

(Chorus.)

VIII.

The judge and jury listened,
Then rose and set him free.
"Your act was justified," they said,
"And we do all agree.
We know how much you suffered,
How tortured was your mind
Each time you took her driving.
And this is what we find:

Chorus.

"You were the lady's husband;
Long years ago you wed.
You loved her very dearly
But shot her through the head.
You p'raps should not have killed her—
It is not right to slay—
But with these back seat drivers
It is the only way."

Daily Talk About Books and Authors

THE GREATEST LOVE STORY IN THE WORLD

It is not at all surprising that the most successful play in the theater during the last 10 years is "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," because it is a dramatic version of the greatest love story of which we have any record. It is greater in this one respect than the story of Romeo and Juliet, of Heloise and Abelard, of Paul and Virginia, of Tristan and Nicolette, or any of the favorite tales of love. And it is all true and it had a happy ending.

Transfusion of blood is a familiar method of saving life or of giving strength to the weak. But transfusion of spirit is equally efficacious. The fact is that Elizabeth Barrett was slowly dying; the fact is that the love of Robert Browning made her well. She said in later years, "All a woman needs to be happy is life, love, and Italy; and I have all three."

From the moment she left her father's house in London until the moment when she died, 15 years later, in Robert's arms, in Florence, not a single letter passed between them, for they were never separated a single day. Whatever may be thought of Browning's poetry, there can be no doubt that he was the champion husband of all time.

Their story may be read in a dozen biographies, as well as in the popular play. But their own version was told by Elizabeth in her "Sonnets from the Portuguese" and by Robert in "One Word More."

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Red-Headed Daughter

By Robert Quillen.

My dear Louise:

The saddest fact in human experience is youth's unwillingness or inability to learn the way from those who have traveled it before.

I could weep, if I knew how, when I think of the hard knocks I might have avoided if I had accepted the advice of those who were older and wiser.

Perhaps you will persist in making your own mistakes, but at least I can tell you where the traps are and point out the things I would do and not do if I had another chance.

I would finish my schooling. The things you are learning in school now may never be of practical use, but the experience is doing you good. A college diploma stiffens the backbone, and anything capable of doing that is worth having.

I would force myself to be a "good mixer." A natural shyness and a few rebuffs robbed me of that advantage. Develop the habit of enjoying people and you will escape the boredom that oppresses the aloof and the timid.

Don't fix your heart on one buddy—or two or three—and let the rest of the world go by. Buddies move away or die as the years pass and it isn't easy to find new ones when you are no longer young. Keep making friends so the loss of one or two won't leave you bankrupt.

Learn to enjoy good music while you are young. There is something sublime in the best music that soothes and uplifts and purifies the spirit. If you develop a taste for jazz alone, you will lose part of your natural inheritance.

Learn, also, to appreciate good literature. A taste for trash in books is like any other taste for things that are low grade and common and vulgar. It keeps your mind in the gutter. You can't rise above the level of the stuff you enjoy reading.

Don't hurt anybody's feelings. It is easy, through carelessness or indifference, to offend people who never have harmed you and make them bitter enemies.

But don't try to please everybody, either. It can't be done and the effort will kill your self-respect. Just do the thing that seems right to you and give no thought to the effect it will have on your popularity.

You were brought up in Sunday school, as I was. Don't lose contact with the church. Modern critics ridicule religion, but it will help you and console you in time of trouble as nothing else can.

Before you learn to smoke or form any other habit, observe whether it has made other people healthier and happier; and before you accept any teaching or philosophy or 'ism, observe whether it has made its followers more kind and tolerant and charitable.

There is high adventure in blazing new and better trails, but it is silly to walk through the briars if you know in advance the briars are there. Love, DAD.

Press Comment

A Double-Edged Sword.

Houston Post.

President Roosevelt has forged a double-edged sword with which to attack the depression by ordering the formation of a corporation to buy necessities of life and distribute them among the unemployed.

The sum of $330,000,000, part of the fund provided by Congress for emergency relief, is available as capital for the corporation. These hundreds of millions of dollars will be expended in buying surplus food products and other commodities needed by the unemployed for subsistence. A new demand for all these products thus will be created and supplies that have been in storage and doing no one any good will be sent into consumption.

The spectacle of warehouses and storage plants bulging with food while millions lacked for enough to eat has been one to disturb thoughtful Americans. It was a spectacle that impressed upon the country as scarcely anything else could that something was wrong with its distributive system.

Debts and Disarmament.

Manchester Guardian.

Since the Europeans showed no sign of being so conscience stricken over their debts as to give up their armaments, and since the United States has obviously at last to consider the question of the debts on their own economic basis (for almost nothing of them is now being paid), it is not profitable any longer to pretend to connect the two questions. If, for instance, the United States were to say to France "Unless you disarm we can not let you off your debt," the French, who do not propose to pay in any case, would remain completely unmoved.

The Price of It.

Lowell Courier-Citizen.

One price of our functioning as a creditor nation and of our not accepting payment of debts in goods is 40,000,000 idle acres, so says Secretary of Agriculture Wallace. Only by raising smaller crops on fewer acres can agricultural production be geared to the national capacity to consume it. Logical as it appears to cut down on the inferior acreage in order that the farmer holding some of the best land may get a living for his products, the problem is left of those who are displaced from the 40,000,000 acres which must be cut out of service. Is the place for these people in the already crowded cities, or should they just go under the ground which they are no longer to till?

Along the Potomac

With Carlisle Bargeron

THE movement of Messrs. Peek and Howe to bring all the local dry goods retailers before them seems to have a most laudable purpose and should be supported by the populace with that zeal which we reserve for the most laudable things.

Bargeron.

As I understand it, the purpose is to bring about coordination or synchronization, an integration or a fusion, of the explanations for their price increases. The letter to the merchants asking them to come before the Agri on next Wednesday, makes no complaint about the increases in themselves. The trouble seems to be that different merchants are giving different explanations to their customers.

Such a loosely-knitted situation as this manifestly can not be permitted to stand in a structure whose life depends upon concert of effort and unity of thought.

* * * *

MESSRS. Peek and Howe, it seems, were moved to call upon the merchants because of the appalling conditions in the local stores which their investigators found. Sleuths were sent out disguised as shoppers. It is not my understanding that they adopted false mustaches and wigs but, instead, adopted a very simple ruse to fool the sales girls, the ruse of buying things. I hadn't thought of it before, but now that it is brought up there is no escaping the fact that the way to make a sales girl think you are a shopper is to buy something.

The cleverness displayed in this instance worked perfectly. The sales girls, thinking they were dealing with customers, naively recited the explanation for the price increases that had been given to them by their employers. In some instances they said the increases were due to the processing tax on cotton; in others, the blame was placed not alone on the processing tax, but on it and the increased overhead costs caused by the NRA.

It is my impression that it is the tendency to blame it all on the processing tax that Messrs. Peek and Howe want to stop. This is something very dear to them. At least, it is to Mr. Peek, who had to do with applying it, and apparently he has elicited Prof. Howe's concern. This gentleman is supposed to be the consumer's counsel, but in this particular endeavor the more proper title might be that of defender of the processing tax.

* * * *

ANYWAY, one can appreciate the insidiousness of the processing tax explanation. Who knows but that it is Nation-wide that all over the country there are merchants who have told their salespeople to tell the customers the processing tax on cotton is responsible for the price increase on the goods which they purchase? Our people are in a most impressionable mood just at this time and the planting in their minds day after day of this seditious suggestion can bring about incalculable harm, that is, against the processing tax.

Even if the processing tax is being attacked from behind by only some of our Washington merchants the harm can not be minimized. A large part of the customers here are transients and by word of mouth on the train and in other towns the suggestion subtly given them by local sales girls receives widespread circulation. The Agri would put out the fire in its center.

ASIDE from the danger to the processing tax, however, there is need for uniformity in the price increase explanations. If we are to have uniformity of wages, uniformity of hours, uniformity of prices and uniformity of thinking, it stands to reason there should be uniformity of explanations. Otherwise, the explanations will stand out like an old maid's stocking in an otherwise well-rounded, uniform structure.

This is not to suggest the explanation formula that should be worked out at the conference, whether all merchants should agree to explain the increases by the processing tax or by the NRA, or by the processing tax, the NRA, et cetera. The conferees, indeed, should meet with open minds.

But they ought to evolve a standard explanation, one that can stand the test of the Bureau of Standards, in fact.

Just Folks.

Brotherhood.

"Am I my brother's keeper?" answered Cain,
When questioned of his brother, Abel, slain.
And since such record keepings first began
This phrase has lingered on the lips of man.
Still is it heard: "Oh, is it mine to care
What miseries my brother has to bear?
Lord, is it not enough that I must see
That I have food and all is well with me?"

Suppose a plague should fall upon the town,
Would it not trouble men of great renown
To learn that on some little nearby street
Were those, perhaps, they once had scorned to meet Sore-stricken with the malady? And would
They not unite with all the neighborhood
To win to health and happiness again
The very humblest of their fellow men?

Welfare Ball Will Be Given On October 25

Women's Association, Sponsoring Affair, Arranges Musical Program.

An outstanding social event of the early season is the Welfare Ball to be given at the Willard Hotel Wednesday, October 25, by the Women's Welfare Association of the free clinic department of the McCue Medical and Endocrine Clinic, 1422 Massachusetts avenue northwest. The Welfare Ball is being given to secure funds to enable them to carry on their splendid work.

Members of the committee in charge are Miss Edith Cockerille, president of the association; Mrs. Emma Hite, vice president; Mrs. Ruby S. Van Ness, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Raymond V. Marron, Mrs. Charles H. Walleigh and Mrs. Alys McKey Bryant.

The entertainment committee, through efforts of the chairman, Mrs. Bryant, has obtained outstanding Washington talent as an additional feature.

The Lovette Choral Club, trained and directed by Mrs. Eva Whitford Lovette and composed of 30 Washington women, is on the program. They were heard in a series of broadcasts last season and their numbers for the program are "The Bells of St. Mary's" and a beautiful medley of southern songs, numbers welcome to all music lovers.

For those privileged to hear Washington's own nationally famous harpist, Mme Edythe Marmion Brosius, an enjoyable musical treat is in store. Mme. Brosius is deeply interested in social welfare work and her interest in the work being done by the Women's Welfare Association is directly responsible for her appearance.

Mrs. Roosevelt Praises Hopkins' Relief Work

Mrs. Roosevelt had high praise for the effective work of Harry L. Hopkins, Federal emergency relief administrator, in distributing surplus food to the needy, at her press conference this week.

She said Mr. Hopkins displayed remarkable executive ability, and his broad point of view had been very important to the needs of the Nation in this crisis. She expressed her own interest in the distributing of surplus food where it could do most good and said she failed to see the point in having surplus food and not using it where it is most needed.

British Fleet Chief Honored At Luncheon

Mr. and Mrs. McCrea Are Hosts to Admiral and Mrs. Drax.

One of the outstanding social events of the week was the luncheon given by Mr. and Mrs. Archibald M. McCrea on Tuesday at Carter's Grove in compliment to Vice Admiral Reginald A. R. Plunkett-Ernle-Erle-Drax and Mrs. Drax. Admiral Drax, commander in chief of the American and West Indies station of the British Navy, concluded a visit to Norfolk the following day, sailing aboard his flagship, H. M. S. Norfolk, for Bermuda.

Before luncheon Mr. and Mrs. McCrea's guests visited Williamsburg, where they viewed the restoration of the colonial capital of Virginia now under way. Some of the guests laso motored through Yorktown and viewed the Colonial National Monument there.

Grilled Meats and Vegetables Ever Favored

Ruth Chambers Suggests Excellent Variety of Mixed Dishes.

By Ruth Chambers.

The housewife in search of something a bit different to tempt the family appetites will do well to try the "combination grill," a clever way of serving two or more kinds of meat with various vegetables and fruits. This service has long been practiced by restaurants but is equally adaptable for use in the home. Not only do the combined foods lend new flavor to each other but this way of serving may be neatly worked into an economy budget since small amounts of food which might otherwise be wasted can thus be utilized.

This method of cooking is to be used for those meats and vegetables which are broiled (for grilling is another name for broiling). Although vegetables cooked in another way may be included in the combination grill, usually it consists of grilled vegetables and acid fruits cooked in the grill pan with the meat.

Vegetables such as tomatoes, eggplant, cucumbers, white and sweet potatoes, carrots, beets and turnips make attractive combinations with lamb chops, ground steak, little link sausages or sausage cakes, bacon, sweetbreads or ham. Fruits such as apples, bananas, pineapple and sometimes apricots and peaches, are cooked in grill combination.

Here is a way of grilling lamb chops with mushrooms, eggplant and pineapple.

Lamb Chop Grill.

Use Saratoga chops (cut from the boned and rolled shoulder of lamb). Brown four chops on one side. Place the chops in the center of the grill pan or fireproof platter. At one end place four slices of eggplant which have been dotted with butter and sprinkled with grated cheese. At the other end place four slices of pineapple which have been dipped in melted butter. In between place four mushroom caps which have been dipped in melted butter. Place the grill pan on the tray of the broiler oven about two inches from the gas burner and turn the flame down to what would be about moderate oven temperature. Cook until the chops are done and the eggplant and pineapple are browned.

Ground Steak Grill.

Ground steak makes a good grill combination with tomatoes and sweet potatoes. It is cooked just as the chops are. The sweet potatoes are especially good if a paste of 4 tablespoons brown sugar and 2 tablespoons butter are made to spread over them. A garnish of a sprig of parsley or of watercress and a cube of tart jelly or a dash of paprika can be used to add color to this grill.

Lamb Grills.

Lamb is especially good for use in a mixed grill, and here are a few suggestions for combinations:

Broiled lamb chop, 2 small link sausages, 2 bacon curls, fried pineapple slice for each person to be served.

Broiled lamb chop, 2 narrow slices fried liver, slice of broiled bacon, French fried onion.

Broiled lamb chop, broiled lamb kidney, sliced fried eggplant.

Lamb patties (ground lamb cakes wrapped in bacon), fried apple rings.

Lamb tidbit (small squares of lamb steak marinated in French dressing, slipped onto a large skewer with alternate slices of tomato and broiled mushroom), bacon curls, sausage.

Broiled lamb chop, small slice broiled ham, French fried potatoes, broiled tomatoes, sliced and sprinkled with grated cheese.

Broiled lamb chop, bacon curls, sausage patty, broiled mushroom.

Lamb timbales, slice broiled ham, broiled mushroom cap.

Here is another delicious lamb chop combination grill:

Combination Grill.

6 lamb chops, cut thick
6 potatoes, cooked
6 onions, medium sized
6 peach halves
6 slices bacon
6 whole cloves
3 tablespoons grated cheese
½ cup cracker crumbs
3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons sugar.
Salt and pepper

Lay the chops in a sizzling hot frying pan. Sear quickly on both sides, then reduce the heat and panbroil about 10 minutes, pouring off the fat as it collects. Parboil onions, remove the centers, dust with salt and fill with bits of American cheese and cracker crumbs. Place a bit of butter on top and sprinkle with sugar to glaze.

Place the partially cooked chops on a fireproof platter; arrange slices of cooked potatoes, stuffed onions and peach halves into which a clove has been stuck. Season with salt and pepper. Put the bacon slices on the potatoes and place in a moderate oven (350 degrees) until chops are done and vegetables browned.

Children Get Sleepy, Call Off School Strike

Brownsville, Pa.—Sleepiness overcame one strike in the bituminous coal fields. Children at Jefferson took a "holiday" and picketed the school, demanding, "Fire those kids whose fathers ain't (tsk! tsk!) members of the union. Fire teachers not in sympathy with our cause." The picket lines melted away along toward dusk as drowsiness set in, and pupils were back in school soon.

Lemon Shines Brass.

To clean brass and restore its shine, use a lemon. Peel and cut the fruit in two pieces. Rub the cut surface well over the brass article. Wash off lemon well and polish, first with a dry, then with a woolly cloth. Rub very hard to make a bright shine.

Pears in High Season Now: What Desserts They Make

They're Excellent Baked, Spiced, Chipped or Combined With Rice in Conde; Pear Pie Is Delicious.

Time to stock up with ginger root or Canton ginger (put up in sirup and sold in jars). Because the firm kind of pears that are fine for cooking are back in market again. And pears without ginger are like apple pie without cheese, if not more so!

That goes for baked pears and pear chip (as popular now as in gran'ma's day) and pear conde, too—which actor Clive Brook declares is the peer of all pear desserts.

For all these good dishes, let me repeat again, you need the winter type of pear—juicy but firm. Summer pears are too soft to be cooked successfully.

And here's how you bake 6 of these large, firm pears so as to make the most of their delicate flavor: First, pare them. (If you leave them whole they'll need about 3 hours to bake. If you cut them in halves or quarters and core them they'll bake in 1½ to 2 hours). Then put them in a glass or earthen baking dish, sprinkle over them half cup sugar, pour over one-third cup water, add a piece of ginger root (about 1 inch long) and 6 whole cloves. Cover tightly and bake in a very slow oven (250 F.) till tender.

Pear Chip.

For the lovely golden marmalade known as pear chip you put the same combination of ingredients together this easy way: First, slice 4 pounds of winter pears (weighed after peeling and coring) in thin bits, like chips. Put them into a large enamel kettle in layers, sprinkling each layer with sugar (3 pounds in all) and 6 tablespoons of lemon juice. Let stand overnight. Then drop in 2 ounces of whole ginger root. Heat slowly to the boiling point. Continue cooking slowly till the mixture is clear and thick, like marmalade (45 to 60 minutes). Pour into sterilized glasses and seal.

Pear Conde.

The famous pear conde combines pears and Canton ginger with rice, like this: First, peel, core and quarter 3 large, firm pears. Put them in saucepan with ¼ cup sugar, ¼ cup water, 2 teaspoons sirup from Canton ginger. Cover tightly and simmer gently till tender. Meanwhile, beat up 2 egg yolks slightly with fork, add 3 tablespoons sugar, ½ cup rich milk or thin cream, stir in 1½ cups cooked rice and heat thoroughly over hot water in top of double boiler. Then make a flat mound of the rice in a shallow serving dish, lay the pears over it (rounded sides up) and sprinkle 3 tablespoons chopped Canton ginger over all.

Pear Pie.

Pear pie? Yes, it's delicate and delicious, made like this: Peel, core and slice 8 large, juicy pears. Line a 9-inch pie tin with pastry. Put pears in pastry in layers, sprinkling with ¾ cup sugar, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, and dotting with 2 tablespoons butter. Cover with lattice top of pie crust in half-inch strips. Bake 10 minutes in oven at 450 F. Then reduce heat to 350 and bake till pears are done (about 30 minutes).

Mrs. Lewis, Palm Reader, Is Oracle Of Senate Ladies

The ladies of the Senate will have little difficulty in finding out just what will happen in that coterie of official hostesses this winter if they consult their own oracle, Mrs. J. Hamilton Lewis, wife of the senator from Illinois, the famous society palmist and fortune teller.

Mrs. Lewis does it all for fun, of course, and her gypsy tent always is a popular feature of Washington charity events. Reading palms has been Mrs. Lewis' hobby since, as a girl of 6, she stole away from her Georgia plantation home to have her fortune told, in dread lest her mother hear of it.

Senator Lewis is in Washington already and Mrs. Lewis will join him here later in the season, being engrossed, as are all Chicago ladies at the moment, with entertaining visitors to the Century of Progress Exposition.

Mrs. Lewis has read the palms of famous people in many parts of the world, for sport and for charity. Presidents, ambassadors, soldiers and heroes of America and Europe have tried to glimpse the future through her readings. Once she read the hand of a man and told him he would become President of the United States—and he did. But she will not tell his name.

It is said she has never told Senator Lewis' fortune, having consistently refused to do so. Next to fortune telling, Mrs. Lewis enjoys covering national political conventions. A capable writer, as a subdebutante in New York she got an assignment to interview Li Hung Chang, China's grand old man, for the New York Times. She scooped the town with a three-hour interview, during which she had tea with the distinguished visitor and received a proposal of marriage from him.

In the world war Mrs. Lewis worked for a year in hospitals filled with wounded French soldiers. The French government gave her two decorations for her service.

Students Eager For This Class

Des Moines High School Has Course in Aviation.

Des Moines, Iowa, Oct. 6 (AP). One course of high school study has been found in which students will not "cut" classes—no matter what the temptation.

Thirty-six boys and girls in North High here are enrolled in a class in aviation, and W. J. Combs, their instructor, says only disability prevents a student from attending. They even come early and stay until forced to leave.

The classroom is equipped with a small wind tunnel, airplane models, instruments, odd parts and a roto blade from an autogiro.

Students have built a reproduction of the Des Moines municipal airport and are studying wind resistance, lifting power of various types of wings, stresses and strains, and wind velocity.

They also make frequent use of commercial movie films on airplane construction, testing and flights. Combs holds Department of Commerce licenses as a pilot and ground instructor.

Oyster Salad Recipe Winner Of Week's Prize

$5 Awarded Suggestion by Mrs. Anna B. Long, 127 13th St. N.E.

Oysters are a favorite food for Washingtonians whenever the letter "R" appears in the name of the calendar month.

October, of course, contains the mystic letter and housewives are including the succulent bivalve in their menu planning. Here is a novel oyster recipe from Mrs. Anna B. Long, 127 Thirteenth street northeast, which wins the prize of $5 this week.

The recipe for oyster salad is as follows:

Two cups oysters.
One-half cup chopped celery.
Two grapefruit.
One green pepper.
French dressing.

Clean and drain oysters, cut grapefruit in halves and with a sharp pointed spoon remove pulp in whole sections. Remove seeds from pepper and cut it into shreds. Combine oysters, celery and pepper and chill. Marinate the grapefruit in French dressing, allow to stand about 30 minutes, then add to oyster mixture. Then allow to stand on ice 30 minutes longer. Serve in hearts of lettuce. This is a new and delicious salad.

What Today Means

"Libra."

If October 7 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a. m. to 1:10 p. m., from 3:45 to 4:20 p. m. and from 8 to 9 p. m. The danger periods are from 9:40 to 10:35 a. m., from 1:50 to 2:45 p. m. and from 6 to 7:15 p. m.

The morning of this day will probably give promise of great and unexpected activity, but before noon things will slow down to a snail's pace. Do not get your hopes up too high for any reason at all on this date, for more than likely you will have them dashed to the ground before night falls.

The child born on this October 7 will be a sly little individual with many cute ways about it. Generally truthful as you will find this child, you will never rely entirely on its reports. It will have a way of withholding some of the facts so that any set of circumstances will appear as advantageous as possible. Inclined to give away secrets and to tattle on others.

If October 7 is the date of your birth, the only thing that will compare with your ability to spend money will be your ability to make it. Both these qualities as you possess them are rather exceptional. When you come to making money, most everything you touch will turn to gold; it will seem most difficult for you to make a misstep. Money once in your hand will seldom get as far as the pocket, and hardly ever will it get comfortably settled in the bank. You are reckless in your expenditures, you entertain lavishly and foolishly and you spend a great deal on your clothes and on luxuries. The only thing that will stop you from gathering considerable worldly goods will be fear, loss of nerve. Things will probably come so much your way during your earlier years that a sudden reverse may damage your self-confidence beyond repair.

Born on October 7, you have little to fear from the competition of others. Quite likely your endeavors will lead you into fields not overrun with laborers and, furthermore, you are the type of person who puts forth his best efforts when being pressed by others. You are an honest person, always willing to carry others along with you, and as a consequence, you have many friends. If you once err in making a busniess decision, you will probably lose all, including friends, for many of them, apparently sincere, will be only the fair weather type. Your mate will stand by you.

Successful people born on October 7:

Eleanor Kirk Ames, writer.
Horace White, former governor of New York.
Bronson Howard, dramatist.
Kate J. Bateman, actress.
Henry Rutgers, patriot and philanthropist.

The Family Marketer

Savoy Cabbage Improves; Spinach and Mushroom Prices Toboggan.

Savoy cabbage is getting the big head. Some time ago it looked rather meek and humble, but its recent popularity has done wonders for it. Now it comes into the market with harder, larger, curlier heads than before.

The Marketer asked a certain prosaic dealer this morning what was news with cabbage. He blinked rather perplexedly and said he didn't know you could get news from cabbage.

"Is it a popular seller?" asked the Marketer. The dealer said it was.

"Is that why it's big-headed?" continued the Marketer.

"Huh? No, 'spose not. Middle of the season for it, that's all."

Just Grows That Way.

"Did it get all curled up to come to the city?" the inquisitive one wanted to know.

"It just grows that way," the dealer was careful to explain. "You see it's only here about six weeks or two months every year. Be gone the middle of November."

"Does it hate to leave?" The Marketer still had hopes of news.

"Don't reckon so." He adjusted his glasses and looked at her curiously. "Cabbage can't think, you know."

As his interviewer started to walk away she heard him add: "No more'n a lot of people can, I guess."

Well, it didn't matter. Cabbage was a hard-headed thing and wouldn't make news if it didn't want to. Spinach, maybe, she'd see.

There was a sign "Spinach, 10 cents a bunch."

"Why is it cheaper?" she asked owner.

"Just Because."

"Because it is," she was told.

"Because it's plentiful?" she queried, hoping it wasn't.

"That's what I said," the owner answered. He broke off one of the leaves and nibbled at it. The marketer waited to see what would happen. Nothing did.

"Do you like spinach?" she asked.

"I like it cooked," he told her.

"Why do you eat it that way then?" she wanted to know.

"Because if I eat it this way when it's cooked it's so much better I like it. Must have a basis of comparison for everything," he added.

That was an idea worth the Marketer's while. She decided to do a bit of comparing with the vegetable prices and find out just what would result. Mushrooms, for instance, 29 cents a pound today. Three weeks ago they were 50 cents a pound. When they first came on the market they were decidedly scarce. It even looked as though the crop was going to be disappointing. And all at once conditions changed and mushrooms began coming in in quantities and the price dropped.

String Beans Erratic.

String beans—but you couldn't compare them. They're eccentric, erratic, temperamental and unreasonable. One day they're 3 pounds for 22 cents, another day the same quality beans 3 pounds for 25 cents. Today they're 3 pounds for 19 cents, but tomorrow, who can prophesy?

The local corn seems to have disappeared from the market today and to have been supplanted by ears from New York and Pennsylvania, selling a bit above the last local price—six for 25 cents.

Some places are carrying local tomatoes, however, which are selling somewhat lower than the Californias. Large, firm, red ones are 10 cents a pound.

Hurt Ankle Brings Wales' Condolences

Mrs. Dickey's Visit Recalls His Solicitude for Her.

The presence in America of Mrs. Robert R. Dickey, of Pau, France, with her four interesting children brings to mind the fact that this popular Washington debutante before her marriage received the condolences of the Prince of Wales when she sprained her ankle.

A great reception was being held for the prince at the British Embassy. Mrs. Dickey, then Miss Lelia Gordon, daughter of Mrs. George Barnett, was in line, although she had sprained her ankle that day. But what is a sprained ankle compared with meeting a prince! As she limped up to him the prince came quickly forward.

"How did you hurt your foot?" he inquired solicitously. When told, he made a gallant remark about Miss Gordon's pluck in coming notwithstanding her accident and she passed on, the envy of all the belles who had received only the conventional greeting from H. R. H. and had not been the object of his sympathetic interest.

Plain White Paper Good Oven Tester

Just a Few Handy Tips for Housewives.

Some household hints which every homemaker should know are:

To test oven, put in a piece of white paper. If, in 5 minutes, it is a pale brown, the oven is hot and in good condition for baking most foods.

To prevent fruit and salad from turning black, sprinkle it with the juice of a lemon.

When lifting sirup or treacle, dip spoon in flour.

When adding water to pastry, do it gradually, never all at once.

Whipped cream or fruit should never be added to pastry a long time before serving.

To make good pastry, always use at least half quantity of shortening to flour, and baking powder is unnecessary.

To remove stains from pie dish, rub with salt and damp cloth.

Milk and eggs will not boil over, if top of pan is greased with dripping.

Owl Pops Out When Stove Fire Is Lighted

Pulling off a back cover, he found a small owl had crawled in, possibly falling down the chimney. He took the visitor out alive but somewhat singed.

Judge Calls Tough Boys Menace, Urges "Lickings"

Chicago.—The greatest menace to the community is not the master criminal, but the tough street boy, Judge Ross C. Hall, of the Appellate Court, told the Chicago Bar Association, and the way to handle such boys, he said, is to "give them good old-fashioned lickings."

Long-Handled Roasters Save Weiner Parties

Burned Fingers and Ruined Sausages Unnecessary With These Devices.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

"A weiner roast tonight? Heavens, yes; I'd love it!" All day long she looked forward to the fun she'd have. She visualized a congenial party grouped around a cheery fire, the little sausages roasting away in a slow and easy fashion, blending their tempting aroma with the smell of burning leaves. It was going to be terribly exciting! She could hardly wait.

Twenty-four hours later. A young girl comes down to breakfast with a long face. She takes one look at the platter of crisp "little pigs" and leaves the table. Father looks at mother inquiringly.

"Poor Jane," mother explains. "She was thrilled and excited over the weiner roast last night—you know how she is—but she found that it meant burned fingers, singed eyelashes, smoked and burned weiners."

"Well?" from father.

"Oh, it's the way young people do things," mother continued. "Had they only thought, they could have bought some of the long handled weiner roasters with the three prongs and had no trouble at all. They're only 10 cents, and you can use them over and over again, even at home in the open grate."

Ambrosia was the food of the gods, so the old legends say. When we see the ambrosia cake on sale in a downtown bakery we can't help feeling rather sorry the gods never thought of that.

You can't imagine a lovelier sight than the golden batter three-layer tempter with a boiled icing of oranges, bananas and coconut. You might even think to yourself, "Anything so delightful looking must fall short in taste." But try it and see. This combination of fruit and cake makes a very choice dessert.

A downtown store has some jars of extra special pineapple. It was prepared in Honolulu by expert hands. All of the original flavor of the fruit remains, besides a certain mellowness which it has developed from standing in its own juice. Ask for the "pineapple fingers" and they'll know what you mean.

You can use them as a dessert by themselves or in puddings over ice cream, or with cake.

Dried fruits are ideal little tasters to have around. Sometimes when you aren't feeling exactly hungry, but you definitely want something to eat, and it isn't candy and it isn't cake, it's likely enough to be dried fruit. They have a way of suiting the taste when nothing else does.

One of the loveliest remembrances you can give a friend who is going to take a long train trip is a package of these. A downtown store has them done up in neat little parcels that would fit very nicely into the corner of a suit case. There's quite an assortment, apricots, peaches, pears, prunes.

You'll admit that when it comes to buying poultry and eggs you want a place you can depend on to give you absolutely fresh and carefully selected products. The proprietor of a stand in a Fourteenth street market will be delighted to help you any time you wish. Just call him up and tell him what you want and he'll be sure that you get it.

He keeps strictly fresh eggs, either white or brown, and sells them very reasonably. Very soon now he's going to have guinea keats and capons when they're at their best. At present you can depend on him for ducks, large or small, and broiling, frying, roasting and stewing chickens.

For a hot, snappy luncheon one of these crispy days, you can't beat tamales.

"Where in the world," you ask, "can a person buy real tamales prepared for eating?"

When shopping in an F street department store, take the elevator up to the grocery and fancy foods store and ask for a jar of tamales. There are five in a jar and the whole thing will cost you only 25 cents. You can heat them while you make the coffee and there you are, luncheon ready in 15 minutes. They're very nice served with whole-wheat salty crackers and butter.

Asparagus is so expensive now that when you cook it you want to be careful that you preserve all the flavor and be sure not to break the tips. A store some little distance from the heart of town has some regular asparagus cookers which are said to do the work in an ideal fashion. They're priced at 98 cents.

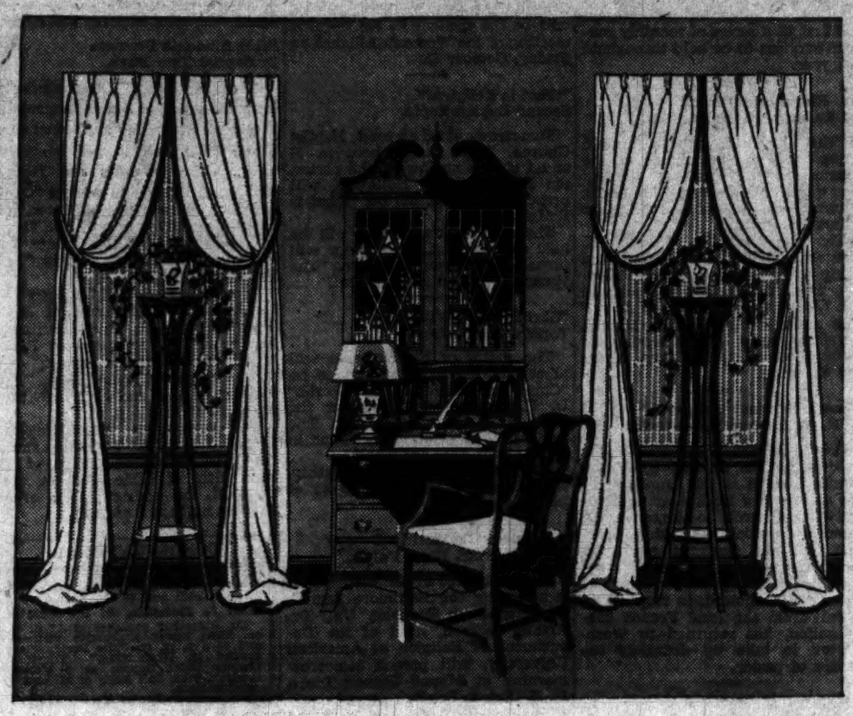

Tea time can be one of the most enjoyable hours of the day if the hostess will choose her breads and cakes with care. With a loaf of the date and nut bread, which sells at a G street food shop for 35 cents a loaf, she can make delicious sandwiches. With some of the cheese bread and cinnamon bread at 15 cents a loaf, in a Fourteenth street bakery, she can make toast that will melt in your mouth.

What's in Fashion?

Fall, Winter's Ready-Made Draperies Utilize Unusual Fabrics and Trimmings

Directed by Amos Parrish.

Information as to where draperies of the type illustrated and their variations are available in Washington will be given by the Fashion Department, The Washington Post, on request.

Give some one else the work to do. That's the idea now. Certainly a practical idea when it comes to new draperies. When you buy them ready-made you not only save yourself labor, but you can see exactly how they are going to look when draped at a window.

Even if you have a very definite pattern and color scheme to follow, you are practically certain of finding it in the new ready-made draperies for fall and winter.

Formal Draperies.

Formal materials and trimmings are much in evidence at smart windows. This, of course, is due to the extensive use of eighteenth century English and French furniture, Federal American and the classic directoire and regency pieces.

Draperies of shiny satin trimmed with fat looped fringe are one of the ready-made types which look well in such rooms.

So does damask in formal, precise designs or the new ribbed silks and moires trimmed with galloon, fringes or silk cord.

Bedroom Taffetas.

If you're redraping a formal bedroom, look at the crisp taffetas. They're made with very deep ruffles . . . some as deep as 9 and 10 inches.

Chintz, of course, makes a perfect year-round bedroom drapery and the patterns are so numerous there isn't a room which can't be made lovelier with chintz ready-mades.

Like most of the new draperies, these chintzes are trimmed . . . with pleated or gathered ruffles, fringes or cotton rope.

Less Formal Types.

Less formal rooms haven't been overlooked. Printed linen is always in fashion and colorful. And with its new trimming of wool or cotton fringe or braid it is doubly so.

Heavy cotton basket weaves and crashes . . . corduroys and terry cloths and a multitude of novelty weaves . . . fit into the informal picture, too.

Then if you are going modern, you'll find materials especially made up for this scheme of decoration. Among the most unusual are the fine, sheer dress woolens. One cream-colored pair we saw recently had garnet ribbon bands down the sides and across the ends.

In the corner of the eighteenth century room sketched are draperies of satin-corded silk or damask with loop fringe. The tie backs may be placed high as sketched or in their normal place. Placing them high, you'll note, adds to their formality.

Leaflets on Draperies.

If you really like to make things and are planning to do your own draperies, wouldn't you like some of the new ideas on trimmings and drapings?

We've put them into a new illustrated leaflet which you may have. And we also have a leaflet explaining the simplest way of making the fashionable pinch pleats in draperies.

For either or both leaflets, fill out the coupon as directed and send to us, with proper inclosures.

No End of Books

Mark Sullivan Writing of War Years in "Our Times;" John Dos Passos at Work in Spain on Non-Fiction Book.

Mark Sullivan has been at work for the last year on the fifth volume of his series: "Our Times." Scribner will bring it out very soon now under the title "Over Here." It begins with the opening of the World War and ends with the death of Woodrow Wilson, narrating the wealth of events within that period both as the man in the street knew them and as they actually happened behind the scenes.

The surge of pro-Ally feeling in this country, the Lusitania tragedy, America's preparation for war, the rise and fall of Wilson—all is told in a vein which has made "Our Times" famous. Washingtonians may not know that Mr. Sullivan lives on Wyoming avenue.

Martha Ostenso is in New York with the manuscript of her next novel: "There's Always Another Year."

John Dos Passos has been in Spain for some time engaged on a non-fiction work about that country.

Jim Tully's book, "Shadows of Men," is one of the most popular works in Russia, outtopping even the sales of Jack London. Mr. Tully is planning to leave Hollywood and visit Russia for several months soon.

"Ah, Wilderness!" the Eugene O'Neill play mentioned in this column yesterday, has this dedication: "To George Jean Nathan, who also, once upon a time, in peg-top trousers, went the pace that kills along the road to ruin." Whatever Mr. O'Neill thinks of himself, he seems to want company.

A Dog's Life.

"FLUSH, A BIOGRAPHY," by Virginia Woolf. Harcourt, Brace. $2.

The Barretts of Wimpole Street must include Flush, spaniel of the mistress' lap. Mrs. Woolf has seen that necessity and, with her usual careful attention to fiction in fact, has gone carefully over the literature which in any way mirrored this canine companion—poetry, letters or other prose dealing with the Mitfords and Barretts. The result is a combination of gossip and guess, psychology and fancy, pleasant to read and illuminating.

Beginning with a semihistorical account of spaniels in history, the story of Flush, a real aristocrat of the breed, that came to Miss Barrett as a gift from Miss Mitford in 1842, is chronicled through divers days on his mistress' couch in London, to Italy, back to London, and once more to Casa Guidi, to die there some time after 1854, date unknown. His olfactory adventures with the family in its travels, which he constantly shared, are interpreted meticulously with regard to their reactions upon him.

Flush was no ordinary dog and the slightest unrest upon the part of Miss Barrett was felt by Flush, we are told. He was more than dog, then; he was the dumb repository of secrets.

It is difficult to place this work of Mrs. Woolf in relation to her previous output. The book seems no more than a sincere attempt to pay tribute to a faithful dog-companion famous in literary annals. Yet one familiar with the type of writing done heretofore by Mrs. Woolf constantly will be seeking some shred of satire or allegory or didacticism within the book to investigate. This reviewer believes Mrs. Woolf has sought nothing more than a picture of an intelligent dog in unusual surroundings, for no other purpose than the incidental revelation of Miss Barrett's home life. Flush occupies the stage at all times, and his nose supplies the motivation beyond chronology.

A few passages will serve to show the fine handling given the tale by Mrs. Woolf. While Flush watches Miss Barrett write and listens to her speak in revery to herself, we are given the dog's reaction: "When he heard her low voice syllabling innumerable sounds, he longed for the day when his own rough roar would issue like hers in the little simple sounds that had such mysterious meaning." Here is intuition and art. The passage beginning, "Confessing our inadequacy, then, we can but note that to Flush, Italy, in these the fullest, the freeest, the happiest years of his life, meant mainly a succession of smells," on page 138 and continuing through the middle of page 140, is by far the most excellent in the book, in this reviewer's opinion. It makes one feel, smell, and delight in the streets of Florence with Flush.

Followers of Mrs. Woolf, lovers of dogs, those who delight in things well done in words—these will not be disappointed with Flush.

Ammonia for Stains.

Iodine stains may be removed from linen by the use of ammonia. Wet the stains with a few drops of water, pour on a little ammonia and let it soak for a few minutes. Wash in the ordinary way and the article will be free of stain.

How to Clean Vases.

Flower vases stained with the sediment of flower water can be perfectly cleaned with tea leaves moistened in vinegar.

Women Chided For Neglecting Throat's Beauty

Neck Requires Careful Treatment, Yet Often Forgotten.

A creamy throat is a feature of rare beauty in woman—one which has inspired rhapsodies of poets since time immemorial.

Women are too apt to neglect it, however, in concentrating their attention upon the face. They will painstakingly cream and massage the chin, cheeks and forehead, anoint the danger area about the eyes and nostrils and proceed to infinitely careful makeup. Their usual contribution to the throat is a last minute, careless flurry of powder, which often as not fails to meet at the back of the neck.

The neck is exposed to the elements almost as much as the face. In winter as well as summer, wind and sun play havoc with its epidermis. As a matter of fact the neck has even more to contend with than the face. Fur collars on coats, high necklines on cloth and woolen dresses rub against the throat and tend to darken and irritate the skin.

Bleaching Advisable.

Bleaching treatments should be administered periodically to the throat, at more frequent intervals than to the face, in order to preserve an even white surface.

Beauty authorities admit they grow tired of repeating the warning: "You must give the neck the same treatment as the face." But they reiterate the urging with the knowledge that only through persistence can they secure the cooperation which finally will set women on the road to beautifying their throats as religiously as their faces.

They hope to see the day when women will use the same cleansing and nourishing and stimulating creams and lotions on the throat that they use on their faces. This missionary work should begin at the shoulder line and with the busts and be worked upward and outward along the throat and face.

Fight Those Wrinkles.

To check the circular wrinkles on the throat, with their tendency to merge into an all-over network of fine, crepey skin, it is necessary to work in a good skin food regularly, as well as wrinkle oil, and follow it by brisk patting with an astringent or skin tonic. The astringent is best for oily skins; the skin tonic for dry skins.

During the winter months, it is wise to use cleansing cream in place of soap and water for cleansing, as often as possible, particularly if the skin is inclined to be dry. When soap and water are used, as occasionally they must be, the soap should be mild and bland—preferably of the vegetable oil variety.

Work up a rich lather in the palm of the hand and apply to the throat, just as you would use cream. Rinse the soap off thoroughly and follow with liberal lavings of cold water. Then apply nourishing cream to restore the natural oils; let it remain for 5 to 15 minutes and wipe away carefully. Traces of surface oiliness can be removed with astringent or skin freshener, applied with dabs of sterilized cotton.

Culbertson's Bridge

The Grand Slam Call.

Mr. Montgomery Major, of Wilmette, Ill., states in a recent letter to me that he and his partner have found great satisfaction in using the Culbertson System against those using other systems of bidding and that one of the several striking advantages is the sound slam bidding system wherein control of the first rounds of suits, essential to the bidding of slams, is clearly indicated. It must be conceded that reaching a grand slam contract against an adverse opening bid, if sound, is a rather difficult problem, and a recent hand dealt in a game in which Mr. Major was a player is submitted to me by him with the question as to how the grand slam could have been reached.

1—If I held South's hand, after my partner opened with one diamond, I should now attempt to preclude the exchange of information by bidding five diamonds. If we bought the contract doubled we should actually save money and at worst I believe we should prevent our opponents from reaching a Grand Slam, as so many rounds of bidding would have been lost that East and West could not show the combined strength of their hands effectually.

2—Disclosing no losers in the diamond suit.

3—Showing first round control of the club suit.

4—By inference this shows support for the heart suit; otherwise, if West can not support spades East will not force him to go to five hearts for a possible penalty.

5—While the support is not quite adequate, still the hand deserves a further bid.

6—East and West between them have shown that they control both suits adversely bid. East knows, after partner supports spades, that any losing clubs in the West hand can be discarded on that suit. The Grand Slam, which is made laid down, should certainly be bid.

Sugar of Lead Keeps Pastel Colors Fresh

Delicate pastel-colored garments may be prevented from fading through this precaution: Procure a small amount of sugar of lead and dissolve in two quarts of lukewarm water. Place the articles in the solution and leave for 10 minutes. Wring out and wash in the usual way. Their color should outlast their usefulness.

"Well Dressed" College Girl Gowned in Burlap

New London, Conn. (AP).—If she's a freshman, the well-dressed girl on the Connecticut College campus wears a loose-fitting burlap bag reaching to the knees and a false nose. The sophomores dictated the style.

Speculation.

By Katherine W. Smith.

Life is full of quaint surprises,
(Here a saint that was a sinner)
Often things the world surmises—
(There a failure in a winner)
Smiles upon, and then chastises . . .
(Sometimes breakfast—but no dinner.)
Have surprises any meaning?
(Songs are sung, and wrongs are righted)
Lips may smile—a falsehood screening,
(Pleased to meet you, yes, delighted)
But when God has done His gleaning
Someone may be slightly slighted.

Watch for Your

Post Carrier Boy

Today!

THE first week since the establishment of a new system of home delivery ends today. Instead of the previous practice of monthly collections at the rate of 70 cents for daily and Sunday editions The Post Carrier Boy will now collect but 15 cents per week.

You have undoubtedly noticed an improvement in service during the past week. It is the aim and purpose of your carrier boy to satisfy your requirements in every way. When he calls today he will be ready to receive suggestions of ways in which he may make additional improvements.

Post Carrier Boys are engaged in an occupation that instills the fundamentals of good citizenship that are so necessary to their future success. They are receiving an intimate glimpse of the business world into which they will soon venture. They are learning the fundamentals of success . . . Dependability . . . Regularity . . . Courtesy . . . Self-Reliance . . . Independence and Thrift.

Post Carrier Boys are engaged in a task that requires less than an hour and a half a day, but which gives them a practical business training and teaches them the true value of education. A task that also develops health, character and ambition.

The Washington Post is deeply interested in the welfare of these boys and its purpose is to aid them in their development in every possible way. The Post believes that you have a similar interest in the young men who serve you so faithfully: That you will appreciate the opportunity to become better acquainted with your Post Carrier Boy and that you will cooperate in every possible way to make his task easier.

Divorce Mania Ruining Nation, Ministers Told

M. E. Group in Baltimore Urged to Stress Early Training of Child.

Roanoke, Va., Oct. 6 (Spl.).—Dr. W. F. Quillian, of Nashville, Tenn., representing the Board of Christian Education, told the Baltimore Methodist Conference of the Episcopal Church, South, today that divorces are undermining the foundations of the Nation. He said more Christian education is needed to arouse the people to their responsibilities.

He said work of Christian education should begin when the child is "quite young," the process to be climaxed by attendance at a Methodist college.

Another speaker today was the Rev. R. N. Allen, of Louisville, Ky. He urged pastors and laymen to keep interest paid up on loans by the board, and that the board would not urge immediate payment of principal.

Approve Rediversion.

The board of missions recommended rediversion of $25,000 from funds for the proposed Francis Asbury Training School to mission charges in order, according to Dr. J. J. Rives, chairman and pastor of Francis Asbury Church, Washington, D. C., "to pay the brethren 100 per cent of what was promised."

The Rev. W. H. Best, Baltimore, was reelected secretary of the missions board. Bishop W. F. McMurry must approve the selection. Balloting on delegates to the Jackson, Miss., general conference in 1934 was completed today on the fifth ballot. Those named were J. R. Norman, Elk Garden, Va.; Dr. E. L. Wolfe, presiding elder of Winchester district; Paul S. Elliott, Hinton, W. Va., and Dr. H. H. Sherman, Front Royal.

Alternates Elected.

Clerical alternates elected included, in the order of their election, Dr. Rives, of Washington, D. C.; Dr. G. G. Martin, pastor, Harrisburg; Dr. H. Sydenstricker, pastor of Trinity, Roanoke, and Dr. S. K. Cockrell, pastor West End, Roanoke; laymen elected were J. H. Rosenberger, of Winchester; W. H. Barger, George L. Lamar, Rockville, Md., and Mrs. J. T. Copeland, Baltimore, Md.

The class admitted on trial consists of Benjamin Thomas Price, Lewis W. Darst and Charles L. Felty, all Roanoke College men; Claude H. Thompson, of Reisterstown, Md., Baltimore District; Walter M. Lockett, jr., Washington District, and Hugh L. Shirley, Winchester, and Harry C. Ricard, White Post, Va., Winchester District.

Mormons Rally Against Repeal

Apostles Urge Church to Make History, Keep Utah Day.

Salt Lake City, Oct. 6 (AP).—The weight of the Latter Day Saints Church was thrown against repeal of State and National prohibition today when speakers at the 104th semiannual conference called on Mormon people to support prohibition.

Declaring peace and prosperity would come to the world if the use of tea, coffee, tobacco and liquor were eliminated, President Heber J. Grant asserted repeal would cause "more drunkenness than there is at present."

Unofficially, one police executive expressed doubt that Dertil was directed in his assassination attempt by leaders of the Nazis. Otherwise, he said, Dertil would have used a more formidable weapon than "a pearl-handled plaything with only two bullets." Dertil has been turned over to a provincial court for trial at a date as yet unset.

Church Repairmen Deny Conspiracy

Two Men, Woman Enter Pleas of Not Guilty.

Pleas of not guilty were entered in District Supreme Court yesterday by Charles and Richard Brinker and Miss Elsie Cannon, a member of the bar, when they were arraigned before Justice Peyton Gordon on an indictment charging them with conspiring to commit false pretenses.

They are charged with conspiring to obtain money from Rev. Charles O. Rosensteel, pastor of St. John's Catholic Church, Forest Glen, Md.

Ramifications of the case were enlarged early this week when the Brinkers, who are contractors, placed a $16,556 lien on the church, on which they did some repair work. They are charged with attempting to collect excessive payments for their work.

Sunday morning's sermon will be on the subject, "Easy Come, Easy Go." The themes for the following two Sundays will be: "Caught Short or a Crisis in Character" and "God Himself Appears."

The preacher will be George E. Schnabel, the minister of Albright Church.

On Sunday evening the Christian Endeavor groups will meet at 7:15 o'clock. At 8 p. m. the evening service will begin. There will be a brief address by the minister on "A Warm Hearted Church Prepares Herself for Service."

People's Congregational School Rally Tomorrow.

The church school is observing attendance rally day tomorrow morning in connection with religious education week. The message for the day will be presented by the minister, the Rev. A. F. Elmes, at 11 o'clock, the theme being "Help Us Grow: The Appeal of Childhood and Youth."

At 8 o'clock he speaks again to the Crispus Attucks Association in their annual public observance.

The Young People's Society will present a guest program at the Third Baptist Church at 6 o'clock. The Men's Club has charge of arrangements for the home-coming night Thursday.

First Church of Christ To Broadcast Services.

The service at First Church of Christ, Scientist, will be radiocast tomorrow from 11 a. m. to 12 noon over Station WOL. This service is the same as read in all the Christian Science Churches. The subject of the lesson-sermon is "Are Sin, Disease and Death Real?"

Christian Science Topic "Sin, Disease, Death."

"Are Sin, Disease and Death Real?" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow. The golden text is from Matthew x:7-8: "The kingdom of heaven is at hand. Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, cast out devils; freely ye have received, freely give."

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "He sent his word, and healed them, and delivered them from their destructions. Oh, that men would praise the Lord for his goodness and for his wonderful works to the children of men!" (Psalms cvii:20-21.) The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science Text Book, "Science and Health, With Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy:

"All reality is in God and His creation, harmonious and eternal. That which He creates is good, and He makes all that is made. Therefore the only reality of sin, sickness or death is the awful fact that unrealities seem real to human, erring belief, until God strips off their disguise. They are not of God." (Page 472.)

Canon Stokes Lectures On Journey in Africa.

Last year Canon Anson Phelps Stokes, of the Washington Cathedral, spent six months in Africa, under the sponsorship of the Carnegie Foundation, studying conditions on that continent.

Tonight at 8 o'clock in the First Congregational Church he will lecture on that trip, "From the Cape to Cairo."

This meeting will be held under the auspices of the race relations committee of the Washington Federation of Churches. Dean B. Butler Pratt, its chairman, will preside. The Howard University Glee Club will sing.

Church of the Brethren Opens Special Meetings.

The special meetings of the Church of the Brethren will start Sunday morning with a sermon by the pastor on "Of What Does a Revival Consist?" He will discuss some revivals of history and analyze their factors to reach some common denominator in revivals.

The B. Y. P. D. has completed organization for the winter. Miss Evelyn Roop was elected president. The Dramatic Society decided to present several plays during the winter.

There will be services each evening in the week, starting October 9. The speakers will be men of the church. The B. Y. P. D. will meet at 7 and church services at 8 p. m.

William Green Speaks At Cathedral Tomorrow.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, will be the speaker in the great choir of Washington Cathedral, at the special service arranged by the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock, for the general public and delegates to the annual convention of that organization. He will be one of a notable group of spokesmen for the American Federation of Labor to appear in the pulpits of the local churches tomorrow.

The service will begin with the processional hymn, "O God, Our Help in Ages Past," followed by the singing of Psalm 43. The cathedral choir will render the "Magnificat" and "Nunc Dimittis," in D flat, by John Stainer, and the offertory anthem, "O Brother Man! Fold to Thy Heart Thy Brother," by Geoffrey Shaw. The hymns before and after Mr. Green's address will be "Christ for the World We Sing" and "God Bless Our Native Land," to the tune of "America."

The sermon at the celebration of the Holy Communion in the great choir at 10:30 a. m. will be delivered by Canon Anson Phelps Stokes.

Communion Tomorrow at St. Paul's Lutheran.

The celebration of the Holy Communion will mark both morning and evening services tomorrow at St. Paul's Lutheran Church. There will be no sermon in the morning, but at the vesper service at 8 o'clock, Dr. Henry W. Snyder will preach on the subject, "The Wrong Side of the Door."

Luther League, Christian Endeavor and Light Brigade will all hold their regular meetings at 7 o'clock.

"Spiritual Expectations," Sermon by Dr. Taylor.

Tomorrow morning at the Central Presbyterian Church, the pastor, Dr. James H. Taylor, will preach on "Spiritual Expectations," and at night on "Characters of the Old Testament."

Rally Day will be observed in the Sunday School. The various departments will have special exercises. There will be recognition of those who have been promoted from the different dpartments.

Dr. Harmon to Preach Final Sermon Tomorrow.

Dr. H. H. Harmon will preach his last sermon at the National City Christian Church tomorrow morning. He will leave early in the week for Pittsburgh to attend the international convention of the Disciples of Christ, and will go from there to Oklahoma City, where he assumes the pastorate of the Crown Heights Christian Church on October 29. Dr. Harmon has chosen for his sermon "The Great Commandment of the Law."

At the Sunday evening hour the chorus choir, under the direction of W. E. Braithwaite, will present the first of a series of monthly musical services to be held throughout the year.

Dr. Ridgely to Preach At Calvary Methodist.

"The Christ Everybody Should Know" will be the theme of the sermon at the morning worship service at Calvary Methodist Church, on Columbia road near Fifteenth street.

The minister, Dr. Vernon N. Ridgely, will be in the pulpit, and again at the evening worship service, when the sermon subject will be "John, the Apostle of Love." The senior choir will sing at both services, under the direction of Louis Potter, organist and director of music.

French Services Renewed at N. Y. Avenue Presbyterian.

"Notre Raison d'Etre" will be the subject of the sermon by Frank Andre Liotard at the French service at the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock, when these services will be resumed after the usual summer suspension.

After spending the summer in France, Mr. Liotard, in response to a call from the local French congregation, has returned to Washington to take up definitely the duties of pastor.

Pleasures of Memory Topic of Dr. Pierce.

Continuing a course of sermons on "Adventures in the Joy of Living," Ulysses G. B. Pierce, minister of All Souls' Church (Unitarian), will preach at the 11 o'clock service on "The Pleasures of Memory."

On Tuesday evening, October 10, the minister will give the second in a series of talks on "The ABC's of Unitarianism."

Judge Paul Myron Linebarger, legal adviser of the Nationalist Government of Nanking, China, will be the speaker at the opening meeting of the Women's Alliance on Friday, October 13.

"What is Religion?" Second Baptist Topic.

Tomorrow at Second Baptist Church, Third street between H and I streets northwest, the pastor, the Rev. J. L. S. Hollowan, will preach at 11:00 a. m., on "What is Religion?"

The communion service will be held at 3:30 p. m. The pastor will preach at the evening hour on "The Perennial Vision of the Soul."

"Christ Light of World" Topic at St. Andrews.

The rector of St. Andrews will preach at the morning service on "Christ the Light of the World." H. H. Clement will conduct the adult Bible Class, 9:30 a. m. The subject is "The Church as Found in the Acts of the Apostles."

The Young Peoples Fellowship, James Bennen leading, will be at 7:30 p. m.

Dr. Arthur Jackson to Occupy Mount Vernon Place Pulpit.

In the absence of the pastor, who is attending the Baltimore Annual Conference at Roanoke, Va., Dr. Arthur Jackson, head of the Department of Religion at American University, will preach tomorrow morning at Mount Vernon Place, M. E. Church South.

The evening sermon will be preached by Dr. W. L. Darby, Secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches. His text is "Religion in the New Deal." Special music will be given by a large vested chorus directed by R. Deane Shure. Mrs. LaVergne Sims Fairchild, soprano, and Arthur L. Tabbutt, basso, will assit.

Dr. Perkins to Interpret Story of Creation.

"The Letter and the Spirit of a Bible Story," is the sermon topic of Dr. F. W. Perkins, at the service of the Universalist National Memorial Church at 11 o'clock, tomorrow. The sermon will be an interpretation of the Creation story in the Book of Genesis. The Church School will meet at 10:15 except the adult class which follows the church service at 12:15.

Dr. McCartney to Preach On Christian Life.

"The Secret of a Fruitful Christian Life" will be the subject of Dr. Albert Joseph McCartney's sermon tomorrow morning at the Covenant-First Presbyterian Church. Thursday evening service at 8 o'clock will be in charge of the Rev. Samuel Robinson Allison during the absence of Dr. McCartney.

Beginning Thursday, October 19, at 8 o'clock, Dr. McCartney will start a series of discourses on "The Parables of Jesus." In these studies Dr. McCartney will seek to trace the development of the teaching of Jesus as drawn from life.

Memorial Service For Dr. George R. Wales.

President Harry Middleton, of St. Alban's Parish Men's Club, announces that the members of this organization will attend a corporate communion service in the church tomorrow morning at 7:45 o'clock in memory of their late president and fellow member, Dr. George R. Wales, who died two weeks ago.

The Rev. Dr. Charles T. Warner, rector of the parish, and James C. Dulin have been appointed a committee to recommend a successor to Dr. Wales as leader of the Bible class.

Re-Thinking Religion Topic of Dr. Sizoo.

Tomorrow morning at the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo will preach on the subject, "Re-Thinking Religion."

Tomorrow evening Dr. Sizoo begins his Sunday evening series with the discussion of some current problem with which America is confronted. This year Dr. Sizoo will have for his theme, "Re-Thinking Morals."

Labor Leader to Preach At Mount Pleasant.

Mount Pleasant Congregational Church is cooperating with the Washington Federation of Churches, which is sponsoring the invitation to leaders of the American Federation of Labor, now in session in the city, to speak in the pulpits of the city tomorrow. James Myers, industrial secretary of the Federal Council of Churches, will conduct the 11 o'clock service, and Mr. W. G. Birthright of Indianapolis, Ind., in charge of the Southern campaign of the American Federation of Labor and secretary of the Tennessee State Federation, will make the address.

Following tea at 6 o'clock the discussion group and forum will meet together to hear Miss Pauline Frederick of the editorial staff of the American Observer, discuss "The Aims and Principles of the NRA." The Sunday Evening Club is the name chosen by the group of post college age young people, who are this fall forming an independent discussion group. Assembling around the fireplace in Mr. Clinchy's study subsequent to the fellowship hour with the other groups they are thinking with Miss Virginia Rand whether the Bible can be taken literally.

The ladies of the guild will sew and make surgical dressings for the Red Cross on Wednesday at 10 o'clock.

Friday, the thirteenth, will see a Get-Acquainted Party for the young people's discussion group in full swing at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald W. Brooks, 1457 Girard street.

Miss Virginia Rand, a recent graduate of Syracuse University, was selected dramatic director of "Radio Echoes" by the all-organization committee at its meeting last Monday evening. This unusual production, comprising impressions of many prominent radio features and characters by a large cast from Mount Pleasant Church, was conceived by Mr. Franklin Marsh and will be staged in Fishburn Hall on the evenings of November 2 and 3, at 8:15 p. m. Messrs. Charles Collingwood and Richard Tuve will be seen in the roles of Amos and Andy.

Bible Students Convene In Capital Two Days.

A convention of Bible students from the Atlantic States is meeting in Washington today and tomorrow. Three Bible lectures will be given today. The speakers are Henry Kruhm, of Baltimore, subject "Confidence;" Horace E. Hollister, of New York City, subject "Hot, Cold, or Lukewarm?" and George M. Wilson, of Pittsburgh, subject "The Principal Thing."

Tomorrow there will be three lectures: Isaac F. Hoskins, of New York City, subject "Our Inheritance in Christ;" W. E. Gary, of Richmond, Va., "Faith and Prayer;" and C. P. Bridges, of Lynn, Mass., "The Destiny of Men and Nations." The latter given at 3:15 p. m.

The convention is meeting at I. O. O. F. Hall, 822 Twentieth street northwest, under the auspices of the local class of Bible students who meet at the address given every Sunday night at 8 o'clock.

Paul Changed at Damascus

Blinded, Enlightened and Converted by the Lord in Sudden Vision While on Way to Persecute Christian Jews.

By William T. Ellis.

Any place where a man has been under the fire of artillery and infantry is certain to be memorable to him; and Damascus is one such city in my experience.

I have visited Damascus often, and at varied seasons, but my most vivid impressions are of the day and night fighting, a few years ago, when the populace were in insurrection against French rule. At that time the French bombardment wrought great havoc in the center of the city.

This ancient city, which claims to be the oldest in the world, has witnessed wars beyond all count. It has been captured and sacked; and it has been the scene of great and dramatic events; chief among which must be rated the sensational experience of Saul of Tarsus, when he was blinded into spiritual sight.

The Man Makes History.

Most of the tourists from Europe and America, who go to Damascus, want first to see the traditional spot, where Saul of Tarsus became blinded at noonday and the "Street Called Straight," where he dwelt, and the house on the wall whence he was let down in a basket, to escape his foes.

None of these is authentic, except possibly Straight street. But the popular interest demanded sites, and the East is ever obliging in this respect.

In Western minds, the name of Saul—or, as he later became, Paul the Apostle—dominates Damascus. His conversion there was one of the epochal and formative events in history.

The spiritual experience of a single man may mean more than any military conquest. The things that really matter all happen within the souls of individuals.

This man, Saul, a brilliant anti-Christian zealot, was on his way from Jerusalem to harry the Jewish converts in Damascus.

The Sanhedrin at Jerusalem exercised away over all Jews, Saul carried credentials empowering him to arrest and transport Jewish followers of the Way. News of his coming had struck terror into the hearts of the Damascus disciples of Jesus.

New Light at High Noon.

As Saul's cavalcade approached Damascus, a sudden blinding light struck down the company. A Voice accompanied it, intelligible only to Saul.

"Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou Me?"

"Who art Thou, Lord?"

"I am Jesus, Whom thou persecutest. But rise, and enter into the city, and it will be told thee what thou must do."

Saul arose blind, but seeing Reality for the first time in his life. As a helpless child, he was led by the hand into Damascus, to a dwelling on Straight street, where he remained three days without sight, "and did neither eat nor drink."

What an intense emotional and spiritual and mental experience was that, but it was a prelude to the greatest service ever rendered by mortal to man or God.

Phenomenon for Philosophers.

Here is a phenomenon for the philosophers. This scholar, Saul, was converted not by logic, argument or reasoning, but by a personal spiritual experience, like a frontiersman at a camp meeting. His giant intellect yielded to the light, not of reason or theological debate, but to a soul-wrenching personal experience.

He met the Lord Jesus for himself, and thereby his whole life was changed. This has always been the strength of Christianity, as it is the strength of the remarkable Oxford Group Movement today—a personal relationship with the ever-living Christ.

That light which appeared at noonday on the Damascus road, and the Person, who there appeared, made a new man of Saul, changed him into Paul the Apostle, the Church's greatest missionary and the supreme interpreter of the Gospel. How far and wide down the ages that Damascus light has streamed!

A good man with a bad name, which he redeemed. Ananias, a disciple dwelling in Damascus, had a vision bidding him call upon Saul and restore his sight.

At first, this devout disciple was incredulous. Gently, the bewildered Ananias was made to understand that God had been dealing with Saul as well as with himself, and that he would find Saul praying.

There was nothing half-way about Ananias. When he took on a task, he put this whole heart into it. So we find him saluting the man whose name he had held in terror as "Brother Saul."

Paul Is Initiated.

Thus we find Saul initiated into that great fellowship of friends of Jesus which he, more than any other man, was destined to enrich and enlarge. His sight was restored, his desire for food came back and he was strengthened for the adventures that lay ahead of him.

We can not pass this phase of the story without mention of the helpful, friendly company which constitutes the Christian discipleship. As it was in Damascus, so it is today everywhere; Christians are kind and charitable. They are the helpers of persons in need. They are the good neighbors in every community.

"Right About Face!"

In Damascus, Saul was changed completely. All the old qualities of ability and leadership and force remained, but he had executed a "right about face!" Instead of being a foe of Christ and of Christ's friends, he became their defender, advocate and helper.

Even the Christians could not credit it at first, but this convert began to proclaim Jesus in the Damascus synagogues, thereby stirring up a plot against his life, from which he escaped in a basket let down from the city wall at night.

Back to Jerusalem went the new Saul, and it needed the intervention of great-hearted Barnabas to make the brotherhood receive this man whose very name affrighted them.

Again was repeated the Damascus experience of conspiracy against this redoubtable convert, and the Christians spirited him away to the seaport, whence he sailed for Tarsus, and a long period of preparation for his life work, including three years in the desert—probably the magnificent solitudes of Sinai.

New Week's Bills in the Picture Houses Appraised by The Post's Reviewers

Roaming Youth Dramatized on Earle Screen

Crying Problem of Times; Musical at Fox; the Other Programs.

"WILD BOYS OF THE ROAD." First National picturization of a story by Daniel Ahearn, adapted to the screen by Earl Baldwin, featuring Frankie Darro, Dorothy Coonan and Edwin Phillips, with Rochelle Hudson, Willard Robertson, Arthur Hohl, Grant Mitchell, Claire McDowell, Charles Grapewin and Robert Barratt and juvenile ensemble. Directed by William A. Wellman. Reviewed Friday morning.

"Wild Boys of the Road," like Dickens' "Oliver Twist," is one of those rare expositions of the persecution of youth that combine qualities of interesting and thrilling entertainment with a vigorous indictment of a social condition that cries out for prompt and efficient remedy.

It may be looked upon either as propaganda or as sheer melodrama, according to the viewpoint of the spectator. In either case it will not be found dull.

The basis of the story is an aspect of the aftermath of the depression that has not heretofore been utilized as a subject of dramatic discussion—the problem of the thousands of youngsters who have been thrown out upon the world through the hard times that have befallen their parents, no longer able to support them. In much of its treatment and a great deal of its argument the present picture affords an almost exact parallel to "Heroes for Sale," in which Richard Barthelmess was starred by the same producers. It strikes an infinitely more heartening final note, however, than the earlier epic of hopelessness, in which an army of former doughboys went tramping up and down the country without food or shelter and with no imminent likelihood of securing either.

An Army of 500,000!

The bitter tale of a valiant struggle set forth in this astonishing recital of what is alleged to be happening to the youth of the country, temporarily turned tramp, centers in the personal adventures, aspirations and cruel disillusionment of Eddie, Tommy and Sally, two boys and a girl who run away from home to relieve their elders of a little of the burden they no longer can bear. These three soon find themselves members of an army that is represented to have 500,000 recruits bivouacked across the continent in freight yards, sewer-pipe settlements, shantytowns and rain-drenched roadsides.

In the course of their wanderings, which begin in the Middle West and end in a New York court, they encounter few kindnesses and many injustices at the hands of railroad detectives, municipal police and unsympathetic civilians. They swarm over the railroad rights of way, they trespass on private property and commit the other minor crimes and misdemeanors of the dispossessed; they have their private quarrels, childish romances and a few major tragedies—and nobody cares!

There are intervals during the action when comedy holds complete sway and moves the audience to storms of laughter; there are as many more in which there is a tug at the heart that will not be denied. There are also many exaggerations and no few extravagancies that may be defended on the plea of dramatic license, but add nothing to the tenacious impression that "Wild Boys of the Road" leaves upon the adult mind.

To the younger spectators, it may just possibly be made to appear that the kids in the story are sufficiently triumphant in their jousts with the authorities to make the whole thing a great lark—all but the poignant sequence in which Tommy falls under a train and has his leg cut off with a little too vivid realism. There is no glamour whatsoever in this gruesome episode.

Three Young Stars.

The success of the film as a bit of fast-moving entertainment is due less to the mob and riot scenes than to the personal activities of Eddie, Tommy and Sally, depicted with complete naturalness by Frankie Darro, finest of the screen's adolescent actors; Dorothy Coonan, miraculously rescued from the chorus of "42nd Street" and "Gold Diggers," and Edwin Phillips, a gifted youth, heretofore unknown to this typewriter. These three are surrounded by scores of other juveniles who do their appointed tasks with zest. The numerous adults catalogued in the long cast appear only incidentally in parts that amount to nothing more than brief individual bits.

The Vaudeville.

Borrah Minevitch returns with his Harmonica Rascals to occupy the stage as headline attraction of the vaudeville bill. These ten ragamuffin virtuosi present an act that has long been familiar to the Capital. It always scores tremendously and on this visit gains added impetus by Maestro Minevitch's adroit use of the microphone and loud-speaker system. It is an act of genuine musicianship, richly leavened with comedy.

The others introduced by Gracie Barrie, who arouses further enthusiasm in a new group of songs, include the Mann, Robinson and Martin Dance Revue, and a very excellent one it is; "Red" Donohue and Pal, in which a trained donkey is the best of three comedians, and Jay Mills, assisted by an agile blonde, in "songs and comic sayings."

A Dr. Rockwell short-reel, "Rock-a-Bye-Bye," exceedingly dreary; a sizzling comedy, "Sailor, Beware;" newsreel, including the world series that isn't going too well, and Freddie Clark's "Last Round-Up" overture augment a feature that furnishes much food for thought along with its wealth of amusement.

Church Leader Dies.

On Home-Town Screen This Week

In the role of the anguished young wife whose aviator-husband never reaches their anniversary dinner, Helen Hayes, Washington actress, is one of the galaxy of distinguished stars pictured in "Night Flight," the romantic melodrama of the South American air mail service, currently on view at Loew's Palace Theater. She has one telling emotional scene with John Barrymore.

Loew's Fox

"MY WEAKNESS." Fox picturization of a story by Buddy De Sylva, starring Lilian Harvey and Lew Ayres, with Charles Butterworth, Henry Travers, Harry Langdon, Sid Silvers, Irene Bentley and a group of screen beauties. Music and lyrics by De Sylva, Leo Robin and Richard Whiting. Directed by David Butler. Previewed Tuesday, October 3.

Graced by some lilting tunes, a deft and fanciful treatment and a story that hangs together rather well despite its triteness, this first American-made vehicle for the vivacious talents of Lilian Harvey to reach the screen deserves to rank with the better of the season's frothy cinemusical comedies. It has delicacy, color and movement and is played with spirit by a cast of excellent selection. It is for the entertainment of the moment, not the enrichment of the years.

As has been suggested in an earlier column, the opening sequences are indebted to Shaw's "Pygmalion," in that a grotesque slavey is chosen as the subject of an experiment whereby a young man's handsome income is to be restored by an irascible and vindictive uncle. The scheme is to convert the chambermaid into a lady and marry her off to some rich gentleman, for the benefit of all concerned—save him.

The plan works admirably. Looloo Blake becomes a dazzling beauty—by processes to which the audience is privy—and by a little careful conniving ensnares the uncle who has caused the whole business in the first place.

Harry "Cupid" Langdon.

All of this is outlined, after the fashion of a Greek chorus, by Harry Langdon, flitting about among the clouds in the guise of a top-hatted and mature Dan Cupid, with a slily little quiver of arrows slung across his wings of cotton, from which, from time to time, he punctures a susceptible heart. All very quaint.

The musical score has been treated with ultramodernistic touches and the song hit of the picture, "Be Careful," is introduced in novel manner through the vivification of a group of china mantel ornaments and a miniature figure of "The Thinker"—as lugubrious a gentleman as you would happen upon in a day's journey.

Lilian Harvey, who has not been seen to advantage on the American screen since "Congress Dances," brings a pronounced British accent and a freshness of personality that is wholly agreeable to the role of Looloo. Her transition from the ugly duckling into the Cinderella-like creature of the later scenes is accomplished with finesse and a skillful camera treatment that lends it some claim to originality.

Supporting Cast.

Lew Ayres is not the ideal leading man for this sort of thing, lacking the lightness of touch necessary to fullest effect, but nevertheless contrives to carry such of the burden of the story as is not borne by Miss Harvey. Henry Travers, fine actor always, is the romantic uncle, and Charles Butterworth, his son, an elderly young man with a penchant for maladroit remarks and no sense of humor. Mr. Butterworth's imbecility, as usual, is extremely laughable and diverting.

It is in this picture that Mary Howard—Will Rogers' daughter Mary—makes her debut before the cameras, to such advantage that her future career should be left in no doubt whatever.

The stage portion of the current bill at the Fox consists entirely of the rustic comicalities of the Weaver Brothers and Elviry and their "Home Folks," a sizable group of entertainers in the Hillbilly manner, who derive music from a weird assortment of fantastic instruments, sing through their noses and dance with clodhopper clumsiness.

Hillbilly Hilarity.

Of its kind, this is the ace act of vaudeville. Abner and Cicero and Elviry Weaver are noted for the effectiveness of their genre comedy and they have surrounded themselves with a band of specialists who contribute everything from barnyard imitations to orchestrated music of standard merit to a pretentious and unique diversion. Their act is a complete revue of rural grotesquery that scored emphatically with yesterday's audiences. It is above reproach in both content and method and will deeply interest those with a bent for crossroads entertainment.

The bill is completed by the Fox Movietone News and the customary contributions of Prof. Lampkin and his instrumentalists.

Palace

"NIGHT FLIGHT." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of a story by Antoine De Saint-Exupery," adapted to the screen by Oliver H. P. Garrett, starring Helen Hayes, John and Lionel Barrymore, Clark Gable, Robert Montgomery and Myrna Loy, with William Gargan, C. Henry Gordon, Leslie Fenton, Harry Beresford and Frank Conroy. Directed by Clarence Brown. Previewed Tuesday, October 3.

Interpreted by a group of stars hardly less distinguished than made "Grand Hotel" a notable picture and given every advantage of painstaking and adequate production, this melodrama of the South American airways yet seems strangely lacking in point and purpose, out of touch with the times and less the "super" production than it should be.

It hardly seems necessary in this day and age to set up so elaborate a structure for the single purpose of "selling" night flying of the mails to an eager and expectant public. To the present-day public this already is "old stuff." So is the picture.

The same story has been told innumerable times in behalf of the Navy fliers; it has been repeated in the name of commercial aviation; it was done for the barnstormers by Richard Barthelmess in "Central Airport," and so finds itself conspicuously deficient in novelty when transferred to South America and the Andes.

Surprise Lacking.

The melodramatic tale, of course, has its thrills, its suspense and its tragic climaxes; it has also those tensely emotional interludes during which a distracted wife awaits the coming of her husband for their anniversary dinner—a feast for which he never arrives. There are, in short, all of the elements here that are needed to compound drama of the most devastating sort—every element, that is, except newness and the factor of surprise.

Despite the impressive roster of principals, "Night Flight" does not stand as any enduring monument to great acting. Aside from John Barrymore's relentless driving of his men, Miss Hayes' deeply sympathetic work as the distraught wife, Robert Montgomery's philosophic nonchalance, and Clark Gable's stoical battling of a hurricane, against which he and his plane stood no chance, there is nothing of histrionic importance to be found in all the film's lengthy footage.

Violent Storm Scenes.

The storm scenes are well simulated and the photography apprehends every possible effect to give realistic terror to the hazardous business of flying blind in fogs, in the face of lightning bolts and over a lashing sea which finally swallows up two of the luckless pilots about whom the plot largely revolves.

The direction also is as good as direction can be in controlling the elements and achieving the illusion of nature on a rampage. These are things ordinarily beyond the power of a megaphone.

The auxiliary attractions are a Charley Chase comedy, a single-reel novelty and the new issue of the Metrotone News in which the world series plays an important part.

Columbia

"SOLITAIRE MAN." M-G-M's picturization of Bella and Sam Spewack's play, adapted to the screen by James K. McGuinness, starring Herbert Marshall, supported by Elizabeth Allen, Mary Boland, May Robson, Ralph Forbes and Lionel Atwill. Directed by Jack Conway. Reviewed Friday night.

A fast-moving, clever, gentleman-crook play, acted by a superlative cast, this is a bit different because it keeps you up in the air for most of its length, literally as well as figuratively.

A large passenger plane crossing the English Channel is the scene of the exciting twists and turns of fortune for the Solitaire Man and his companions. It is a well-staged setting, the sense of motion, height and speed being maintained, and a suitable arrangement too, for the affairs of Oliver Lane, the Solitaire Man, are nothing if not up and down.

His purposely lonesome work, which earns him the title which Scotland Yard is never quite able to tag him with, is robbery. But it is an after-hours job, for his real work is within the law—just within—jewelry "salesmanship" with the aid of three accomplices.

Because he loves one of the three, he decides, as do all gentlemen crooks, to retire on his laurels and loot to a Devonshire farm. Unfortunately, one of his assistants chooses at this moment to imitate him, playing solitaire at an embassy, thieving in Paris with complicated results, and Lane and his friends take to the air—destination Devonshire, if lucky.

Sterling Cast.

With Herbert Marshall, so easy, so sure, so very likeable, as Lane; Elizabeth Allan as his love; May Robson and Ralph Forbes his other partners in crime; Mary Boland an extemporaneous and hilarious accomplice; and Lionel Atwill as a would-be Nemesis—what could be nicer? Certainly no other cast. Forbes and Mary Boland render particularly valuable support. The picture is, praise be, usually a step ahead of you, which makes it unusual as well as good.

Subsidiaries include an excellent Paramount newsreel with scenes of Thursday's happy 4-0 victory. There is also an atrocious comedy, "Stage Hand," with Harry Langdon alone to blame—he wrote it, directed it, and acted in it—and an uninspired picture of Capt. Henry's "Showboat", broadcast, without Capt Henry.

Metropolitan

"TOO MUCH HARMONY." Paramount's picturization of a story by Henry L. Mankiewicz, with songs by Arthur Johnston and Sam Coslow, starring Bing Crosby supported by Jack Oakie, Skeets Gallagher, Judith Allen, Lilyan Tashman and Harry Green. Directed by Edward Sutherland. Reviewed second week Friday evening.

"Too Much Harmony," which is holding its notes for a second week, doesn't have quite enough zip and zest and certainly not enough Crosby yodeling. It is not nearly as much fun as Bing's earlier "College Humor."

But, if it is mild, it is rather melodious (i. e., "Thanks," "Boo, boo, boo," &c.), and at times (principally Jack Oakie's times) mirthful.

As befits its musical nature and name, the slight story has to do with a quartet—Bing, the girl he loves, the girl he's engaged to (that's three not two), and the boy the girl he loves is engaged to!

This situation, and its backstage setting, naturally allows considerable serenading and several expertly staged dance acts, but our favorite musical item is "Boo, boo, boo," caroled, for no good reason, in a baggage car.

Bing has a nice grin and a nicer voice. Jack Oakie out-Cyarters Senator Glass in his rare, old Virginia-gentleman bit, and Skeets Gallagher, Judith Allen, Lil Tashman, Kitty Kelly, Harry Green and Ned Sparks help out.

Subsidiaries include a lengthy and interesting feature of the beginning of the depression and the beginning of the ending of the depression.

Rialto

"S O S ICEBERG." Universal picturization of a story by Dr. Arnold Fanck, featuring Rod La Rocque, Sepp Rist, Gibson Gowland, Dr. Max Holzboer, Walter Riml, Leni Riefenstahl, Ernst Udet and Nakinak. Directed by Tay Garnett. Reviewed Friday evening. (Second week.)

Not only have the Northern Lights seen strange sights, but they have also witnessed many an unsung battle between the mighty ice-bound fastness and the ingenuity and determination of puny man to learn the secrets of a nature clothed in ice and snow.

Although what goes on north of the Arctic Circle is not entirely unknown to cinematic literature, "S O S Iceberg" adds another chapter to the motion picture's volume of natural history studies, a chapter which, from the standpoint of the almost insurmountable difficulties involved, can scarcely be equalled.

In this picture the value of the story reaches practically zero, yet with a background of nature's frozen grandeur and omnipresent perils not even a thread of narrative is needed. Dr. Fanck's adventurous fabrication adequately serves its purpose as the peg on which to hang a semblance of continuity to the action.

But over all, be it the story itself or the delineations of the actors, it is nature in travail that makes this Greenland saga one of epic proportions, the human characters (even including Nakinak, the Eskimo Spitz) serving but to make all the more aweful the dangers of Arctic exploration and the phenomena of nature, especially at a time when icebergs come into being.

Adding levity to a program dominated by stark drama is the first of a series of "Goofytone Newsreels," a swell parody. Louis Sobol, Broadway columnist, is seen in "Peeping Tom," supported by Roy Atwill, Gertrude Niessen, John Fogarty, Paul Whiteman's Rhythm Boys and others. The Universal news completes the bill.

Studio Plot Jury Frees Alice White

Indictment Charges Two Men With Robbery.

Los Angeles, Oct. 6 (AP).—The grand jury today indicted Martin Block and Russell Brown on a robbery charge in connection with what police say the two confessed was a plot to mar the handsome features of John Warburton, movie actor.

The disfigurement angle of the inquiry into the beating of Warburton, in which Alice White, actress, and her fiance, Sidney Bartlett, screen writer, were called as witnesses, was taken under advisement, said Grand Jury Foreman William Griffith.

Deputy District Attorney Percy Hammon said that testimony before the grand jury had cleared Miss White and Bartlett of any connection with the supposed plot.

Human History Book Dead; Remembered All He Read

"Photographic Memory" Wonder of College Boys Over U. S.

Coldwater, Mich., Oct. 6 (AP).—"Railroad Jack," the wandering human history book, is dead, and college boys in all parts of the country, who collected bets through his photographic memory, are grieved to hear about it.

His real name was Harry Cooper, but few knew that. He plied his trade mostly in college towns, and he could tell when Mirabeau was born, how old Croesus was when he died, the age of Mary Queen of Scots, the length of Peter the Great's whiskers—all without so much as consulting a notebook.

He made his headquarters at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor, and today his body was found in an abandoned outbuilding here. Physicians said he apparently died of heart failure. He was 79.

"Railroad Jack" could remember anything he ever had read. He had a "photographic" mind, and when he once read an historical date he never forgot it.

Not long ago he said he had willed his body, after death, to the University of Michigan Medical School.

"I want anatomists to examine my brain," he said, "so they can find out what gives me the power to remember."

Pollard Fills $15,000,000 Highway Board

Pushes Project to Link Shenandoah Park With Great Smokies.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 6 (AP).—Gov. Pollard today completed appointments to the Virginia commission working on the highway project that would link the Shenandoah National Park with the Great Smokies, and asked the governors of Tennessee and North Carolina to do likewise in anticipation of an early joint conference.

Senator Harry Byrd is chairman of the Virginia commission. Other members named today were J. W. Johns, of Ashlawn, William B. Smith, of Roanoke, State Senator Hunter Miller, of Bedford, Junius P. Fishburne, of Roanoke, and Charles J. Harkrader, of Bristol.

The project as contemplated would be financed by Federal Public Works funds, to be paid back out of tolls.

The road will be approximately 400 miles long, including the Skyline Drive in Virginia. State Highway Commissioner Henry G. Shirley estimated the cost would be $15,000,000. It is designed as an unemployment relief project.

New Hampshire Av. Highway Plan Told

Dr. Jordan Describes Extension to City Line.

Details of the recent NRA grant to the District for completion of New Hampshire avenue to the District line, were explained last night to the Chillum Heights Citizens Association by Dr. Llewelyn Jordan, of the Washington Board of Trade.

Plans provide for construction of a concrete highway from Kennedy street northwest to the line. This includes a bridge over the B. & O. tracks. Bids will be received the latter part of the month, the work to be completed in November, 1934.

Sewer facilities for the tract north of Brookland to Petworth were urged in a petition to the Commissioners.

Lip-Reading Lessons Offered.

A series of free lessons in lip-reading, sponsored by the Washington League for the Hard of Hearing and the Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital, will begin next Tuesday at 8 p. m. at 1147 Fifteenth street northwest. Classes will be conducted each Tuesday evening.

Virginian, Hit In Fight, Dead

Stephens City Business Man's Alleged Attacker Under Arrest.

Winchester, Va., Oct. 6 (Spl.).—An autopsy was performed on the body of Joseph Strode, 58, prominent Stephens City business man, here this morning by two physicians, but their findings will not be divulged until Commonwealth Attorney Burr P. Harrison, of Frederick County, returns from Richmond tomorrow.

Meanwhile C. N. Hampton of Stephens City, is being held pending complete investigation of Strode's death.

Hampton, according to information in the hands of Sheriff Harry L. McCann, engaged in a fist fight with Strode in Stephens City two weeks ago and from then until his death early yesterday Strode complained of pains in his head.

Hampton was fined for assault and battery by Mayor Gervis Lemley, of Stephens City, following the fight.

3 Get Life Terms In Luer Kidnaping

Shorter Sentences Meted to Three Others.

Edwardsville, Ill., Oct. 6 (AP).—After denying motions for a new trial, Circuit Judge D. H. Mudge today formally sentenced five men and a woman to prison for the kidnaping of August Luer, 77-year-old Alton banker and meat packer, last July 10.

Judge Mudge said the kidnaping of the aged banker was "cruel, crude and brutal."

The six defendants and their sentences:

Randol Eugene Norville, life imprisonment; Mrs. Lillian Chessen, life; Percy M. (Dice Box Kid) Fitzgerald, life; Mike Musiala, 20 years; Christ Nicola Gitcho, 5 years, and Charles Chessen, 5 years.

Law and Morals.

I fear I'm just as sinful, at heart, as any lad; I fear I have a skin full of all that's base and bad. I often think of doing some act that's coarse and vain; then think of cops pursuing, and straightway I refrain. I often would be parking my car in shut-off zones, but for the peelers barking commands in raucous tones. I'm strictly law-abiding, for I'm a timid man, and dread the thought of riding in Black Maria van. I dread the thought of jurists lined up in dread array, to fine the lawless tourists, and every erring jay. I'm strong for law and order because I have a dread of prison, cell and warder, and chains and moldy bread. I make my course as proper as I can well achieve, because I dread the copper with braid upon his sleeve. The statutes I'm obeying, like other timid jays, because I dread the saying, "Ten dollars or ten days." If laws were all abolished, and jails were closed today, and handcuffs, nicely polished, were scrapped and thrown away, how many would abandon the shining path they've trod, to lay a greedy hand on the neighbor's little wad? How many would be reeling in spifflicated groups? How many would be stealing the hens from widows' coops?

Stocks Retreat As Commodity Marts Slump

Losses at Closing Held to Fraction; Trading, 1,466,100 Shares.

New York, Oct. 6 (AP). — Weak grain markets brought a downward drag in stocks today, but the tone brightened toward the close and final share prices were little changed.

On the average, the market lost less than a point net; a few leaders had gains. Volume was 1,466,100 shares, smaller than on Thursday.

Around closing time at Chicago many stocks showed losses of fractions to a couple of points, but short covering or other buying in the last half hour brought a general retracing of ground lost.

Small Losses Recorded.

For U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Westinghous, General Electric, American Telephone, Chrysler, New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Consolidated Gas, North American, Loose-Wiles, National Cash Register, A. M. Byers, Sears Roebuck and Seaboard Oil net declines ranged from small fractions to a point.

Case was down more than 2 and Union Pacific was down 3¼. Metals bogged down, U. S. Smelting losing 5. National Distillers, whose directors voted a 3-for-4 split-up sagged when the news came out, but eventually recovered. Allied Chemical, Celanese, Santa Fe and a few others were higher.

The market again found little to guide it in outside happenings. Dollar exchange held its recent improvement and at times was fairly strong against French francs.

Resumption of Debt Talks.

Resumption of debt discussions has revived conjecture as to the possibility of stabilization, but nothing definite is being heard in that connection even in the rumor factories.

Freight loadings last week showed a moderate rise over the preceding period, but the percentage gain from a year ago was cut to 6.3, as compared with a comparative improvement of 9.5 per cent the week before. The gain was seasonal and perhaps a little better than had been expected.

Mercantile reviews pointed to some slackening in the pace of trade. Dun & Bradstreet's reports from "nearly all sections of the country" emphasize the slower rate in both production and distribution.

Wall Street Briefs.

New York, Oct. 6 (AP).—Two chainstore systems today reported sales gains in September over a year ago. Volume for S. H. Kress & Co. last month was $5,405,554, an increase of 10 per cent over September, 1932, while J. J. Newberry's total was $3,036,060, a rise of 12.6 per cent.

Municipal financing scheduled for next week totals $12,967,706, says the Daily Bond Buyer. The largest item is a $6,000,000 issue of State of California 4¼ per cent, unemployment, relief bonds, to be offered Tuesday. On Wednesday West Virginia will be in the market with $2,500,000 in 4½ per cent refunding bonds.

Heavy lettings of contracts for highways and other public projects raised the total of engineering construction contracts reported for the week ended October 2 to $39,604,000, says Engineering News-Record.

The American Iron & Steel Institute estimates September production of steel ingots at 2,310,982 tons compared with 2,900,611 in August and 991,858 in September, 1932. Operations averaged 40.89 per cent of capacity last month against 49.42 in August and 17.64 a year ago.

Reorganization of the United Porto Rican Sugar Co., a subsidiary of the United Porto Rican Sugar Co. of Maryland is proposed in a plan sent to creditors and security holders. The plan calls for formation of a new company, known as the East Porto Rican Sugar Co., and provides for payment of 12½ per cent in cash and the balance in notes of the new company for those approving the plan. The company has a total indebtedness of approximately $12,500,000, not including $600,000 unpaid taxes, a letter to creditors states.

Domestic wool consumption in August totaled 56,120,000 pounds, a record for that month, says the New York Wool Top Exchange Service. July consumption was 59,974,000 pounds, while the amount for August, 1932, was 50,215,000 pounds.

Pennsylvania Railroad's net income for August is estimated at about $3,700,000 after taxes and interest, equal to 28 cents a share on the capital stock. This would bring net for the year's first eight months to around $9,900,000, or 75 cents a share.

Wall street hears that Corn Products Refining Co. had third-quarter net profit approximating the $1.05 a common share earned in the three months ended June 30.

September output of Dome Mines, Ltd., a gold producer, was valued at $356,933, compared with $341,610 in the same month of 1932. Production for the first nine months of 1933 had a value of $3,402,095, compared with $3,178,432 in the corresponding period of last year.

Scaring the Public to Buy

September Reports on Retail Trade Show It Will Not Lead to Recovery

By Ralph West Robey.

Preliminary reports on the volume of retail trade in September provide a significant commentary upon the policy of trying to scare the American public, through the threat of higher prices, to flee from dollars to goods. That this has been our recent policy is beyond dispute. Even the President has emphasized his determination to drive prices to a higher level. Among the lesser lights, especially those in the National Recovery Administration, the threat has been driven home with all the force at their command. Retail trade figures for September, however, indicate that there is a limit beyond which the public will not be driven to make purchases by such threats, even when made by a Government with sufficient power to make the threats effective and when supported by daily examples in retail prices.

Just how much retail trade fell in September still is problematical. Official estimates are not yet available, and will not be for many days. From the unanimity with which private surveys report a decline, however, there is little reason to doubt that the official figures will indicate September was materially worse than August. Many individual stores enjoyed better business in September than in August, but these gains were not sufficient to offset declines in other estbalishments.

Policy of Scaring Public Began in Middle of Summer.

The policy of trying to scare the public into buying more goods under the threat that prices were going to advance was started about the middle of last summer. At that time, as was to be expected, it was fairly effective. The public long had been curtailing its expenditures as much as possible, partly because of the uncertainty of the economic outlook and partly because prices were getting lower and lower. As a result there was a large shortage in personal inventories — small wardrobes, empty pantries, worn-out automobiles, badly needed replacements in household equipment, &c. All of this, of course, represented potential purchases by the public. In the aggregate it unquestionably amounted to an enormous sum.

More or less immediately after the banking crisis in March this purchasing began to come into the markets. This was because the public felt that finally we were heading along a route which would eliminate economic unsecurity—that no longer was it so necessary to husband savings against perhaps still worse times in the future. Purchases which had been delayed long beyond the normal time, therefore, began to be made in preference to holding as much savings in cash as possible. Necessarily it is impossible to tell how much of such purchasing there was, but at least it was great enough to cause widespread comment at the time and to be considered as a signficant force in hastening recovery.

Period Was One of Large Unemployment Decline.

Neither is it possible to determine how far this "normalizing" of personal inventories would have carried us along the road to recovery. It is worth recalling, however, that during April, May and June the number of unemployed in this country declined, according to the estimates of the American Federation of Labor, by about 1,500,000. There is good reason to believe, therefore, that this new purchasing power was exercising a major influence.

Into the midst of it, however, came the threat of higher prices. The public, accordingly, was given a new factor to weigh in making its purchases. Theretofore it had been a question of getting the things needed; now it became a question of building up surplus stocks of commodities against the time when money would buy less. In other words, whereas, before March 4 it had been thought advisable by millions of people to hoard money, it now was being told by the Government that it should hoard "things."

Here again the absence of statistics makes it impossible to be definite about amounts. But no one who has followed the trend of business in relation to wages and employment in the last three months can doubt that there has been a large amount of such hoarding of goods. There would be still more if the public was convinced that the dollar was going to become worthless. It should be evident, however, that we never will get prosperous by such purchases. For just as the public in September, having somewhat completed rebuilding its personal inventories, slackened its buying, so in time would it again stop, and we should be subjected to another period of declining business.

Prime Bonds Hold Steady as Market Sags

Losses Remain Small on Total Turnover of $9,436,000.

New York, Oct. 6 (AP).—Mixed sentiment prevailed in the bond market today, with prime issues maintaining a steady to firm position, while some secondary loans sagged sympathetically with stocks.

While the trading volume was slightly larger than that of yesterday, it still was below normal.

Sales totaled $9,436,000, par value, and the average for 60 domestic corporate maturities eased 3-10 of a point.

Most Losses Small.

Most losses, as well as gains, were small. Profit-taking and scattered liquidation accounted for the majority of the declines. Watchful waiting for some clews as to the Government's monetary policy generally restrained buying for the advance.

The rails performed somewhat better than the other groups. Gains of fractions to a point or more were recorded by issues of Alleghany Corporation, Santa Fe, Baltimore & Ohio, Canadian National, Central Pacific, Burlington, Cincinnati Union Terminal, Hudson & Manhattan, Missouri, Kansas & Texas, New York Central, Northern Pacific, Pennsylvania, Reading, Union Pacific and Virginian Railway.

Among carrier losers were liens of Western Pacific, Wabash, Southern Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Erie, Chicago & North Western, and St. Paul.

Among Firm Loans.

Firm utility and industrial loans included those of American & Foreign Power, American Telephone, American Metals, American Smelting, Dodge Brothers, National Steel, Shell Union Oil, Sinclair Oil, and Western Union.

Bonds of Warner Brothers, Philadelphia-Reading Coal & Iron, Detroit Edison, Hudson Coal, International Telephone, and Columbia Gas yielded fractions to about a point.

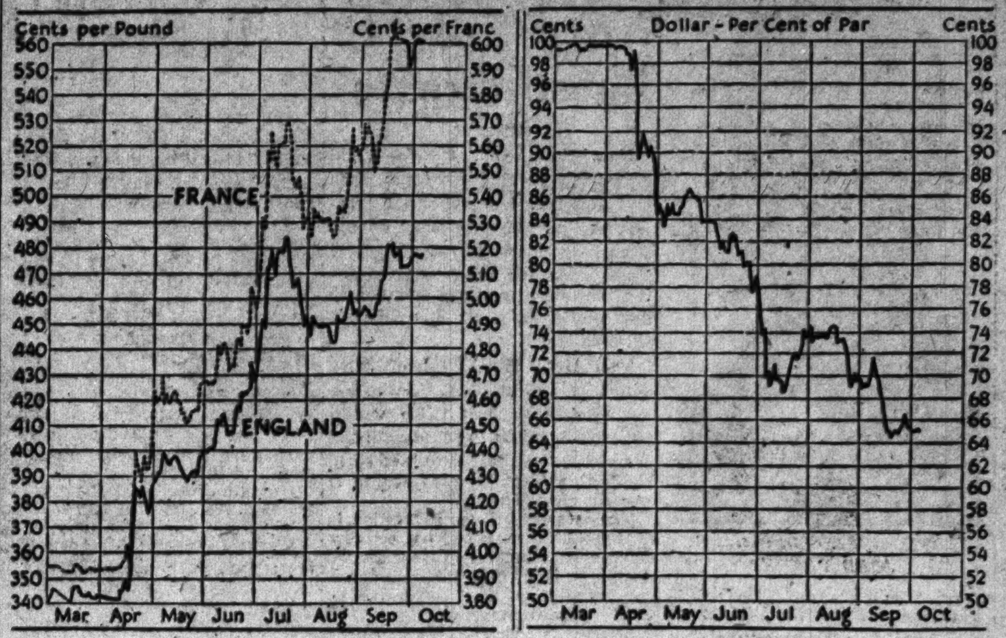

United States Government securities were slightly irregular.

Among foreign obligations, bonds of Dutch East Indies and France dropped 1 to 2 or more points as the American dollar advanced in the exchange markets.

Pear Crop to Be Cut.

Portland, Oreg., Oct. 6 (U.P.).—Only a partial crop of Boscs, said to be the finest eating pear grown in United States, will be harvested by Northwest fruit growers this year. The harvest will be 25 per cent smaller this year because of an oversupply. The agreement affects the Medford and Hood River districts in Oregon and Yakima and Wenatchee regions of Washington.

Curb's Prices Trimmed by Final Selling

Early Steadiness Followed by Reactions; Sales, 214,000 Shares.

New York, Oct. 6 (AP).—A late selling wave gave the curb market a somewhat ragged appearance today, although final prices were a littlte above the extreme lows.

The reactionary movement, following forenoon steadiness, was most pronounced in the metal shares. In the general list losses ran from fractions to more than 2 points. The market was less active than yesterday, with total transfers at approximately 214,000 shares, against 262,000.

Utilities were relatively steady, leaders like Electric Bond & Share showing but minor declines. Consolidated Gas of Baltimore rose nearly 3 points in a small transfer.

Among the metals, Newmont and Bunker Hill & Sullivan dropped about 3 points each. Alcohols came back smartly, after early heaviness. Hiram Walker canceled a 1¾-point drop, while Distillers Corporation closed a point higher. Oils eased fractions to around a point. Pittsburgh & Lake Erie slipped 6 points in a light transfer.

Fear of Dollar Advance Blamed in Credit Curbs

New York, Oct. 6.—Discussing credit expansion and the price of gold, in their current Weekly Observations, Hornblower & Weeks emphasize that the fear that the dollar may rally is doubtless doing as much to handicap the expansion of commercial credit which the administration is trying to foster, as the fear that the currency will be violently depreciated has done to date in hampering the long term investment bond market.

They feel, in view of the close relationships which exist between gold and the sensitive commodity prices, "that borrowers generally must be given some tangible assurance that the improvement which has occurred in our commodity prices will not be brought into question by a rally in our dollar quotations due to the shifting of funds in the international money markets."

Brazil Coffee Shows Effect Of NRA Drive

Milreis Pushed Upward as Latins Plug for Recovery.

Rio de Janeiro, Oct. 6 (AP).—Brazil, looking with satisfaction at a coffee export spurt in the first two months of the new crop year, has pushed the milreis another notch toward health and continues to plug for further improvement in the American situation under the Roosevelt recovery program.

The economy of few countries is tied as closely to the United States as that of Brazil, which is dependent to a large extent on export coffee sales, of which the United States buys about half.

Exports Approach Goal.

The Brazilian pickup has coincided with the American Government's recovery drive.

Brazilian coffee exports for July and August, the first two months of the crop year, totaled 2,821,000 sacks, or an average of 1,410,000 a month.

If the movement continues at a similar rate, the crop year exports will approach the government's goal of 18,000,000 sacks, or 60 per cent of the total production.

Purchases by Brazil.

Forty per cent, or about 11,000,000 sacks, is being purchased by the government at low prices and is headed for destruction.

Meanwhile the government exchange monopoly cautiously strengthens the milreis, and American business naturally is the biggest benefiter.

The milreis having strengthened in the last few months with relation to the pound and continental European moneys, the dollar is virtually the only foreign currency cheaper here than a year ago.

Surplus Problem Remains.

The theoretical gold milreis, used for calculating tariffs, receded further in paper value, which gave another boost to the import business.

With the gold rate 6.68 milreis in comparison with 7.27 a year ago, the duties dropped considerably. For example, a 10 per cent ad valorem duty is now 66.8 per cent in paper, in comparison with 72.7 per cent last year.

On the other side of the picture is the coffee surplus problem, still annoying and costing millions. For lack of a better plan, destruction is continuing.

Tobacco Men Expect Better Burley Prices

Bristol Area Growers Hope for 20-Cent Values This Winter.

Bristol, Va., Oct. 6 (Spl.).—With every factor conspiring to help, farmers of the Bristol area are anticipating a greatly increased revenue from burley tobacco this winter.

Last year the average price per pound of the millions of pounds marketed in the Appalachian area was around 15 cents, but this year the price may go to 20 cents, the 5 cent increase representing in the aggregate hundreds of thousands of dollars.

G. C. Baker, farm agent of Sullivan County, Tenn., with headquarters here, would make no confident estimates on the price, but said others who seemed to have basis for their calculations thought 20-cent tobacco wholly within the realm of reason.

Tobacco Processing Tax.

The Agricultural Adjustment Administration's placing a processing tax on tobacco should mean much, he said, toward restoring profit to the cultivation of the fine burley for which this section is noted.

In addition, the quality is probably the best in years, with the average and aggregate yield well above the average, considerably ahead of last year.

Chances of a sizable boost in prices are based chiefly on the curtailed crop in 1934, caused by the crop reduction that will follow farmers signing agreements under the processing tax plan this year. Quality, of course, will play a part, but often in recent years high quality tobacco has not commanded anything like a reasonable price.

Blue mold, dread tobacco disease, struck this section this summer for the first time, but its damage was small. Mr. Baker attributed the limitation on the damage to the fact that farmers moved immediately against the disease and to the fact that the onslaught was in itself not severe.

Cutting Is Completed.

At this time tobacco growers have completed cutting the plants and hanging them in barns to cure, getting the advantage of ideal current weather. Not too hot, too cold or too wet, the weather should help much in producing high-grade tobacco leaf, in Mr. Baker's opinion.

Markets usually open early in December take a Christmas vacation and run on through January. The first Monday in December may be the opening date of the Lexington, Ky., market, those in this immediate section following a day or two later.

Most of the tobacco produced in lower southwest Virginia is sold at Abingdon, some to Johnson City, Tenn., warehouses and scattering amounts to those of Greeneville and Morristown, Tenn. Bristol has no warehouse.

Because tobacco is the best cash money crip, many farmers depend largely upon it for their outside purchases. Stores in this section always note an upturn after markets open and business men are as vitally interested as farmers in sales at a good figure.

Net Earnings Reduce Mail Order Loss

Montgomery Ward Lists Profit of $1,000,000 for August.

Chicago, Oct. 6 (AP).—After operating at a loss for the first half of the fiscal year, Montgomery Ward & Co. reported today a net profit of about $1,000,000 for August.

Of this, $460,000 represented profit on the current month's operations, while $535,000 was excess of reserve for inventory shrinkage, set up every month since February 5, over the actual shrinkage determined August 31 when inventory was taken at the retail stores. The reserves were normal, the company said, but actual inventory shrinkage was much less than usual.

August results cut the cumulative net loss for the year to August 31 to less than $2,500,000. For the six months to July 31 net loss of $3,479,000 had been reported.

New York, Oct. 5 (AP).—Columbia Gas & Electric Corporation today declared a dividend on the common stock at the rate of 1-800 share of convertible 5 per cent preference stock, equivalent to 12½ cents. The last payment had been in the same stock at the rate of 20 cents a share.

The company said its operating subsidiaries had increased sales of gas and electricity, but that revenue had not expanded sufficiently to offset larger taxes. The immediate effect of code compliance, it said, has been an increase in operating expenses. The dividend is payable November 15 to stock of record October 20.

Phillips-Jones Corporation today declared a dividend of $1.75 on account of accumulations on the preferred stock. It is payable November 1 to stock of record October 20. On March 14 last the company paid a dividend of $3.50, clearing up arrearages to February 1 of this year.

Electric Power and Light Corporation, a member of the Electric Bond and Share group, today reported for the 12 months ended June 30 net income of $740,412, compared with $7,702,853 for the preceding 12 months.

The June 30 balance sheet shows current assets of $4,744,097, including $3,063,331 cash. Current liabilities totaled $787,959. According to the report, the company itself has no bank loans. United Gas Corporation, a subsidiary, has bank loans of $21,250,000 due in July, 1936.

Crown Corp. International Co. today declared a 50-cent dividend on the class A stock on account of accumulations, reducing the arrearage to $2 a share. The dividend is payable November 1 to stock of record October 13.

Net earnings of Weibel Brewing Co., of New Haven, Conn., after all charges except income taxes, from May 10 to August 31, 1933, as reported by independent auditors, were $146,548.11, equal to 39 cents a share on the 375,000 shares of common stock to be presently outstanding.

Foreign Markets.

(Associated Press.)

London—Trading on the stock exchange was quiet today. Tin shares were firm in anticipation of fresh news regarding restrictions. Gold mining shares were unfavorably affected on rumors of labor unrest. German bonds declined on profit-taking, while Argentine rails improved. Transatlantic issues were mostly easier and the closing tone was quiet.

Paris—Heaviness abroad and anticipation of hampering legislation caused general losses in a light market. The close was heavy.

Berlin—The boerse was dull and prices were weak, due to the diminishing interest of private investors. The closing was irregular.

The Markets at a Glance

What the Stock Market Did.

	Fri.	Thur.
Advances	142	240
Declines	385	296
Unchanged	127	153
Total Issues	654	689

Stocks—Losses in commodities, particularly grain, caused stocks to sag, but losses were held to less than 1 point. Most prices changed very little. Sales decreased to 1,466,100 shares.

Bonds—A mixed sentiment prevailed in bonds. Prime loans maintained a steady to firm position, while secondary issues sagged with stocks.

Curb—Early steadiness was followed by reactions caused by a selling wave. Final prices were a little above the bottom. Sales decreased to 214,000 shares.

Wheat—Late rallies saved wheat from tumbling to the bottom with other grains. The upturn reduced wheat's losses and the market closed 4⅛ down. December wheat sold at 85; May, at 98¼.

Cotton—Prices dropped $1 to $1.50 per bale on continued Southern selling and liquidation. The general market was down 21 to 29 points. December sold at 9.38; October, at 9.24.

Rubber—Crude rubber futures closed steady, 5 to 13 points higher. December sold at 8.21; January, at 8.36.

Sugar—Raw sugar was unchanged at 3.53; refined was also unchanged at 4.60.

Coffee—Spot coffee demand was dull. Santos No. 4 sold at 9 cents; Rio No. 7, at 7¼.

Silver—Bar silver stood in New York, steady and unchanged at 39⅝ cents per ounce.

Gold—Bar gold sold in the United States at $31.72, an increase of 17 cents over yesterday's quotation. It stood in London at 134 shillings.

Dollar—The United States dollar was strong on foreign exchanges. It stood in New York, with reference to other currencies, $4.73 to the English pound, 6.00 cents to the French franc, and 36.50 cents to the German mark.

Goods Markets.

New York, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Cotton goods were quiet today with some finished lines easier. Rayon fabrics production is being restricted somewhat by the prolonging of the strikes in silk dyeing and finished plants where many rayons are usually finished. Wool goods were firm as additional spot business was placed by dress and coat cutters. Burlaps were firm. Silks were fairly steady, but quiet.

Bank Opening Delay Laid to New Officials

Change of Men Studying Plans Requires Time for Action.

Assignment of new Treasury Department officials to investigation of Franklin National Bank reopening plans is understood to be retarding chances of early opening of the institution.

Departure for Chicago of Maj. W. Irving Shuman, special representative of the Comptroller of the Currency, necessitated the assignment of new men to the Franklin problem.

These men, it was learned, were unfamiliar with the situation, and consequently are taking time to study the plans in every detail.

Information Is Delayed.

Because of this situation, newspaper representatives are now unable to get information regarding the opening of the Franklin or the United States Savings or Industrial Savings from the Treasury Department's bank reorganization division. Previously, Maj. Shuman was the main source of information.

Due to their scant knowledge of the subject, the new Treasury workers explained, they preferred all information to come from the banks.

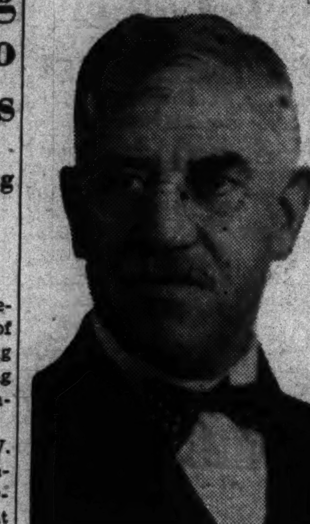

Depositors and Investments.

An important question now under consideration is whether depositors in the bank will be required to invest in preferred stock. There is a strong likelihood, it is understood, that this will not be necessary, as an alternative will give the depositors 70 per cent, instead of an expected 60.

Henry Bruere, president of the Bowery Savings Bank of New York, is in Washington to take a leading part in the President's program of credit expension and thawing out of frozen assets in closed banks all over the country.

Mr. Bruere has had several conferences with the President. He is expected to be assigned to help coordinate various Government credit agencies into an active unit in the supplying of credit for business expansion.

Steel scrap—Prices have eased in some of the leading markets. At Youngstown the material is currently quoted at $13 a ton, off 50 cents from the previous quotation.

Women's wear—In contrast to the hige rate of activity at men's wear mills, makers of cloakings and dress goods are said to be lowering operating schedules because of a lull in demand.

Tin—For the year ended July 31, 1933, world tin consumption was 111,200 tons, an increase of 11,200 tons over the previous year, the International Tin Research and Development Council reports.

Banks Study Note Sale to Boost Capital

New York, Oct. 6 (AP).—While borrowing nothing from the Federal Reserve, and vehemently asserting that they obviously do not need any more funds, the New York banks are seriously considering the sale of perhaps as much as $100,000,000 in notes to augment their capital.

This is at the behest of Jesse Jones, head of the R. F. C., who has come to New York twice within the past fortnight to plead with the Wall street institutions to take some R. F. C. money, through selling it some preferred stock.

The idea behind the suggestion is that banks throughout the country have been reluctant to issue shares to the R. F. C., and this reluctance is hampering the Government's credit expansion program.

There is sharp disagreement among the New York bankers as to whether the offer should be accepted. If it is, leading banking quarters believe they will offer capital notes, rather than preferred stock, to avoid certain legal complications.

Some suggest that if the notes are sold, it may not be to the R. F. C., but to the banks' stockholders. They point out that the R. F. C. could appear as underwriting the offering, although it would not actually have to take any of it.

Important banking quarters are inclined to the opinion that the suggestion will finally be adopted, for patriotic reasons, whether the banks like it or not.

Depositors Fail to Get Cash.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Oct. 6 (U.P.). Almost a month after 50 per cent of their deposits in the defunct Grand Rapids National Bank had been made available, nearly half of the depostors had failed to call for them.

World Tin Consumption Holds To Steady Advancing Trend

New York, Oct. 6.—World consumption of tin, one of the most reliable indices of the world's industrial activity, continues to maintain a steady upward trend, according to official figures prepared by The Hague statistical office of the International Tin Research and Development Council, contained in a dispatch cabled to New York today.

For the year ended July, 1933, tin consumption throughout the world was 111,200 tons, representing an increase of 11,200, compared with consumption during 1932. The amount consumed in July is estimated at 13,000 tons, compared with 9,382 tons consumed during the first month of 1933.

Monthly consumption figures during 1933 are given as follows: January, 9,382 tons; February, 8,251 tons; March, 9.512 tons; April, 9,399 tons; May, 10,715 tons; June, 11,500 tons (preliminary), July, 13,000 tons (preliminary).

Notable advances were made in the United States and France, where increases in the use of tin amounted to no less than 32 per cent, or 11,400 tons, and 12 per cent, or 1,100 tons, respectively.

Other countries which show augmented consumption during the period include the Netherlands, with an increase of 18 per cent, or 200 tons; Japan, with an increase of 4½ per cent, or 150 tons; Sweden, with a 6 per cent increase, or 70 tons, and Italy, with a 1½ per cent increase, or 60 tons. Decreases on the other hand are noted in the case of British India, which used 15 per cent, or 400 tons less tin, compared with 1932; Canada, which used 15 per cent, or 230 tons, less; Germany, 2 per cent, or 200 tons, less; Russia, 3 per cent, or 130 tons, less, and Belgium, 12 per cent, or 100 tons, less.

The United States tinplate industry, the world's largest tin-consuming industry, used 25 per cent, or 4,000 tons, more tin during the period reviewed than in 1932. There was the same proportionate increase in the French tinplate industry and almost the same—24 per cent—in the German tinplate output.

As regards tin production, the analysis of the International Tin Council points out that during the seven months ended July, 1933, the production of restricting countries fell by 10,000 tons to 40,000 tons, compared with production in the corresponding period of 1932. The production of nonrestricting countries increased 2,600 tons to 9,800 during the same period.

Canada's Budget Saving of $14,000,000 Seen

Montreal, Oct. 6 (U.P.).—A reduction of $14,000,000 in the controllable expenditure of the Dominion, which Hon. Edgar N. Rhodes, minister of finance, set for his objective at the beginning of the fiscal year, likely will be achieved.

For the first five months of the fiscal year the saving in government expenditures was approximately $6,000,000 and Federal officials are confident that the minister will be able to tell Parliament in his next budget speech that his program has been carried out.

Britain Oversubscribes Loan for New Zealand

London, Oct. 6 (according to information received by the Associated Press).—The 5,000,000-pound conversion loan for New Zealand was subscribed 10 times over, it was announced today.

The loan was for 3½ per cent bonds, designed to cover a similar amount in 5 per cent bonds, and was issued at 97. Today it was at a premium of ¾ of 1 per cent.

NRA Assists New England Trade Activity

New York, Oct. 6.—In its current "Summary of New England Business" the National Shawmut Bank of Boston reports that despite the slight reduction in productive activity during August the rates of operation in New England remain at high levels.

This higher rate of production in New England than in other sections of the country, the bank states, reflects the impetus given to industries producing consumers' goods by the anticipation and realization of the NRA program.

The textile industry of New England was especially benefited by the elimination of low-cost competition by mills in other sections of the country.

The first phase of the NRA program in New England during August, the bank reports, was reflected in gains in employment, pay rolls, department store sales and in the volume of building contracts. The rise in department store sales in New England indicated substantial improvement in the distribution of goods to the ultimate consumer. The trend of commodity prices since August has been upward.

A sharp increase in building contracts during August was mainly the result of projects for water supply systems in Connecticut, although increases are also reported in contracts awarded for residential and nonresidential construction throughout New England.

Butter From Reindeer Milk.

Irkutsk, Oct. 6 (AP).—Experiments have shown that palatable butter can be made from reindeer milk and three reindeer butter farms have been established near here. They have produced 4,000 pounds of butter in four months. Five quarts of reindeer milk will make about two pounds of butter.

August Use of Wool Drops Under July

New York, Oct. 6.—Domestic wool consumption during August totaled 56,120,000 pounds, grease equivalent, according to the estimate of the New York Wool Top Exchange Service, as against 59,974,000 in July, 50,215,000 in August last year, 53,835,000 two years ago, and 35,570,000 three years ago. August consumption established a record for that month.

"Wool consumption for the first eight months of this year has averaged 45,269,000 pounds per month," says the exchange service, "or on an annual basis of 543,144,000 pounds.

"The Government estimate of probable domestic wool production for this year, plus an allowance for the grease equivalent of the pulled wool produced, is 437,000,000 pounds. If wool consumption should continue for the rest of the year at the present average rate, it would exceed production by 106,000,000 pounds."

American Store Sales Rise Highest in 5 Years

New York, Oct. 6—The most favorable sales increase in the past five years are shown in reports to the American Department Stores Corporation from its various operating units, according to a letter to stockholders of this company by H. J. Koch, treasurer.

Sales in August were over 21 per cent above the same month last year, and the first sixteen days of September show an increase of 8.5 per cent for all stores despite rain and unusually warm weather. In the company's Baltimore store where the NRA has the largest effect on payroll, sales had more than taken care of any increase in cost there. The Brager Eisenburg Co., which represents about 60 per cent of the entire sales volume of the system, showed an increase for August, 1933, of 31.7 per cent compared with 1932.

Freight Loads Increase to 661,827 Cars

All Districts Except Two Report Cargo Gains During Week.

Loading of revenue freight for the week ended September 30 totaled 661,827 cars, the car service division of the American Railway Association announced yesterday.

This was an increase of 9,158 cars above the preceding week this year, and an increase of 40,169 cars above the corresponding week in 1932, but a decrease of 115,885 cars below the corresponding week in 1931.

Miscellaneous freight loading for the week of September 30 totaled 235,539 cars, a decrease of 549 cars below the preceding week, but 14,001 cars above the corresponding week in 1932. It was, however, a decrease of 56,881 cars under the corresponding week in 1931.

Loading of Merchandise.

Loading of merchandise less than carload lot freight totaled 175,404 cars, an increase of 961 cars above the preceding week, but 3,780 cars below the corresponding week last year, and 43,673 cars below the same week two years ago.

Grain and grain products loading for the week totaled 31,434 cars, a decrease of 2,263 cars below the preceding week, 8,081 cars below the corresponding week last year and 6,294 cars below the same week in 1931. In the western districts alone, grain and grain products loading for the week ended September 30 totaled 21,273 cars, a decrease of 5,021 cars below the same week last year.

Forest products loading totaled 25,450 cars, 371 cars above the preceding week and 6,298 cars above the same week in 1932, but 213 cars below the same week in 1931.

Ore Loading Drops.

Ore loading amounted to 33,187 cars, a decrease of 2,502 cars below the preceding week, but 27,135 cars above the corresponding week in 1932 and 5,664 cars above the same week in 1931.

Coal loading amounted to 131,204 cars, an increase of 11,792 cars above the preceding week and 1,762 cars above the corresponding week in 1932, but a decrease of 10,753 cars below the same week in 1931.

Coke loading amounted to 7,423 cars, an increase of 856 cars above the preceding week, 2,832 cars above the same week last year and 1,704 cars above the same week two years ago.

Live Stock Loading Up.

Live stock loading amounted to 22,186 cars, an increase of 492 cars above the preceding week and 2 cars above the same week last year, but 5,439 cars below the same week two years ago.

In the Western districts alone loading of live stock for the week ended September 30 totaled 17,962 cars, a decrease of 3 cars compared with the same week last year.

All districts, except the Central Western and Southwestern, which showed small reductions, reported increases in the total loading of all commodities compared with the same week in 1932, but all districts except the Pocahontas, which showed an increase, reported decreases compared with the corresponding week in 1931.

Loading of revenue freight in 1933 compared with the previous year follows:

	1933	1932
4 weeks in Jan.	1,910,496	2,266,771
4 weeks in Feb.	1,957,981	2,243,221

West Maryland Railway To Construct New Line

Clarksburg, W. Va., Oct. 6 (Spl.). Construction of a branch line from a point near Elkins to Hickory Lick has been started by the Western Maryland Railroad.

The line will reach operations begun there by W. R. Mines, who is opening new coal mines and planning for a large production. Approximately $40,000 will be spent on the track.

Britain Facing Trade Battle With Japan

London, Oct. 6 (U.P.).—Japan and Great Britain, whose relations have become increasingly strained through economic rivalry, are preparing to fight a gigantic trade duel for the rich South America markets.

Already on the verge of open economic strife, the island empires of the East and the West promise the bitterest commercial struggle the world has seen since tariffs and boycotts replaced shells and cannon.

At the moment industrialists representing Japan and Great Britain are meeting in Simla and London in an effort to smooth out their quarrel before the breach widens irreparably. Few observers, however, concede the gatherings any great chance of success.

Japan Captures Trade.

Japan, consistently capturing trade from Great Britain and the United States in every Oriental market, now is turning toward South America.

Faced with the loss of her huge gains in India by recent prohibitive tariffs, and convinced that Britain never again will allow her to expand in that direction, Japan sees almost unlimited possibilities in the South American sphere.

Leading the phenomenally successful Japanese trade drive are the big textile industries. Through high efficiency, cheap labor and a steadily declining currency they have made tremendous strides. Today, with their modern machinery and methods, they can undersell any foreign competitor.

Minor Industries Start.

A vast number of minor industries is springing up in Japan, using the same methods and enterprise as the textile mills. For these, Japan's textiles serve as a wedge for opening new markets.

Hard hit in the early years of the depression, Japan is climbing back spectacularly, outdistancing most nations in the world-wide effort to reachieve former prosperity levels. In 1870, with exports of 14,500,000 yen, she was not even a minor factor in world trade. By 1925 her exports had risen to 2,305,000,000 yen—an advance of 15,800 per cent.

From that level they had declined to 1,147,000,000 yen at the end of 1931, when she abandoned the gold standard after trying for a long period to keep the yen worth 50 cents (U. S.) in gold.

World Cotton Use Driven to Peak in August

Consumption Climbs to 1,266,000 Bales; Mill Expansions Aid.

New York, Oct. 6.—World consumption of American cotton was on an unusually high level during August, and at an annual rate far in excess of the cotton crop this year, according to a report issued by the New York Cotton Exchange Service. August consumption totaled approximately 1,266,000 bales, compared with 1,067,000 in the same month last year, 936,000 two years ago and 799,000 three years ago.

Without allowing for seasonal variation, consumption in August was on an annual basis of about 15,200,000 bales, the Exchange Service says. The current crop is estimated at approximately 12,400,000 bales.

If consumption should continue at the present annual rate, this would result in reducing world stocks this season by about 2,800,000 bales. Consumption last season totaled 14,105,000 bales, and the world stock was reduced 1,500,000 bales.

Consumption in August.

World consumption in August this year was the largest in any August since 1927, and was probably the second largest August total on record. The large 1927 total resulted from the favorable combination of high general business activity and a rising cotton market from a low-price level following the large domestic crop of 1926.

Consumption in July and August this year was lower than in May and June, but this is in line with seasonal variations. August consumption is usually well below the monthly average for the entire year.

World consumption of American cotton has been tending upward, with practically no interruption, since the middle of 1930. The consumption in August this year was 8 per cent larger than in August three years ago. Low prices for all kinds of cotton, attractive prices for American cotton relative to foreign growths, high business activity in the Orient, and more recently the great uplift in business operations in the United States have been chiefly responsible for the expansion of consumption. The present rate is above the average of the years preceding the world trade depression.

Increase Due to Mills.

The large increase in August this year over August last year is due chiefly to the expansion of mill operations in the United States. This country consumed 572,000 bales this year against only 395,000 last year. Great Britain and the Continent also used much more than last year. Great Britain's consumption totaled 117,000 bales, as against 87,000, and the Continent's was 347,000 against 286,000.

The Orient used considerably less in August this year than in August last year, but much more than in the same month of previous years. The Orient's August total this year was 202,000 bales against 283,000 last year. In the previous three years, the average was only 120,000 bales. The phenomenal consumption by the Orient last year was due in part to a shortage of Chinese cotton but this is relieved this year by large crops in China last year and this year.

The total consumption of American cotton by all foreign countries was moderately larger in August this year than in August last year but was much larger than in August two years ago and three years ago. The total this year was 694,000 bales, against 672,000 last year, 521,000 two years ago, and 460,000 three years ago. There are no positive indications of a pronounced upward or downward trend in foreign consumption at the present time.

Canada Banks Called Bulwark In Trade Fight

Montreal, Oct. 6 (U.P.).—Canada is in a favorable position to lead the return to the prosperity of former years.

The Dominion has weathered the depression in a gratifying manner. Leaders in all departments of Canada's national life are in agreement with the Prime Minister, Right Hon. R. B. Bennett, regarding this.

Statements by bankers, industrialists, railway executives, &c., bearing on the Canadian economic situation, reflect the pronouncement of the Prime Minister that "the worst is over," that Canada "has survived the crisis," and that, while trials remain to be met, they will be successfully overcome."

Facts are Encouraging.

Especially noteworthy and encouraging is the fact that during the last decade there has not been even a run on any Canadian chartered bank, much less a bank failure.

Canadian banks, though adhering to sound principles of banking, undoubtedly have saved the Dominion from serious financial disturbance. Which demonstrates the stability of the branch banking system in times of stress.

Promising features in the present economic outlook include the healthy condition of savings deposits, the strong technical position of Canadian manufacturers and a prosperous gold-mining industry.

Position of Agriculture.

The most difficult situation in Canada is that of agriculture. A revival of world trade and a return of profits to agriculture must precede any general return of prosperity to the Dominion; but Canada is in an admirable position to participate in the first material advance.

Word from Ottawa says that Canada has an eye on the National Industrial Recovery Act in the United States, and may soon adopt a recovery program of her own to lend impetus to the forward movement. The NRA has been definitely rejected by the Prime Minister, but this does not eliminate the possibility of the Canadian government inaugurating a policy designed to remedy and stimulate business on this side of the border.

SUGAR—Raw was unchanged today at 3.53 for spots. Buyers showed interest at this level, but only in nearby positions with a sale confirmed of 20,300 bags of Cuban for prompt shipment to an outport refiner. Philippines for later shipment, which could be had at the same level, found no buying interest.

After advancing 1 to 3 points on covering and trade buying against sales in the spot market, futures weakened under increased offerings and in sympathy with the easiness of other markets with final prices net unchanged to 2 points lower. Sales were 28,400 tons, including 10,000 in exchanges from December to later positions.

Prices declined 2 to 4 points from the initial levels with the close at the low of the day.

Refined was quiet and unchanged at 4.60 for fine granulated with second hands around at 4.55@4.57½.

The raw and refined markets will be open tomorrow, but the futures market will remain closed.

COFFEE—Was generally lower today in an irregular market under commission house liquidation of near months promoted by continued poor demand for the actual.

Annealing of Iron Is Cut to 2 Days

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 6 (AP).—Annealing of malleable iron, used in a thousand ways, from automobile brake pedals to plumbing, has been reduced from a process of six days to one of two days by the University of Michigan department of engineering research here.

The process, it is estimated, will result in large money savings in an industry doing a normal annual business of $100,000,000 in which annealing now costs $18,750,000.

In the old process the iron parts were stacked in a furnace and packed about with inert material to keep the oxygen in the fire from scaling the iron, with the packing, heating, cooling and unpacking requiring a week or more. The new process eliminates the packing by heating in gas furnaces where the heat blast is controlled to eliminate the oxygen, and irons of a higher silicon content are used.

Wheat's Rally Reduces Early Heavy Losses

Market Closes Down as Other Grains Tumble to Limits.

Chicago, Oct. 6 (AP).—Every kind of grain except wheat plunged down today to the lowest prices that exchange rules would permit. Wheat fell 4⅞ cents a bushel, escaping by barely ⅛ cent the maximum limit of loss for a single day.

An avalanche of stop-loss selling overwhelmed the speculative pits. Trade comment was unanimous that the main reason lay in absence of definite public knowledge of administrative monetary plans.

Wheat rallied just at the last about 1 cent from the low point, closing nervous 3½ to 4⅛ under yesterday's finish; corn, 4 to 4⅛ down; oats, off 3 to 3⅛, and provisions unchanged to 32 cents setback.

Tumbling Starts Early.

Tumbling of grain values began almost as soon as trade started. The first important break was in corn, which was specially affected by larger arrivals at primary points and by weather conditions adapted to force rapid maturity of the crop.

Later, the rye, wheat and oats markets successively developed acute weakness, rye influenced in particular by reports that the United States had become the target of many countries with an export rye surplus, notably Canada and Argentina.

The late rally of about a cent in wheat was ascribed in part to "spread" operations between Chicago and Winnipeg, buying here against Winnipeg sales.

Purchase of Canadian.

A feature in this connection was purchase of 1,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat for shipment overseas. Some traders assert that as the United States is on a domestic basis so far as price is concerned, there is no longer the market support that used to be received from buying to fill resting orders on transatlantic account.

Corn today reached the bottommost quotations since early last May, and more than 34 cents down from the high point in July. Deferred deliveries both of corn and oats established new low-price records for the present season.

Provisions went down hill with grains, despite upturns of hog values.

Canada Trade Quits U. S. for Empire Nations

A continued trend toward increased trade with empire countries and declining trade with the United States is revealed in the latest dominion statistics, according to a report to the Commerce Department from Commercial Attache H. M. Bankhead, Ottawa.

Of the total Canadian imports in August, amounting to $38,747,000, the report shows, empire countries accounted for 35.5 per cent, an increase of $2,677,720, or 24.3 per cent over August, 1932. The United States in August, 1933, accounted for 51.8 per cent of total Canadian imports, a loss of $941,520, or 4.5 per cent compared with the same month last year. The United Kingdom supplied 25.9 per cent of the total Canadian receipts from empire countries in August of this year, an increase of $2,572,960, or 34.5 per cent over the figure for August, 1932.

Of imports valued at $161,483,239 for the five-month period ended August, 1933, empire countries are credited with 33.3 per cent, an increase of $3,797,835, or 7.6 per cent over the corresponding period of 1932. During this five-month period the United Kingdom shipped 24.9 per cent of the total, an increase of $4,501,316, or 12.6 per cent over the corresponding period of 1932. Imports from the United States in the 1933 period showed a loss of $21,742,811, or 19.8 per cent, compared with the five-month period of 1932.

During the five months ended August, 1933, the United States accounted for 54.5 per cent of Canada's imports compared with 58.7 per cent in 1932. The approach of parity in the rates of exchange between Canada and the United States for the last 60 days, it is pointed out, apparently has had little effect in increasing trade between the two countries.

Elimination of Excess Cotton Forecast by Exchange Expert

Alston Garside Sees Stocks Disappearing Under Increased Consumption, Aided by Drastic Acreage Reduction; Foreign Production Gain Feared.

Boston, Oct. 6.—It is probable that the excess stocks of cotton which have been a burden on the world cotton trade since the beginning of the world business depression will be practically eliminated by the end of next season through the program of drastic acreage reduction under Government auspices in this country, and through the fact that world consumption is running above normal, Alston H. Garside, economist of the New York Cotton Exchange, said Wednesday in addressing the annual meeting of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers.

The elimination of 10,000,000 acres this year under the program of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, said Mr. Garside, averted the piling up of world cotton stocks to a record high level, and has assured a continuance of the trend, recorded during the past season, toward a balancing of supply and demand.

"It should be observed how greatly different would be the cotton statistical situation this season if the production of this country had not been drastically reduced under the program of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration," Mr. Garside said. "There is no reason to question the estimate of the Department of Agriculture that the domestic crop this year has been reduced about 4,000,000 bales by the plowing up of 10,000,000 acres.

Record Supply Avoided.

"If these 4,000,000 bales had been added to the crop, the total all-cotton supply for this season and the prospective carryover at the end of this season would both have been the largest on record.

"The trade would have had to face the distressing realization that, not only were all-cotton supplies far above normal, but after mounting for four years they were continuing to accumulate. It is only through the program of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration that the trend of supplies has been turned downward toward a normal level.

"The phase of the cotton situation, which should be watched most closely is, obviously, the plan of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration by which cotton producers will limit their cotton acreage next year to 25,000,000 acres. Should this be accomplished, the crop next year would be 8,600,000 bales if the yield per acre should be equal to the average yield in the last 10 years, 10,700,000 bales if the yield per acre should be equal to the highest yield in the last 10 years, and 6,900,000 bales if the yield per acre should be equal to the lowest in the last 10 years.

Supply for Next Season.

"If world consumption of American cotton this season should be equal to that last season, and if the domestic crop next year should be only 8,600,000, i. e., an average yield on 25,000,000 acres, the total supply of American cotton for next season would be only about 18,200,000 bales against a normal of about 20,000,000 or 1,800,000 bales below normal.

"The greatest threat to the success of the program to raise cotton prices by control of production in this country is found in cotton production abroad. This aspect of the world cotton situation will merit close and continuous attention during the next few years.

"The total production of cotton by foreign countries this season is the largest on record. It is estimated at 11,963,000 bales, compared with 10,676,000 last season, and a previous maximum of 11,881,000 bales in 1929-30. The large prospective production abroad this year is due in only a small degree to better than average weather conditions. It is mainly due to increases in foreign acreage. It may be noted that this large foreign production is recorded in a season when the gold price of middling American cotton has ranged around 6 to 6½ cents.

Higher Foreign Yield.

"The increased foreign production may be attributed to the low level to which production costs have been reduced abroad, the low prices of alternative crops in foreign countries, and the increases in prices of cotton in foreign cotton-growing countries, in terms of the currencies of these countries, as a result of the depreciation of these currencies.

"The production control program which is being carried out in this country has for its purpose the raising of the price of cotton by reducing the supply. An elevation of the domestic price brought about in this way must inevitably raise cotton prices in foreign cotton-growing countries, and this in turn must stimulate foreign production unless foreign countries join with us in limiting their output.

"It is not to be expected that the total foreign crop will be increased next year by anything like as much as the domestic crop is reduced, for the domestic production control program calls for a reduction of the acreage to an extremely low level, and foreign countries would hardly be likely to step up their production very greatly in a single year. Chances favor a greatly reduced supply of cotton next season, and the running down of world stocks to around normal proportions.

Production May Increase.

"But if the program is continued over several years, the tendency will be for foreign cotton-growing countries to increase their production by as much as this country reduces its output, thus providing the world with as much cotton as before. The only difference would be that foreign countries would furnish a larger share and the United States would provide a smaller share of the world's cotton. Developments in these directions may greatly affect the cotton statistical situation during the next two or three years."

Analyzing world all-cotton consumption, Mr. Garside stated that it was within 200,000 bales of the pre-depression normal last season, and on the basis of the present rate it may total 500,000 bales or more above normal this season. While the trend of supplies and of relative prices would point to a larger relative use of foreign cotton and a smaller relative use of American cotton abroad, he said, these factors may be more than offset by the sale of large amounts of American cotton on credit by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to China and Russia.

Cotton Declines $1 to $1.50 on Southern Sales

December Closes at 9.38 as General Market Drops 21 to 29 Points.

New York, Oct. 6 (AP).—A further decline of $1 to $1.50 a bale in cotton today was attributed to continued southern selling and liquidation, promoted by the action of the wheat and stock markets and talk of further possible delays in the announcement of the cotton loan plan.

December contracts broke to 9.38 in the late trading or 28 points net lower and more than a cent a pound below the higher price touched from the advance of September 23. The market closed barely steady at net losses of 21 to 29 points.

There was some buying only on the relatively steady showing of Liverpool, but the demand was promptly supplied by Southern selling or liquidation and prices worked gradually lower.

Southern Selling Active.

Southern selling became active in the late trading when the decline also brought out additional liquidation. October contracts sold off to 9.24 and May to 9.78. Last prices were the day's lowest.

A private crop report placed the condition at 64.1 and the indicated yield at 12,526,000 bales.

Reports that it might be several days before complete details of the cotton loan plan could be worked out, increasing the disposition to liquidate long contracts in advance of next Monday's Government crop report.

Exports today, 31,606, making 1,496,823 so far this season. Port receipts, 91,761. Port stocks, 3,603,678.

Futures Price Range.

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil was easier today under liquidation and scattered selling, promoted by the weakness of lard and grains and the easiness of other commodities. Final prices were 6 to 11 points net lower. Sales, 17 contracts. Bleachable spot and October closed 4.50; December, 4.69; January, 4.76; March, 4.98; May, 5.11.

West Virginia Asks 5 Funds

Clarksburg, W. Va., Oct. 6 (Spl.). Five additional public works projects have been forwarded for approval to Washington by the West Virginia advisory board.

They include a water works plant and a sewerage system at Hurricane to cost $67,000; a sewerage system at New Cumberland to cost $28,000; a water plant at Ripley to cost $35,000, and a hospital at Grafton to cost $150,000.

Projects previously sent to Washington by the board include $200,000 for State forest lands; water and sewerage systems at Summersville; a bridge across the Kanawha River at St. Albans; a water plant at Shinnston; water and sewerage systems at Fayetteville, and water plants at Belington, Wayne and Benwood.

Roanoke Pay Roll Goes Up $21,000

Roanoke, Va., Oct. 6 (Spl.).—An increase of about $21,000 a month in payrolls has resulted from the NRA campaign in Roanoke, according to the Chamber of Commerce.

Of the 248 employers reporting, 130 have reported increases in employment and payrolls, three reported decreases, and the remainder said no change had been made.

Clem D. Johnston, chairman of the NRA executive committee, has been selected to chairman the Roanoke NRA Compliance Board composed of six members as follows: Mrs. J. W. Boswell, L. Franklin Moore, R. W. Cutshall, S. M. Price, T. H. Glenn and W. P. Hazlegrove.

Wool Market.

Boston, Oct. 6 (A.P.) (U. S. Dept. Agr.). Wool is moving slowly in the Boston market. Sales are being closed steadily but lack the volume common in the past few weeks and are not as frequent. Prices do not show any definite change from recent quotations. Most holders are very firm on asking prices.

The Commercial Bulletin will say tomorrow:

"The demand for wool has slowed up noticeably compared with the big movement which has been current for some weeks, but there is still enough business to keep prices firm, especially in view of the restricted supplies of wool available. It is estimated that of the 1933 domestic clip there are not more than 90,000,000 pounds left in the hands of dealers and growers.

"New business at the mills undoubtedly is slower but the mills are running very full still and consuming wool heavily. Reports from the piece goods and clothing markets are encouraging, although strikes are a big fly in the ointment for the moment.

"All Texas wool is moving moderately at 25 cents and 27 cents to the growers.

"Foreign markets have been somewhat irregular and prices have eased on the poorer wools. The London sales probably will be shortened.

"Mohair is quieter with prices little changed."

The Commercial Bulletin will publish the following quotations:

Domestic: Ohio and Pennsylvania fleeces—Delaine unwashed 34@35; ½ blood combing 35@36; ⅜ blood combing 41@42; ¼ blood combing 40@41.

Dr. Newcomb New President Of Virginia U.

Acting Head of Institution Given Permanent Place by Governing Board.

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 6 (Spl.)—After two years' deliberation, the University of Virginia board of visitors today elected Dr. John Lloyd Newcomb president, to succeed Dr. Edwin Anderson Alderman, who died April 29, 1931.

The election was unanimous. Dr. Newcomb at the September meeting had been named to continue acting president to the end of the present session.

Notified of his election by Frederick W. Scott, rector, Dr. Newcomb expressed pleasure at the board's confidence and pledged the office the utmost of his loyalty and ability.

Effective October 1.

The appointment is effective as of October 1. Plans for installation ceremonies will be formulated at the next meeting of the regents.

Dr. Newcomb, second president the university founded by Thomas Jefferson has had in its 110 years, is a Virginian. His predecessor, Dr. Alderman, its first president for more than a quarter century, hailed from North Carolina.

Dr. Newcomb was born in a little hamlet in Gloucester county 51 years ago, son of Benjamin Carey Newcomb and Martha Jane Coleman Newcomb.

He entered William and Mary College and received his A. B. Degree in 1900. He then attended the engineering school at the university here, graduating with the degree of civil engineer in 1903. He holds also the degree of D. S. C. from Washington and Lee University.

Return to University.

After leaving college he was made division engineer on maintenance of way for the Norfolk and Southern Railway, but a year later returned to the university and in 1910 was named a professor in the engineering school. Fifteen years later he was appointed dean of that division.

He is a member of the society for the promotion of engineering education and the American Association of University Professors of the Pi Kappa Alpha Social Fraternity, Sigma Beta Phi, Phi Beta Kappa, and Tau Beta Pi honorary fraternities.

In April, 1924 he married Mrs. Grace Russell, of Richmond.

Dr. Newcomb was the recepient last year of a trophy from the Raven Society, student honor group, for his interest in student problems.

The prince is an employe of an American oil company.

Deed Restrictions Attacked in Suit

Owners Move to Set Aside Pact Involving Property.

Attempt to remove from the deed to their home a covenant restricting use to which the land shall be put, has been begun in District Supreme Court by Benjamin R. Williamson and Hannah R. Williamson, his wife, of 2114 Fourth street northeast.

The covenant was written into the deed on a large tract of land, including that of the Williamsons, in 1902. It required each landholder to erect a building costing not less than $2,500; forbade them manufacturing or selling intoxicating liquors and prescribed a penalty for leasing or selling to colored persons.

It is alleged the neighborhood has changed greatly and that the covenant affects salability of the property. Defendants were other property owners in the vicinity.

Upward Trend Found in Jobs And Business

A. F. of L. Joins Groups Pointing Out Shift to Brighter Future.

(Associated Press.)

An upward trend in employment and other encouraging business indices were reported yesterday by semiofficial agencies as President Roosevelt moved to end the Pennsylvania coal-steel strike as a major obstacle to the recovery program.

From three sources came reports of a shift toward better times. They were:

The American Federation of Labor, in its monthly survey, said while "the business mood at present is one of uncertainty," employment was increasing, work hours being shortened and pay rolls expanded.

The American Railway Association announced loadings of revenue freight for the week ended September 30 amounted to 661,827 tons, an increase of 9,158 tons over the preceding week and 40,169 tons over the corresponding week of last year.

Walter C. Teagle, chairman of NRA's Industrial Advisory Board, made public a report by the cotton textile industry showing an employment increase of 145,000 from March to September, with pay rolls mounting from $12,800,000 monthly to $27,000,000.

The labor federation's survey cited the recent lag in business, as compared to the early summer, but said:

"Many are unduly pessimistic and impatient with the recovery program. Examination of the facts will show, however, the past two months have brought many constructive developments, fundamental to sound business progress."

Six States Get Relief Grants of $4,689,909

Relief grants totaling $4,689,909 were announced yesterday by Harry L. Hopkins, administrator, for Ohio, California, North Carolina, Arkansas, Colorado and Maine, the Associated Press revealed.

Ohio was allotted $2,443,500; California, $1,171,037; North Carolina, $364,309; Arkansas, $360,000; Colorado, $271,519, and Maine, $79,242.

Six Die in Lifeboats Leaving Wrecked Ship

Santiago, Chile, Oct 6 (U.P.).—The ministry of interior has announced that four adults and two children passengers of the S. S. Valdivia, which sank after going on the rocks off the Chilean coast Thursday, had died after leaving the ship in small boats. The S. S. Araucania picked up a lifeboat containing eight men from the Valdivia. Others had been rescued previously.

Victims of Hurricane Inoculated in Tampico

Tampico, Mexico, Oct. 6 (U.P.).—Inoculation of citizens here against infection following a hurricane and floods proceeded slowly today because of the lack of medical supplies.

Hundreds continued to accept the government's offer of free transportation and left the devastated zone.

U. S. Sends Liquor Tax List to Revenue Men

The Bureau of Internal Revenue has dispatched to all its collectors a memorandum of taxes and duties which would become automatically effective upon repeal of the eighteenth amendment, according to the Associated Press.

A levy of $1.10 a gallon on all distilled spirits is prescribed with an additional 30-cent tax on rectified spirits.

Antietam Battlefield Supervisor Loses Post

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 6 (Spl.).—George B. Alexander, superintendent of the Antietam Battlefield since 1927, has been relieved.

Alexander's reappointment was recommended by the office of the Quartermaster General in a letter to the Director of the National Parks, by Lieut-Col. James H. Laubach, Quartermaster Corps. Alexander is a Republican.

Nats' War With Umpires High Light of Brilliant 2-1 Giant Victory

Crowder's Arm Reported Sore, Stewart May Oppose Schumacher

Nats Must Win Today To Remain in Running; Whitehill Might Hurl

Another Course Open to Cronin Is to Start Jack Russell.

New York's Mound Star Will Be Seeking His 2d Series Victory.

THEIR backs to the wall, with defeat meaning the end of the world series in favor of the Giants, the Washington Club faced a pitching problem for the fifth game today.

Manager Joe Cronin freely volunteered last night that he had as yet committed himself to no pitching selection. He said he would not make a choice until shortly before game time today.

The Nats will find opposed to them Hal Schumacher, the sophomore member of the Giants' staff, who has to his credit a triumph over the Nats in the second game of the series, when he duplicated the feat of Hubbell in the opener by permitting only five hits as he pitched the Giants to a 6-1 victory.

Stewart Likely Choice.

Walter Stewart looms as the likeliest pitching choice of Manager Cronin as the Nats attempt a last-ditch stand today. The somber southpaw, who was batted from the box in the first game at the Polo Grounds, has had more rest than any other regular of Cronin's mound corps.

That Cronin still retains confidence in Stewart was apparent when he had the southpaw warming up to relieve Monte Weaver in the late stages of yesterday's pitching duel. The only Washington pitcher to stop the Giants was Earl Whitehill, like Stewart, a left-hander.

Arm Reported Sore.

There were disconcerting reports about the Nats' clubhouse yesterday that Al Crowder, another logical pitching choice of Cronin, was suffering from a sore arm that required the ministrations of Trainer Mike Martin.

Crowder, who allowed only two hits in five innings in the second game and then collapsed with a loud report, has been the Nats' dependable in every emergency this season, and if his arm is in shape, he rates with Stewart as an equal possibility for the starting role today.

May Start Russell.

The long-shot course open to Cronin is to start his relief pitching star, Jack Russell, or send Earl Whitehill back to the mound with but two days rest.

Series history, however, favors the choice of a left-hander, for it was a southpaw, Earl Whitehill, who was able to stop Bill Terry and Mel Ott, in whom the Giants' hitting strength is concentrated.

Series Notes

The Nats seem to think that Umpire Charley Moran won yesterday's ball game, assisted by Carl Hubbell.

For a while it looked as though the game would go into the night, so Moran could escape under cover of darkness.

A Cabinet meeting kept the President and most of the notables from the game yesterday.

The No. 1 man of these United States is expected at today's game, however. Which is a good omen for the Nats, who think that he brings them luck.

All that noise in the right field stands was emitted from the gentleman garbed in white trousers, embellished with natty red stripes. To top off the ensemble, he was wearing a straw hat plastered with stickers. His shouting was done through a red and white striped megaphone.

John Heydler, president of the American League, was introduced to Senator Pat Harrison. By Judge Landis.

Mel Ott lent Lefty O'Doul his favoriite bludgeon during batting practice, but Lefty didn't like it.

Goose Goslin took pot shots at the bandmaster's head during the warm-up. But Cliff Bolton, on the receiving end, caught them nicely, so the music went on.

"Blind Johnny," the colored scorecard vender, who can tell the progress of a game by the vocal reactions of the fans, predicted a win for the Nats yesterday.

Joe Cronin's bat slipped from his hands as he knocked out a foul in the second inning. Bat and ball ran a race through the air toward the third base coaching box—but Al Schacht wasn't there when they arrived.

The Giants don't know just how to arrange their fielders for Heinie Manush. So they stay wherever they are.

Babe Ruth refused to commit himself on the decision given by Umpire Moran against Manush. "He's a lot closer to 'em than I am," quoth the Babe.

Manush to Play, Ruling of Landis

Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis last night ruled that Heinie Manush, ejected from yesterday's world series game by Umpire Charles Moran, would be allowed to play today.

"Manush plays," Landis said. "As to whether he will be fined I can only say that if anything further is done about this matter it will not be done until after the world series is over.

Shortly before Landis announced his decision, Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington Baseball Club, stated that Landis had informed him that Manush should not have been put out of the game.

All Emotions Wrung by 4th Game

"Blondy" Ryan Big Figure by Hit and Starting of Fatal Double Play.

By Frank Getty.

THE moving finger of baseball destiny has written a heroic role for lean Carl Hubbell in this 1933 world series, and all the prayers, persistence and pigeons in Washington couldn't change a word of it yesterday afternoon.

While a throng of 27,762 fans, packed in the sunshine and deepening shadows of Griffith Stadium, experienced all the tortuous gamut of human emotions—from apprehension, dismay, rage, joy and high hope, to ultimate despair—the mighty southpaw of the New York Giants, ably assisted by the fates, defeated the Washington Nationals, 2 to 1, in a spectacular 11-inning game.

That the fates which weave the destinies of this national pastime picked young "Blondy" Ryan to fulfill their purpose and light the torch of victory for the tiring Hubbell only indicates how determined they were that no mere aspiring mortals such as our ambitious Nationals should interfere.

Blondy's Double Feat.

It was disappointment enough for this vast crowd of loyal Washington rooters to see the promise of victory over the mightiest of National League pitchers snatched away time and again by failure of its own heroes. It was positively dismaying to have the youthful Ryan, hitherto more distinguished for his exurberance than for his other performances on the playing field during this series, bob up with the winning base hit in the eleventh inning—a most unexpected feat, which "Blondy" followed up a little later by starting the fast double play which ended the game.

For the throng which went to Griffith Stadium to see the vaunted Hubbell pitch the Giants to a lead of three games to one over the still hopeful Nationals, this ball game yesterday held just about every variety of thrill.

Apprehension marked the crowd's attitude through the first three innings. The greatness of Hubbell was demonstrated to these doubting Washington fans early and often as not a single Nat reached first base.

Dismay, Rage and Joy.

Dismay followed, when Memphis Bill Terry, manager of the National League champions, drove a long home run into the center field bleachers early in the fourth inning.

Then came rage, when the Nationals' first real scoring threat was frustrated by a close decision against Heinie Manush at first base. For the first time in this series, the infuriated clamor of an outraged citizenry, crying for the lifeblood of an umpire, billowed out from the stands, swirling around the squat figure of Charley Moran, who

Man Knows Nats, Wins Citizenship

Philadelphia, Oct. 6 (AP).—Washington lost the world series game today, but won American citizenship for a young Italian.

The youth was one of a dozen whose applications were opposed by naturalization authorities on the ground that their understanding of the Government was limited. He did fairly well until asked, "In what city is the Capitol of the United States"

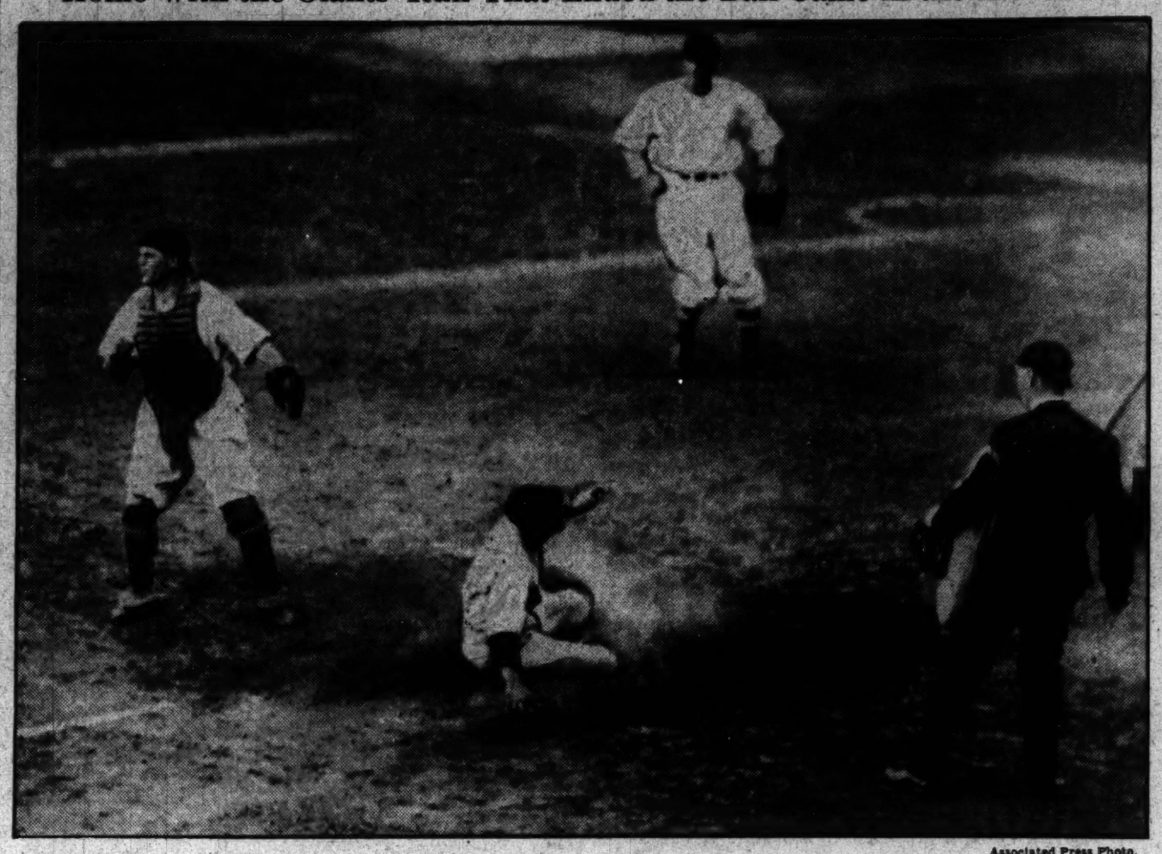

The young man pondered, but could not answer.

"Who is playing New York today for the world's championship" inquired Judge Oliver B. Dickinson.

"Washington," was the prompt reply.

"Good," commented the Federal jurist. "Let him be admitted to citizenship."

Colonials Win Over Nodaks, 27 to 6

G. W. U. Hold Dakota Team Blank Until Last Period.

GRAND FORKS, N. Dak., Oct. 6 (Spl.).—George Washington University took the measure here today of the strong football team of the University of North Dakota, ending with a 27 to 6 victory for the Capital team. The Dakotans made their single marker in the final quarter.

North Dakota kicked off and the Colonials started a series of drives which culminated in a touchdown in the middle of the second quarter. George Washington's first thrust was stopped when the Nodaks held after one first down was made. Carlin and Bomba had alternated in carrying the ball. Carlin's kick was downed by W. Parrish on North Dakota's 21-yard line. North Dakota, aided by two penalties, made a first down. Pierce's kick was partially blocked and went out of bounds in midfield. Successive gains carried the ball to the North Dakota's 25-yard line where the Sioux gained the ball on downs. Carlin did most of the ball carrying. After making one first down, Pierce quick-kicked over George Washington's goal line. Carlin kicked and the Colonials, a few plays later, recovered a fumble on North Dakota's 46-yard line. Bomba and Carlin then did some beautiful ball carrying, but the ball was lost on downs on the North Dakota's 16-yard line when Pierce knocked down a pass by McCarver, who had gone in for Carlin.

Kick Out of Bounds.

The North Dakotas, after small gain, kicked out of bounds on the Colonial 46-yard stripe. A pass, McCarver to W. Parrish, carried the ball to the 26-yard line. Bomba, on four successive smashes over center, gained ten yards. McCarver, on a beautiful cutback, carried the ball to the two-yard line where Pierce ran him out of bounds. Bomba in two smashes went over for a touchdown. Baker kicked the goal. The period ended soon after the North Dakotas made their first sustained drive and made two successive first downs.

In the second half the Colonials immediately showed their superiority. Bomba, on smashes and end

Once-Overs on Game

By H. I. Phillips.

It was a combination ball game, wrestling match, revival of "East Lynne" and a trial by jury here yesterday.

• • • •

There have been ball games and ball games in world series, but this had all the elements of sport, drama and a murder trial, with every prospect of locking the jury up for the night before a verdict could be reached.

• • • •

The Giants managed to win, 2 to 1, behind Carl Hubbell, but they had to violate all the Washington codes concerning shorter working hours.

• • • •

In fact, organized labor might have stepped in and ordered a night shift if Hubbell hadn't squeezed out of a tight spot in the eleventh just when it looked as if the Nats would declare a deadlock for the second time.

• • • •

Luke Sewell, a great labor man in the pinches, scored Kuhel with a single and tied the score in the seventh. The Giants managed to get ahead in the eleventh, but only a great double play, with the bases full, prevented the Nats making it all even again as the shades of night were falling fast.

• • • •

Monte Weaver and Carl Hubbell put up a great pitchers' battle for the greater part of the afternoon, Weaver giving away in the eleventh. But Mr. Hubbell, too, was beginning to weaken when the gong saved him.

• • • •

President Roosevelt left the Nats on their own today. For a time it looked as if they didn't need administration support. And even now the judgment of all fair-minded fans is that it would have been anybody's fight, even if the entire Cabinet had shown up.

• • • •

Here, at last, was a good old-fashioned world series game with thrills galore, spectators being carried out on stretchers, umpires being disputed, players being banished from the game and fans jeering decisions and judgments.

• • • •

It was Blondy Ryan, of the famous "We can't lose. Am on way" telegram of last summer, who drove in the winning run and won yesterday's ball game in the gathering dusk.

• • • •

Wottaman Jackson opened the eleventh by singling, and went to second on Mancuso's sacrifice. The Giants hadn't been able to do a thing with Weaver up to this point. The situation called for a man able to take advantage of big moments in history, and Mr. Ryan was the boy to answer "present and voting."

• • • •

Blondy drove out a beautiful single, scoring Jackson with the winning run. He was New York's choice for mayor last night by unanimous consent. McKee, O'Brien and LaGuardia wouldn't have a Chinaman's chance against him.

• • • •

But do those Nats give in easily? They do not. In their half of the eleventh word must have come from the White House or something, for they staged a mutiny at once.

• • • •

Schulte got a base hit. Then when Kuhel bunted a ball down the foul line and Terry made the mistake of hoping it would roll foul, which it did not, it was a case of gates ajar again.

• • • •

Bluege bunted, advancing both players, and when Sewell was intentionally walked, filling the bases with one out, fans began cutting out paper dolls all over the lot.

• • • •

The anxious Giants devoted more time to Hubbell in these few minutes than the Riddles paid to Man o' War in his entire career.

• • • •

It looked bad, and Carl didn't look any too good. But he is one good, stout workman, who wears his Blue Eagle and does his part at all times.

• • • •

When Bolton, a pinch hitter, hit into a double play a second later it was all over, the sign of disappointment from the Washington fans causing a waterspout in the Potomac River.

Odds Against Nats Reach 10 to 1

Shift of Heavy Money May Cause Sharp Drop by Game Time.

IN a telephone conversation with the Washington Post last night, Jack Doyle, Broadway betting commissioner, who lays odds on anything from the color of your great-aunt Maria's left eye to the possibility that Carl Hubbell will pitch right-handed in the final game of the series, quoted odds of 10 to 1 against the Nats taking the three straight games necessary to attain the world's championship.

Encouraged, or discouraged, depending upon one's viewpoint, by yesterday's game, the big-money betters are now laying 12 to 5 that the Nats will not take the next two games to stretch the series out to the maximum seven contests.

It is expected that the heavy betters, most of whom have backed the Giants heavily, will hedge by betting smaller amounts on the Nats, so they cannot lose regardless of the outcome of the series. This shift of money may cause the odds to drop sharply. Whereas today's game is now quoted at 9 to 10, and take your pick, they may be 7 to 10 Washington and 6 to 5 New York at game time.

Pigeon's Presence Evokes New Rule

"Pigeon rules" were added to the existing ground rules yesterday at Griffith Stadium.

Because an ordinary pigeon with an athletic turn of mind insisted on playing second base for the Giants, the arbiters found it necessary to decide whether the ball would be in play if it struck the bird. After a lengthy conference it was decided to keep the ball in play.

Gloom Takes Possession Of Nats

Fear of Hubbell's Might Had Been Banished Before Contest.

By Frank H. Young.

ALL WAS peaceful and serene in the Nats' locker room before yesterday's game, but a scene-shifter could not have made conditions more different they were when Manager Joe Cronin and the rest of the Washington team dragged themselves back into it to climb into their civies again. The cause of this light-heartedness and confidence so suddenly changing into gloom thick enough to be cut with an ax was one Carl Hubbell and eight of his mates.

After having been way down in the dumps for two days while taking lickings from the New York Giants in New York, the Nats suddenly snapped out of it Thursday and turned in a neat victory. And despite the fact that Hubbell was due to pitch against them yesterday, there was an air of confidence pervading the atmosphere as the boys put on their livery and then lolled around awaiting their turn to take the field for practice before the game. The Hubbell bugaboo had been cast aside, because all agreed that their experience in Tuesday's opening game had shown them just how to overcome the jinx of the southpaw's freaky screw-ball.

Zachary and Judge Visitors.

There was a smile on the face of every Nat. Manager Cronin was explaining to one of the newspapermen that he had not been reading any of the baseball stuff written on the series, but was saving all of the sports pages for later consumption. Dave Harris, the former Greensboro one-man police force, was gingerly giving himself a manicure, breaking rules, but getting by with it on this occasion, by using one of Trainer Mike Martin's delicate surgical scissors. Mike, himself, was sitting about chatting with anyone who would talk to him and occasionally kibitzing at the usual card game.

Among the few visitors admitted were two former favorites here, Pitcher Tom Zachary and First Baseman Joe Judge. Upon their arrival, the conversation became general and reminded of a happy family planning a picnic. Both wished the Nats well and Judge based his predictions that the Nats would beat Hubbell on the fact that "Prof." Monte Weaver would turn in a shut-out.

"Weaver," said Joe, "is the same type pitcher as Van Mungo—and the Giants never could do a thing with the Brooklyn hurler.

So cheery was everyone that the only other reference made to the impending game was by one of the players who discussed the umpire assignments.

"That guy Moran, certainly gave Hubbell all the breaks on low and outside strikes in the opening game," he said, "and I'm glad to see him away from there today." But the lad did not know what trouble he was wishing on himself and his mates when he said this. He found out, however, soon after play started and was constantly reminded of it until the very end of the battle.

The harrowing description of the changed spirit of the Nats as they returned to their dressing room will be left to the imagination of the fans. Scrappers, every one of them, they tried to smile but couldn't. A graveyard was a much pleasanter place to be in. The disappointment over their failure after a thrilling 11-inning battle, plus the sudden realization that they are now faced with the proposition of winning three in a row or being just the runners-up, temporarily had them all down.

Pittsburgh Precedent.

Even Cronin, whose infectious enthusiasm and indomitable will had kept himself and his men confident despite the odds against them after those two losses in New York, was discouraged. He had his usual smile for all comers, but it was one of the type of smiles which a fighter gives following receipt of a hard blow—he didn't mean it, but was just trying to make the referee think that it didn't hurt.

Although down, the Nats may not be counted out yet.

Incident Arouses Great Indignation, but Play Is Finally Resumed.

Open Public Mutiny Is Staged in Thrilling Overtime Game.

By Westbrook Pegler.

WELL now here, my many loving friends, was a world series ballgame of the kind that we like to think of as typical of the world series, but actually such a ballgame as we seldom see the like of in these pleasant autumn get-togethers. I did not see any of the elements of flaming drama or stark, stalking tragedy which are sometimes observed in great athletic events, but will undertake to tell you that the boys performed a very rousing extra inning game of ball and trimmed their show with a case of open public mutiny, an outbreak of lound and profane swearing and a return performance of the momentarily famous Washington ballyard pigeon which is known in these parts as Clark Griffith's Blue Eagle.

The Giants won the contest, 2 to 1, in the eleventh, after Carl Hubbell, the Giants' long, narrow, left-handed pitcher had fumbled away a one-run lead to which Will Terry had staken him when he fetched his stick around with a nice, easy swing in the fourth to hoist a home run into a little triangular section of steerage seats in the center field just to the right of the flag-mast.

Mishandles a Bunt.

With this thin advantage, Hubbell mishandled a bunt from Joe Kuhel in the seventh and the Washington first baseman, who had yet to get a hit in thirteen attempts, not only reached first but presently scored. Oswald ("Blue Jay") Bluege, the Nats' third baseman, shoved harmless Joe along to second with a sacrifice bunt, and Luke Sewell brought him in from there with a single to center. Considerable excitement ensued among the 27,000 patrons on hand.

Hubbell had only himself to blame for the extra work and risk to which he was subjected, but he toiled along out there to cook his kettle of fish into a very tasty mess of chowder after all. He allowed only eight hits, himself, against eleven which the Giants accumulated by dribs and drabs in a long P. M. of peering and swinging at the work of Monte Weaver and Jack Russell. So now the Giants lead, three games to one, and the Nats will have to win three in a row if they are to take the set, match and championship and the large share of the money. You would be almost justified in wagering against their doing this, remembering, of course, that it takes two to make a wager and that you might have to canvas a lot of asylums to find yourself a party of the second part.

Specter of Rowdyism.

Fun broke out in the last half of the sixth inning and carried over into the Giants' half of the seventh, when the grim old spectre of rowdyism bared its evil fangs and gnashed them menacingly at the solemn dignity and honor of the national game.

Charlie Moran, the umpire, who may be remembered as the football coach of the picturesque Praying Colonels of Center College, was confronted with a close decision on Heinie Manush, the Nats' outfielder, at first base. Calling the situation as he saw it with the eyes of a National League man standing in judgment over an American League player, Moran brought up his thumb in a jerk and caroled in a clear, decisive voice, "The runner is out!" Manush disagreed and whirled on Moran with an outburst of comment of a very disrespectful kind. He reflected not only on Mr. Moran's personal character and ability, but on the high office which it was his honor to enjoy. For that Moran added, "And you are out of the ball game, too."

Stirs Indignation.

Well, land sakes alive and carry two. The indignation that did stir Joe Cronin, the Washington manager, who has been advertised as a pious and right-living young man who always says "Ma'am" to ladies and "please" and "thank you," came a-whooping out from the post of command, hollering swear words which you never will know the text of from your reading of any family newspaper and, awhooping and a'hollering aloud behind him to back up the play and remember any bad words which he might forget came Luke Sewell, the catcher, a coach by the name of Kerr and several other Washington wage earners who considered themselves fair hands at straight-away, journeyman swearing. Sewell waited around quite a spell before he could break through Cronin's service and was just beginning to swing out into space when Cronin caught his breath and with a cry of "yes, and furthermore——" resumed his oration.

"Why don't you boys hush a minute and let a man swear that can swear?" said Mr. Kerr, the coach, rather plaintively. "I know me

Bad Breaks Again Feature Nats' Defeat, With Close Decisions Also Adverse

Umpire Gets Blame for Losses

Turning Point in Eighth Came When Goslin Over-Hit Bunt.

THERE is an old saying in sports that "Lady Luck always travels arm and arm with a winner," and this certainly hits the nail on the head, judging from how the breaks have affected the result of the four games already played in the title set between the Nationals and Giants.

If you listen to the Washington players, the worst of the several breaks which they have received actually was dealt them more than a week ago when John Heydler, National League president, named Charley Moran as one of the umpires. It was Moran who was behind the plate in the opening game and who the Nats say gave Pitcher Carl Hubbell every close decision, and it was this same former grid coach of Center College whose decisions yesterday grabbed victory right out of the Washington club's hands, they declare.

Not Even a Nod.

But whether or not the blame for the native defeat can be placed on the broad shoulders of Moran, the Nats still could have won had they benefited from even the faintest smile from Lady Luck—or even without this had they been able to insert a timely hit on a number of occasions.

Had several other things worked out, Bolton, who hit into a double play to end the game, would never have gone to bat, for the Nats would have copped it in regulation time. Terry's homer, for instance, was the only hit affected by the bleachers added for the series. It came with one out in the fourth and the tough break from a Nat standpoint was that it cleared the wall guarding the temporary seats just to the left of the scoreboard by a matter of inches. And later in this same inning, Davis swung with all his might at a ball, topped it, and a perfect bunt resulted. This caused Pitcher Monte Weaver to get in hot water, from which he had a mighty hard time wiggling out.

Crisis in Eighth.

Probably the turning point of the game was reached in the eighth. The teams were tied, 1-1, and Myer had opened for the Nats with a hit. Goslin tried to sacrifice. He is rated as a good bunter, but Lady Luck was against him on this occasion, and his effort resulted in a tap to Hubbell, who fielded the ball quickly enough to force out Myer at second. Had this play gone through, the Nats would have broken the deadlock and copped the verdict. Myer would have advanced on Harris' out and easily scored on Cronin's single.

There is no question in most fans' minds but what the umpires call 'em as they see 'em, but usually the close ones are more or less evenly divided. Yesterday, however, there were two decisions at first which practically all of the cash customers saw differently from Umpire Moran. In the fourth, Myer attempted a swinging bunt, Hubbell juggled the ball and then made a great throw to first while out of position. Only Moran seemed to think Myer was out, but his think was official and stood.

Ruling Killed Chance.

Had Myer been declared safe—as 27,762 cash customers thought he was—the Nats would have scored at least once in this frame and there is no telling but what they might have staged a big rally. Goslin singled and Manush walked after that, which would have meant filled bases with none out. But, thanks to this decision against Myer, Hubbell was able to pull out of the hole.

It was on the play in the sixth, which caused Manush's banishment from the game, that the American Leaguers received another frown from Lady Luck. Myer had opened this round with a single and had been sacrificed by Goslin. Manush drove one between Terry and Critz and the latter made a good stop and an equally good peg to Hubbell, who covered first. Manush apparently beat the ball to the sack, but Umps. Moran not only ruled differently but chased Manush from the game for grazing him as he ran out the tap. With Manush safe, the Nats would have had men on third and first and a great opportunity, but, as called, it was up to only one man to bring in the run and Cronin, next up, was unequal to the occasion.

City College Beaten By Western, 14 to 0

Baltimore, Oct. 6 (Spl.).—City College showed encouraging possibilities of later development, but not much for early season, in losing its opening home contest to Western High, of Washington, 14 to 0, tonight at Homewood. The contest was raggedly played, with both teams guilty of fumbling and plays that incurred constant penalties.

The line-up:

City College.	Position.	Western.
Schmidt	L. E.	Wynne
Costa	L. T.	Krouse
H. Fosler	L. G.	Schleicher
Stockbridge	Center	Sullivan
Lewer	R. G.	Love

Meginnis	R. E.	Waddell
Lindsay	Q. B.	Corcoran
Rosenstein	L. H.	Summerbell
Lanzford	R. H.	Schneider
Paparis	F. B.	Hasley

Touchdowns—Summerbell, Corcoran. Tries for point—Schleicher, place kick; Summerville, sliding. Substitutions—Western: Hoskinson, J. Waddell, Seymour, Fletcher, Hill, Owens, Bockholt, Parker, Greenwood, Coker, Parkhill, Bailey, Arnold; City College: Smith, Brown, Rittenhouse, Eder, Perrara, Pace, Frankel, Higgins. Referee—Paul Menton. Umpire—Jimmy Lutz. Head linesman—Sol Baker.

Palace Plays Sunday.

The Palace Football Team will make the first defense of their 150-pound title Sunday on the Seat Pleasant Field, at 2:30, against the Maryland A. C. Mike Scanlon will coach. All players are requested to be at the Hoover Playground for practice at 10:30 Sunday morning.

Kid Washington Needs Encouragement

Nats' Dispute With Umpires Is High Light of Giant Victory

some words you boys never heard of."

Has Another Word.

"Did you ever hear this one?" inquired Mr. Manush, himself, who had been bouncing up and down outside the huddle trying to get in a word. "This is one I learned from a man who used to drive a wagon in our town."

Mr. Sewell backed off and began to circle the group, waving his arms and apparently fixing to wind up his Sunday punch and heave it at Charlie Moran. Seeing this, George Moriarity, the American League umpire who fought the entire White Sox ball club a year ago and was disciplined for permitting them to hold him to a draw, walked briskly in from second base.

"If there is going to be any punching around here, you boys won't count old George out of it, will you?" he suggested politely. "I don't want to intrude on another man's fight but if you can spare any, please deal me in and I will do the same for you some day."

At the approach of Mr. Moriarity, Mr. Sewell for some reason ceased cranking his Sunday punch and put it quietly away although he did continue running around in circles kicking up little puffs of dust and uttering remarks.

Cools Off the Boys.

In fact, the arrival of Mr. Moriarity, with his large physique and his impressive reputation as a useful man in a riot, seemed to cool off all the boys and they went back to sulk until the inning was over. On the whole, the swearing must be recognized as superior in fluency, variety and sound of the historic performance of Jack Sharkey in Miami the night he fouled Phillip Fallova Scott, the fainting fireman from London. Sharkey's performance stood as the record for this event until yesterday afternoon but then Sharkey was swearing single handed and these boys were swearing as a team.

When the seventh inning began Manush went out to his place in left field, refusing to believe that an umpire would have the effrontery to put him out of a world series ball game or, even if the umpire should wish to, that he would have sufficient authority. Mr. Moran raised his hands and beckoned Red Crmsby, the umpire behind the plate, as superior in jurisdiction, to enforce his decree of banishment. Ormsby waved Manush out but Manush waved back defiantly and Mr. Pfirman, the umpire on third base, walked out to reason with him.

Well, it looked as though they might have to send the Marines out there to remove or detail Moriarity to knock him limp for easy removal, but finally he decided to give himself up and walked in But, passing second base, he changed his course and started for Moran with a stride and with a swing of his arms and shoulders which seemed to promise a little clean, manly carnage. So Moriarity, all eager again, fell in beside him and walked along until they were pretty close to first, where, suddenly, he put his arm around Manush's shoulder and induced him to go away.

Devitt, Fork Union Clash Here Today

Devitt Prep will pry off its grid lid when it stacks up against the strong Fork Union Military Academy in the Central Stadium this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Dick Turner, coach of the local preppers, and former Tech and later Virginia luminary, will probably start Groettum and Fisher at ends; Captain Jim Mater and Hogan at tackles; Upp and Dunnigan at the guards, with Aranoff in the snapperback role. Behind the line will be Bunch, a star at Washington-Lee High School last year; Simpson and Sorrell pairing at half, and Donnemiller at full.

Play by Play of Game

First Inning.

Giants—Moore walked. Critz lined to Myer, and Moore was doubled off first, Myer to Kuhel. Terry rapped a grounder over second for a single. Ott popped to Bluege. No runs, one hit, no errors, one left.

Nats—Myer lifted a short fly to Moore. Goslin hoisted to Ott. Manush grounded out, Critz to Terry. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Second Inning.

Giants—Davis grounded out, Myer to Kuhel. Jackson fanned. Mancuso lifted a high drive to Goslin. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Nats—Cronin lifted a high pop fly to Terry. Schulte flied to Ott. Kuhel flied to Davis. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Third Inning.

Giants—Ryan lifted a short fly to Manush. Hubbell rolled to Bluege who tossed him out at first. Moore rapped a grounder to Cronin and was thrown out. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Nats—Bluege poked a high fly to Moore. Sewell lifted a short fly to Critz. Weaver grounded to Critz. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Fourth Inning.

Giants—Critz grounded out, Cronin to Kuhel. Terry smashed a homer into the bleachers in deep center field. Ott walked. Davis grounded to Bluege for a scratch single. Ott stopped at second. Jackson fouled out to Bluege. Mancuso walked. Ryan fanned. One run, two hits, no errors, three left.

Nats—Myer bunted to Hubbell and was thrown out. Goslin singled through Terry. Manush walked. Cronin hoisted to Ott and Goslin ran to third, Manush remained at first. Schulte grounded to Ryan and Manush was forced out at second, Ryan to Critz. No runs, one hit, no errors, two left.

Fifth Inning.

Giants—Hubbell lined out to Cronin. Moore slashed a single to left. Critz lifted a Texas leaguer to Myer. Terry connected a long drive which Schulte grabbed close to the fence. No runs, no hits, no errors, one left.

Nats—Kuhel fanned. Bluege lined to Moore. Sewell cracked a single over Critz' head. Weaver fanned. No runs, one hit, no errors, one left.

Sixth Inning.

Giants—Ott singled to right. Davis bunted and was thrown out, Kuhel to Myer, as he sacrificed Ott to second base. Jackson popped to Myer. Manusco was intentionally passed. Ryan rolled out, Weaver to Kuhel. No runs, one hit, no errors, two left.

Nats—Myer beat out a sharp grounder to Ryan by a step. Goslin bunted to Jackson and was thrown out at first, sacrificing Myer to second. Manush grounded sharply, Critz grabbed and threw to Hubbell at first for a putout on a close decision, Myer going to third. Cronin struck out. No runs, one hit, no errors, one left.

Seventh Inning.

Giants—Harris went to right and Goslin replaced Manush in left field for the Nats. Hubbell—grounded out, Cronin to Kuehl. Moore—Lined double past Cronin. Critz—Grounded to Cronin and was thrown out at first, Moore advancing to third. Terry—bounced to Weaver and was tossed out at first.

No runs, one hit, no errors, one left.

Nats—Schulte — popped out to Terry. Kuhel—bunted to Hubbell and beat the throw when the pitcher juggled the ball. Hubbell was charged with an error. Bluege—bunted to Hubbell and was thrown out at first, Kuhel running to second. Sewell—lined to center for a single, scoring Kuhel. Weaver—popped out to Critz.

Eighth Inning.

Giants—got a single on a sharp grounder that bounced off Cronin's shoulder. Davis—fanned. Jackson—grounded out, Myer to Kuhel, Ott running to second, Mancuso bounced out, Weaver to Kuhel.

Nats—Myer—Myer walked. Goslin—bunted to Hubbell and Myer was forced at second, Hubbell to Ryan. Harris—grounded to Ryan and Goslin was forced at second, Ryan to Critz. The relay to Terry was wild and Harris reached the base on a fielder's choice. Cronin—dropped a single into right field, sending Harris to third. Schulte—popped to Critz.

No runs, one hit, no errors, two left.

Ninth Inning.

Giants—Ryan cracked a single over Kuhel's head. Hubbell bunted beautifully along the first base line for a sacrifice. He was thrown out, Sewell to Myer, as Ryan went to second. Moore went out on a hopper, Weaver to Kuhel. Critz flied to Harris. No runs, one hit, no errors, one left.

Nats—Kuhel fanned. Bluege lifted a fly to Ott. Sewell grounded to Ryan and was thrown out at first. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Tenth Inning.

Beach Annexes Golf Title By Stroke

IT takes a birdie to beat a par, and Ralph Beach, stout-hearted pro from the Suburban Country Club, Baltimore, was equal to the occasion yesterday.

Beach defeated a fellow townsman, Glenn Spencer, of Maryland Country Club, defending title holder, by the slim margin of 1 up in the 36-hole finals of the Middle Atlantic P. G. A. golf championship at Chevy Chase, thanks to a birdie 3 on the thirty-fourth hole.

The new Middle Atlantic professional champion shot a 70—74—144, while Spencer was hot on his heels with 72—73—145.

Maryland and C. U. Battle Foes Today

Former Against V. P. I. at Norfolk; Cards Face Holy Cross Team.

DISTRICT teams will participate in two games today, although both will be on foreign fields. Catholic U. is at Worcester, Mass., for its annual tiff with Holy Cross, while Maryland is at Norfolk, Va., where it is scheduled to play its old rival, V. P. I.

Although C. U. is conceded an excellent chance of stopping the Crusaders, Maryland will be the underdog against the Cadets. A squad of 27 players, most of them green sophomores, is at Norfolk, and the Terrapin coaches figure that V. P. I.'s greater experience will be the deciding factor in the game.

With a well-balanced team, a smooth and powerful running attack, Catholic U. is well prepared for its game with Holy Cross. The Cards pointed for this game and will be at their best. With a new coach at the helm, Holy Cross does not loom as strong as last season, when it nosed out the Washington eleven in the final period.

Eastern High Wins From Alexandria, 7-0

Eastern High blanked the crack Alexandria High eleven, 7 to 0, on Eastern's field yesterday, after Keegin, left half back, took a journey around end with the pigskin under his arm all the way to the goal line in the third quarter.

The Picture Story of the Fourth Game of the World Series

One at Game "Far From" Tragedy

Veteran Matron Stayed Where She Couldn't See Fatal 11th.

By Esther Van Sciver.

A VERY MAIDEN LADY who looked exactly like my Aunt Mattie, from Maine, had the best time of any one at the ball game yesterday. She was squired by a tall gentleman with graying hair. Every few minutes he murmured, "After all these years—and you've not changed a bit."

There were other people in the box with them, but neither of them knew it. The game got small attention, too.

Four comfortable-looking matrons divided their time between the game and the daughter-in-law problem.

"I tell you," said the stout one, who had been poured into her green wool frock, "I made up my mind I wasn't going to stay home this afternoon with those children. And miss this game. Not much."

"Well, I always say," insisted the middle-aged blond, "when you've raised one family you've done your duty."

Jeannie Brooks, who has been matron at the ball park for 17 years, had a word to say. She sat where she couldn't see the game and reminisced to the ladies that came trotting in for powder to refresh their sun-streaked complexions.

"More ladies come now than ever," she said. "And on Friday, when they get in for nothing—that's when they all show up. Of course, now that they have that 10-cent tax, some of 'em goes on back home. They kick about that, they do. Yes, ma'am."

Brooks also confided that a good many of the bright young things who want their beaux to think they know all about the game drift into the rest room beforehand to get the lowdown from her.

"I always try to tell them something that will sound pretty good when they say it," she confessed.

Babe Ruth sat up in the press box between Bill Slocum, sports writer, and his telegrapher. And with the Babe right there at his elbow, Bill delved into Spalding's little red handbook of baseball every few minutes. I'll bet Babe knew all the answers!

He was dressed in brown from top to toe. He looked almost like what-the-well-dressed - man - will-wear. His shoes were dark brown suede and his sox brown silk. His suit was brown and so was his cap. Even his face had a ruddy brown sun-tanned tone.

He chewed gum and smoked a cigar simultaneously throughout the game.

Some one asked him, "You wouldn't be up here by choice, would you?"

And the Babe smiled back, "Not by choice."

Walter Johnson, Washington's hero for years and years, seemed to be the forgotten man at yesterday's game. He wandered quite alone along the rows of seats in the press box looking for a place to sit. And no one made any sign that he is one of baseball's immortals.

No one showed that he remembered that the tall man in the brown polo coat and the grey hat pulled over his eyes had been the center of everything for years.

There was nothing to remind an onlooker that Walter Johnson had, for 15 years, pitched the opening games before presidents and notables.

He sat there and looked homesick.

The girls took quite a hand in that popular pastime known as rattling the pitcher. They beat their gloved hands together rhythmically and hoped the noise of it would help the boy at bat to make it.

It was rather a sad crew that filed out slowly at the end of the eleventh inning. A good many nice crimson finger nails were pretty badly chewed. The girls seemed to take our defeat to heart more visibly than the men.

They pouted and some of them sulked. And most of them jawed about the Manush incident in the fourth.

They seemed to feel that Manush really was safe. And they insisted that his gesture toward Moran was an accident. They had a lovely time feeling sorry for him.

"He certainly was safe. I guess I can believe what I see with my own eyes," came loudly and repeatedly from a black haired youngster of about 17, whose arguments had three goodlooking youths baffled.

Nats' Hopes Fade as Hubbell Hurls Giants to 2-1 Victory

Sewell was the question. Manager Terry ordered to pass him and set up double-play possibilities.

Thus the bases were full, one out, the Nats needing one run to tie, two to win and level the series at two games each. The 27,762 in the stands were subjects for the psychologists. A hit, a pinch hit or a long fly. Out of the dugout strode Cliff Bolton, hero of many another last-ditch uprising. Manager Joe Cronin called him back to give him a handshake and a confident smile, and sent him again into the batters' box to hit for the pitcher.

Out there on the pitching mound, Hubbell and his screwball had been a heroic figure. Here and there among the grandstandees, both admiration and sympathy was being voiced. Hubbell came out of a conference with Terry to face Bolton.

One ball. A strike, missed by Bolton. Ball two. A terrific grounder skidded into the short-field territory. On the spot was Blondy Ryan—on the spot, literally, and in the jargon of the underworld. And then Ryan proceeded to reach for the hero's mantle. It draped about his shoulders as if preordained. Like a flash he pounced on that grounder of Bolton's. Like a juggernaut, he hurled it to Hughie Critz at second base. Even as Schulte crossed the plate from third base with the winning run, Bill Terry, at first, had received the relay from Critz.

Beautiful Double Play.

It was a double play. A beautiful, death-dealing double play, that the rookie, Ryan, had launched. Hubbell had won. The "Can't Beat Us Kid" had won. The ball game was over. Wotta ball game.

Those eleven innings had run the gamut of thrills from the first inning, through the fourth, when Manager Bill Terry elevated the Giants into a 1-to-0 lead with a terrific home run into the temporary bleachers in dead-center field, through the sixth, when Heinie Manush was ejected from the game in a potent display of umpiratical authority that caused two pop bottles to descend from the upper stands and raised the old, familiar yell of "Kill the umpire!"

Manush's ouster was the upshot of one of the frequent close decisions at first base that had reacted against the Nats. It was with Buddy Myer on third base, with the score 1-0 in favor of the Giants, and one out, in the sixth, that Manush sent a scorching grounder toward right field. Terry left first base in an attempt for the ball that Critz scooped up. Pitcher Hubbell rushed over from the mound to cover the bag and take Critz's throw. Manush and Hubbell reached the bag at approximately the same moment.

Manush Is Enraged.

Manush heard Umpire Charley Moran, standing on the right field foul line, call him out. Enraged, he turned as he passed Moran and brushed his left hand across Moran's neck, knocking the umpire's black bow tie askew. If it was intentional, Manush made it look quite accidental.

Up comes the umpiratical thumb in the age-old gesture: "You're out of the ball game." Now thoroughly maddened, Manush storms back at Moran. Manager Cronin, infielders and coaches gather about, pleading, threatening, ridiculing. Moran turns his back. Manush is out.

For a brief moment, the argument subsides. Cronin thinks the better of it and returns to harangue Moran. Buddy Myer rushes to his support, Umpire Moriarty comes in from second base to the scene of the argument. Umpire Moran retreats discreetly toward right field. A pop bottle plunges down from the stands, missing Moran by 20 feet. Myer is about to be put out of the ball game by Moriarty.

Argument Resumed.

Out to his left field post, Manush returns. Umpire Moran starts waving frantically to Umpire-in-Chief Ormsby. Manush was out of the game, he had said. Ormsby wiggles a commanding finger at Manush. From deep in the outfield, Manush waves back—a razzberry wave—and makes no motion to come in. Finally, Manush starts back to the bench.

Buddy Myer and Ossie Bluege fasten to his belt as he crosses the infield headed for Moran at first base. There the argument resumes. The fans are hooting in their wrath. Moran moves farther toward the outfield, and Manush is persuaded to return to the bench with Umpire Moriarty providing an escort.

Thus it was that when the game ended a cordon of police in uniform escorted Umpire Moran to the dugout, just in case.

Hubbell-Weaver Duel.

Hubbell and Weaver had been locked in a beautiful pitching duel. Not until the fourth was it interrupted by Terry's screaming drive to the dead center bleachers, clearing the barrier by inches as it fell into the laps of the surprised and chagrined $1.10 bleacher occupants.

Hubbell had been given a one-run lead and Washington hopes sagged. One run had been enough for Hubbell in ten games during the National League season. One run bulked large in the proceedings of yesterday.

The Nats struck back in the fourth, but Schulte had left Goslin stranded on third. Hubbell himself had thrown out Myer on a bunt earlier in the inning while lying prone on the ground in a spectacular play.

Effective in Pinches.

Hubbell continued to pull out of hole after hole, feeding his screwball to the right-handers, his fast curve to the left. The Nats' most discouraging effort was in the sixth when Myer singled, advanced to second on Goslin's bunt to third, when Manush was called out by Moran, and was left to perish on the base as Cronin struck out.

The Nats' penetrated Hubbell's defense to tie the score in the seventh, finding the Achilles Tendon of the Giant pitcher in another bunt. This, an easy grounder into the box by Kuhel, he juggled until it was too late to make the play. One was out, Bluege sacrificed, and Luke Sewell then became the temporary hero of the fourth game of the series.

On the first pitched ball Sewell spanked a clean single to center to bring Kuhel scrambling home from second base, and the score was tied as delirium reigned in the stands.

Put Down Rallies.

Through the eighth, ninth and tenth Weaver and Hubbell were scaling the heights in times of stress. Each rally they put down by the sheer brilliance of their pitching skill.

Came the eleventh, and Travis Jackson, whose weak knees had been recognized as the Giants' greatest gamble of the series, caught the Nats' infield unaware with a bunt down the third base line to open the inning. So perfect it was there was no play. There was nothing the matter with Jackson's knees as he streaked toward first.

Mancuso sacrificed Jackson to second. But it was no situation to view with alarm. Ryan was next—Ryan who hit .243 during the regular season. Weaver had escaped from deeper holes. And then the "Can't-Beat-Us Kid" broke up the ball game with that smash into left field on the first pitched ball.

Memphis Is Planning Reception for Terry

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 6 (AP). When Bill Terry comes home from the world series, his home town plans to give him what even Mayor Watkins Overton anticipates as a "rousing reception."

The mayor and C. E. Klaiber, president of the chamber of commerce, have sent a telegram to the manager of the New York Giants, in which they commended him for the showing of the Giants thus far.

"All Memphis pulling for you," the telegram said. "Let us know when you will arrive in Memphis, because the town wants to give you a rousing reception."

Every Emotion Is Displayed During Thrilling 4th Game

had put Heinie out of the game for an unimportant gesture of protest.

Joy succeeded rage an inning later, when the too eager New York pitcher juggled a bunt a second too long and allowed Joe Kuhel to reach first, whence he scored on a spanking single by Luke Sewell, tying the score.

Now Washington hopes were high, indeed, and the fans who had sat silently watching the game, after Terry's homer, came to life in a tumult of encouragement for the Nationals.

Hope Seemed Justified.

And high hope and anticipation of a Washington victory, which would have tied up the series, seemed fully justified as Monte Weaver and Hubbell toiled away into those exhausting, nerve-wracking extra innings. Through the eighth, ninth and tenth innings the Giants put only two men on base; the Nats had seven men reach first in the same period.

But despair, such as these Washington fans had not before encountered in either series game here, was waiting its turn. Fate gave the cue and tapped "Blondy" Ryan on the shoulder.

When Travis Jackson, New York third baseman, laid down a perfect bunt, which enabled even his enfeebled underpinnings to carry him safely to first, to start the eleventh inning, few in that multitude rooting so ardently for a Washington victory felt any great apprehension. Gus Mancuso would have to bunt—which he did, incidentally—and this would bring up those weakest of Giant hitters, Ryan and Hubbell.

Silent Gloom Descends.

With Jackson neatly sacrificed to second, and the tall blonde Ryan striding to the plate and fidgeting nervously, there were only encouraging cries of "Strike him out, Monte!" in the chill, late, afternoon air.

Then Ryan smacked one—a blow doubtless heard 'round Washington by this time, with echoes in faraway Harlem and points East—and the deepest silence of this whole world series, a silence of genuine suffering, descended like a mantle of gloom upon the throng. As far as the crowd was concerned, that looked like the end of the ball game, and thousands were shuffling to the exits even before the Nats went to bat for their last chance.

But the fates had a fillip to climax this spectacle, another last-inning thrill or two, as the fighting Nationals filled the bases with only one out, and the Giants infield huddling desperately about the pitchers' box for some final master minding. It seemed as though Washington would yet pull this game from the fire of impending defeat, or at least prolong the dramatic struggle, with such able batters as Cliff Bolton and Buddy Myer coming up.

Amid a defending tumult of exhortation, Bolton sent an anticlimatic little bounder straight to Ryan for an easy double play, dashing the last hopes and sending the crowd home sadly shaking its collective head, that such things could be.

B. Y. P. League Opens.

The Baptist Young People's Bowling League will officially open its season at the Arcade Bowling Alleys, Fourteenth and Park road, tonight at 8 o'clock. All teams are requested to report at the manager's office at 7:30 for an important conference.

Eastern A. C. Practices.

The Eastern A. C. will practice at Fifteenth and B streets southeast, at 11 o'clock today. Mervin Unklesbee and Pete Thompson are especially requested to report.

runs, carried the ball almost single-handed to the North Dakota's 24-yard line. A 15-yard penalty momentarily stopped the Colonials, but a pass to McCarver from Carlin and some beautiful and speedy running by McCarver put the ball over. Baker kicked the goal.

Pass Good For 20 Yards.

Later in the third period, a 50-yard run by McCarver was nullified when a Colonial lineman held. After Pierce kicked out of bounds a little later on his own 42-yard line, the Colonials scored on terrific smashing by Bomba, interspersed with a 20-yard pass, McCarver to Leeman, and a fine 20-yard run by Leeman during which he shook off four tacklers. Baker's kick was wide. The score came at the close of the third quarter.

After several exchanges of kicks the Colonials capitalized on a break. Cope fumbled a pass on his 35-yard line and Stewart recovered. Bomba and McCarver did some splendid smashing and running, Bomba finally going over from the 1-yard line. Baker's kick was good.

North Dakota Scores.

North Dakota took a short kickoff and on some fine passing and running by Kupcinet carried the ball over to the Colonials' 6-yard line. Falgren gained two. Kupcinet carried the ball over in two smashes. Kupcinet's pass to Tait for the extra point failed. The game ended three plays later after Meinhover kicked off over the goal line and the Colonials had failed to gain.

The Trojans will practice at 6 o'clock this morning at Missouri avenue.

Giant Players To Get More Per Share

Smaller Number on List Assures a Sum Larger Than That of Nats.

BECAUSE of the manner in which the two contending world series clubs have decided to divide the spoils, members of the New York Giants will draw down more than will the Nat players, win or loose. A Giant victory, for instance, would net each player $7,480, while Washington players would draw down $3,967 each from the share allotted the losers. Should the Nats rally and finally win out, their winning share would be worth but $6,592 to each player, while each of the Giants would draw down $4,488.

The difference in the size of the shares is due to the fact that the Giants will divide their portion into 22½ parts, minus $2,500 voted out as gifts, while the Nats are taking $2,700 from the amount they receive and then will divide it into 25½ parts.

Yesterday's game was the last in which the players figured. Their total share was $284,665.68. Sixty per cent of this ($170,799.41) goes to the series winning club to divide, with the loser whacking up the remaining 40 per cent ($103,866.27.)

Babe Bigger Lure, Roosevelt Admits

Ruth Grins as President Tells Anecdote.

Before a group of more than 100 world series writers, President Roosevelt yesterday told Babe Ruth how he had once lost a crowd during the Presidential campaign of 1920, when he ran for the Vice Presidency with James M. Cox.

The President said that as he walked into the lobby of a Rochester, N. Y., hotel he found a crowd, supposedly waiting for him, but strangely enough, not paying him much attention. Most of the back were turned towards him and out of curiosity, he investigated and found attention focused on Babe Ruth in one corner—and Galli Curci in another.

The Bambino grinned, but did not reply.

Washington-Lee Beats Winchester by 13 to 0

Ballston, Va., Oct. 6 (Spl.). Washington-Lee High School's eleven met with a 13-0 defeat today in their annual set-to with the Winchester Judges. Lefty Lake, speedy full back for the Winchester crew, went around left end on a delayed spinner play for the first marker, while a completed pass from Potts to De Witt brought the second tally. De Witt also received a short pass to score point after goal.

Rites for Cubs' Head Will Be Held Today

Chicago, Oct. 6 (AP).—A grief-stricken baseball world, stunned by the death of William L. Veeck, president of the Chicago Cubs, will pay last respects at his funeral in Hinsdale, a suburb, tomorrow.

John A. Heydler, president of the National League, with a group of club owners, deserted the world series in Washington to attend. The Cubs and the White Sox will attend in a body. Their city game, scheduled for tomorrow, has been postponed as a mark of respect.

Labrot's Grey Glade Noses Out Laurel Miss in Thrilling Finish at Laurel Track

6-1 Winner Ridden by Gilbert

Tipton Brings Home 4 Victors and Sets New Fall Record.

LAUREL RACE TRACK, Md., Oct. 6 (AP).—Maryland colors flew high when Grey Glade, racing for S. W. Labrot, ranking breeder of the Old Line State, nosed out Mrs. A. S. Dodds' Laurel Miss, the odds-on favorite, in the featured Nellie Custis Purse of 5½ furlongs here this afternoon. High Torque, racing for the New York owned Howe Stable, was third in the field of seven juvenile fillies.

Grey Glade paid $14.80. The daughter of Sir Grey Steel ran a powerful race under the slashing whip of Jockey Johnny Gilbert. Laurel Miss took command from the barrier and had disposed of High Torque entering the front stretch, when Grey Glade charged up on the outside.

Jockey A. Tipton effected a new riding record for the Maryland fall season when he rode his fourth winner of the day astride Helen's Alibi in the last race.

He had previously completed a triple when he piloted Mountain Elk, Longford and Come On into the charmed circle.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

For further proof address the author, inclosing a stamped envelope for reply. Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

Epitaphs of a few generations ago sometimes were written, not as tributes to the dead, whose graves they marked, but obviously as a means of expressing the feelings of the bereaved wife or husband, regardless of whether the loss gave rise to joy or sadness to the surviving spouse. The example shown in the above drawing is pointed enough—note that it is on a wife's grave—but others just as expressive and just as amazing may be found in many cemeteries.

On the tomb of Mrs. Mary Ford, at Selby Churchyard, in Yorkshire, the epitaph gives a clear picture of the marital life of the Fords:

Here lies the body of Mary Ford,
Whose soul, we trust, is with the Lord;
But if for hell she's changed this life,
'Tis better than being John Ford's wife.

The husband, apparently, did not write that epitaph; but at Ribbesford, England, another one in similar vein, which, apparently, was written by the husband, is recorded:

The Children of Israel wanted bread,
And the Lord He sent them manna,
Old Clerk Wallace wanted a wife,
And the Devil sent him Anna.

Colors give added realism to strange things and happenings illustrated by John Hix on a full page in The Sunday Post.

At the Post . . .

with Bill Bennings.

Dear Al: Laurel Race Track.

After seeing my first choices run second and my second choices run first for most of the early afternoon, I remained to see my first choices run first in the last three races. Yea, Bo! Longford, Come On and Helen's Alibi all came romping home just like Mrs. Bennings' lovely boy predicted. Johnny Gilbert, the 1932 riding champion, may enter a Baltimore hospital next week for an eye operation. Duke Bellizzi's suspension ends today. Jockeys Balaski and Shutte arrived here and are seeking mounts. That's all the jockey news. See you tomorrow. BILL.

First race—Escapade comes down from New York after a winning effort. Has speed on the flat and fences well. Seems the best selection among these. Outlaw is asked to give away weight in chunks, but is a consistent sort. Will be ready if the top one falters. Irish Bullet likes the course.

Second race—Slipper King has been knocking at the door. A fit youngster and ready to run a winning race. I don't believe we have to look elsewhere. Luculent did well at Rockingham, winning that last. Might be dangerous. Knight's Hope is improved.

Third race—Sun Envoy would have won that last had not Chase Me ran like a stake horse in that field of maidens. Unless there is another sleeper sunk in this field, I expect him to scamper home. Golly for the place and Big Tip for the show.

Fourth race—March Step and Jockey Jimmy Sullivan may find the punch to take this field. Not a standout combination but worth a shot for a good price. Hernando is fit and one to beat. Bally Bay discovered some good speed to win that last.

Fifth race—Cavalcade and Wise Daughter are due for another clash. The weight assignments this time are more favorable to the filly. However, the colt has demonstrated his ability to my satisfaction. I see them running one, two. Discovery for the show.

Sixth race—War Glory and Clotho get the best of the weights here. The first named had a rough trip up at the Graw and I believe he can get home here. Clotho is not to be tossed aside with 104 pounds. Tred Avon, of course, will be somewhere close.

Seventh race—Vote was well meant the other day. Goes for the Bennings' dough here. Surety and Even Up to take care of the others.

Eighth race—Tuffy G is the solid horse in the final. Looks as if his closing speed should overtake the fast pace of Daily News and Chiefs Troubadour.

*Field.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SECOND STORY, $27.40, $9.80, $7.40; GALON LAD, $19.20, $10.00; HONEY SWEET, $4.60.

SECOND STORY, away in the first flight, raced AGLAIA into submission and, under stout pressure, outstayed GALON LAD. Latter, quick to begin but slow to settle in his stride, improved his position on the outside and closed stoutly. HONEY SWEET was forced to race on the outside, but closed with good courage. HUPPY secured racing room on the inside and finished stoutly. TURRET finished full of run. BIG SHOW was unable to reach a forward position. DUNLEY and HENRY'S DAUGHTER had early foot. AGLAIA stopped badly.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:00. Off at 2:04½. Winner, G. W. Ogle's b. or br. h. (5), by Apprehension—Bantry Pass. Trained by G. W. Ogle. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 1-5, 0:47 3-5, 1:12 4-5.

POSTPONEMENT	110	3	6	$6^{1½}$	6^{2}	7	7	Rich	$25.10

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MOUNTAIN ELK, $4.80, $2.60, $2.20; BLACK TARGET, $3.40, $2.60; PRETTY WISE, $2.80.

MOUNTAIN ELK, hustled to the front shortly after the start, raced under mild restraint until challenged, was placed to punishment entering the home stretch and withstood BLACK TARGET under pressure. Latter, in closest attendance of the winner, weakened after a determined effort at the stretch turn. PRETTY WISE was never able to better his position. LOUGH PORT was held safe. LADINO weakened after a stout effort midway of the final turn. ROCK POINT was never a factor.

THIRD RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:31½. Off at 2:34. Winner, R. Curran's br. g. (4), by General Thatcher—Rachael D. Trained by G. C. Milton. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24, 0:48, 1:14 3-5, 1:42 1-5, 1:54.

ESPINO QUEEN	102	4	7	8	8	8	8	8	Windle	$45.90

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HIGH SOCKS, $5.80, $4.00, $2.80; RUANE, $12.20, $5.60; GAIT, $5.80.

HIGH SOCKS, taken under strong restraint for the first 6 furlongs, wore SUNNY SUSAN down without effort when approaching the home stretch, opened up a safe lead and finished with speed in reserve. RUANE, taken to the outside after reaching the back stretch, closed with good energy. GAIT secured racing room on the inside in the last half mile and closed gamely. SISTER MADGE was unable to maintain a forward position early. She passed tiring horses in the closing drive. PERNICKETY had no excuses. SUNNY SUSAN stopped. IRISH MAIDEN raced well placed, but was not good enough.

FOURTH RACE—The Nellie Custer. Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $800; allowances. For 2-year-old fillies. Start good from gate. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:00. Off at 3:03½. Winner, S. W. Labrot's ro. f. (2), by Sir Greysteel—White Glade. Trained by W. Irvine. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 4-5, 0:48 1-5, 1:07 1-5.

VANDIS	105	7	7	7	7	7	7	Saunders	121.20

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GREYGLADE, $14.80, $4.40, $2.80; LAUREL MISS, $2.80, $2.20; HIGH TORQUE, $2.40.

GREYGLADE, steadied within striking distance and kept on the outside of the leaders, responded strongly on reaching the main stretch, and, closing gamely, was up right at the end. LAUREL MISS, hurried along to shake off HIGH TORQUE, continued resolutely when forced to a severe drive in the closing stages. HIGH TORQUE saved ground the entire trip after racing close up and fought it out willingly under punishment. PAR VALUE made up some ground during the stretch drive. LAURETTA NASH raced on her own courage all the way. TRILLIUM could not threaten.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:30. Off at 3:32½. Winner, F. A. Griffith's ch. br. c. (3), by Sweep—Malvina B. Trained by B. Hill. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 1-5, 0:47, 1:12 1-5.

PORTER'S DREAM	117	8	5	5^{h}	5^{h}	8	8	Meade	6.50

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LONGFORD, $6.40, $3.60, $2.80; DARK LOVE, $4.00, $3.20; VESTED POWER, $4.60.

LONGFORD, kept on the outside in the early stages, moved up strongly leaving the back stretch, wore DARK LOVE down when reaching the home stretch and came out gradually when kept under mild urging. DARK LOVE, rushed hard to shake off BOHEMIAN GROVE, was placed to punishment when challenged, but weakened steadily approaching the finish. VESTED POWER, badly crowded when reaching the turn, secured racing room on the inside at the stretch turn and closed resolutely. KATE went well placed, but was not good enough in the final test. BOHEMIAN GROVE was done after a half mile. BLIMP had a rough trip. PORTER'S DREAM was held safe.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:01. Off at 4:02. Winner, G. W. Ogle's b. g. (6), by Sweep On—October Seven. Trained by G. W. Ogle. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24 1-5, 0:48, 1:14, 1:41 1-5, 1:54 1-5.

Horses	Wgt.	Post	St.	¼	½	¾	Str.	Fin.	Jockeys	Straight
COME ON	111	1	3	$6^{1½}$	5^{h}	4^{2}	$1^{½}$	1^{4}	Tipton	$0.90
KAFFA	108	7	6	$1^{1½}$	$1^{1½}$	1^{2}	$2^{1½}$	$2^{1½}$	Williams	6.30
SYRIAC	116	4	5	$4^{1½}$	2^{h}	2^{h}	3^{h}	$3^{½}$	Cruz	6.30

CHLOEDAIR	113	3	1	3^{nk}	4^{1}	5^{1}	7	7	Fowler	73.00

Two-dollar mutuels paid—COME ON, $3.80, $2.80, $2.40; KAFFA, $4.20, $3.00; SYRIAC, $3.60.

COME ON, sluggish going to the first turn, went to the outside when reaching the back stretch, circled his field resolutely in the last half mile and was under pressure after displacing KAFFA. Latter, rated in front and saving ground, held on well when put to a drive. SYRIAC was vigorously ridden all the last half mile to outstay CAPTIVE. Latter raced well throughout. CROSS ROAD was never a factor. FUSCO was done early.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:30½. Off at 4:32. Winner, Miss Baker's blk. g. (3), by Alibi—Helen Atkin. Trained by E. Brening. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24 3-5, 0:49 1-5, 1:15, 1:41, 1:54.

Horses	Wgt.	Post	St.	¼	½	¾	Str.	Fin.	Jockeys	Straight
HELEN'S ALIBI	105	1	4	$3^{½}$	$2^{½}$	2^{h}	2^{1}	1^{ns}	Tipton	$4.50
THE DOCTOR	116	7	6	$6^{½}$	$5^{½}$	3^{2}	1^{h}	2^{4}	Dabson	.80

HANDLEY	105	4	2	2^{h}	3^{h}	$4^{½}$	5^{h}	$7^{1½}$	Austin	417.80
MADAME SNOB	107	3	3	4^{h}	$4^{½}$	6^{h}	$7^{½}$	8	Cruz	34.90

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HELEN'S ALIBI, $11.20, $3.40, $2.80; THE DOCTOR, $2.60, $2.40; BONNET, $8.20.

HELEN'S ALIBI, prominent early, was placed to severe punishment when slipping through on the inside entering the home stretch, and, vigorously handled until the finish, outlasted THE DOCTOR. Latter worked his way to the leaders on the outside, assumed a brief lead at the final furlong pole and Tipton outrode Dabson when it came to a drive. BONNET, steadied in front, was unable to stay when challenged. LAST BID was never able to menace the leaders. ROLLICK was outrun. WESTY'S LAD was outrun. HANDLEY tired.

Notre Dame Will Meet Kansas

Irish-Jayhawker Clash Is Among Big College Openers Today.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6 (AP).—Rudely elbowing its way into the sports spotlight held by the world series, the young but lusty football season claims its place on the front pages tomorrow with a sparking program featured by the 1933 kickoffs of Notre Dame and the Big Three.

The Irish, opening their third season under the coaching of "Hunk" Anderson, take on a dangerous foe in the Kansas Jayhawkers of the Big Six. Harvard, Yale and Princeton open their seasons against Bates, Maine and Amherst, repectively.

Claiming interest also are many fine sectional and intersectional frays, notably in the South where Georgia-Tulane, Georgia Tech Kentucky, North Carolina-Vanderbilt and Sewanee-Florida battles are scheduled.

Middle West Battles.

Vieing for attention with the debut of Notre Dame in the Middle West are the Texas-Nebraska intersectional fray at Lincoln, the Ohio State-Virginia game at Columbus, the Indiana-Minnesota conference collision at Minneapolis and the opening tilts of Pudue and Chicago, against Ohio University and Cornell, of Iowa, respectively.

In the East the two service schools, meet Southern opponents for the second week in succession, Navy entertaining Mercer, which lost to Army last Saturday and the Cadets playing hosts to Virginia Military Academy.

Two other Southern schools also invade the North, Oglethorpe coming to New York, to seek revenge for last year's defeat by Manhattan and Richmond traveling to Cornell with the same idea. Villanova invades the South Carolina field at Columbia.

Other Eastern fields see Glenn Scobey (Pop) Warner taking his Temple Owls to Pittsburgh to meet the dangerous Tartans of Carnegie Tech and Columbia, New York University, the undefeated Red Ramblers of Colgate, Brown and Syracuse, among others, playing their first games of the year. Pittsburgh and West Virginia, old rivals, meet at Morgantown.

The conference meeting of Texas Christian Horned Frogs and Arkansas, features the Southwest program.

The main interest on the Coast, however, centers at Berkeley and Palo Alto, as the two mighty giant killers, St. Mary's and Canta Clara square off against California and Stanford respectively. Santa Clara walloped California 7-0 in the first game of the season and St. Marys defeated San Francisco U, by the same score in its inaugural.

Central Shuts Out Gonzaga With 28-0

Steele-Zaharias New Grapple Set

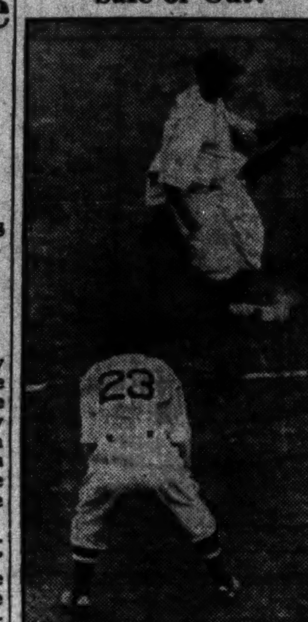

Having lost via disqualification on their last time out, when a near riot followed his belligerent handling of both Ray Steele and Referee Benny Bortnick, hard-boiled George Zaharias receives a return crack at "Crown Prince" Ray next Thursday night.

They headline Matchmaker Joe Turner's weekly five-star rassle card at the Washington Auditorium.

In that last meeting Steele was twice tossed from the ring, Bortnick being piled atop him during the scramble. Infuriated at this action, Bortnick immediately ruled Zaharias out, raising Steele's hand in token of victory.

Though 100 per cent for Steele, the fans were dissatisfied with this ending, and have demanded the new match to enable Ray to win conclusively.

Episcopal Sets Tech Down By 6-0

60-Yard Run on Pass in Last Five Minutes Brings Marker.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Oct. 6 (Spl.).—Episcopal High School defeated Tech High School here this afternoon, 6 to 0, on Hoxton Feld.

Episcopal scored with but 5 minutes to play in the final period, on a double lateral pass, Gordon receiving the ball from center, passed to Bryan, who flipped a short lateral to Woodruff, the latter racing 60 yards through a broken field for a touchdown.

Episcopal made nine first downs to McKinley's one in the first half.

Woodruff, Gooch, Gordon and Schley, a substitute, gained consistently, while Heatwole and Pisana were the main offensive threats for Tech.

Episcopal.	Position.	Tech.
Bryan	L. E.	Coiner

Babcock Raps Election Plan In Conciliation

Head of U. S. Employes Says Method Smacks of Company Union.

General election of employe members of the conciliation committees proposed in several Government departments will not be acceptable to the American Federation of Government Employes for two reasons, Claude E. Babcock, president of the union, said yesterday.

One is that election of representatives at a mass meeting smacks of "company union," and the meeting might be under control of officials calling it, he declared. The second is that the Government has recognized unions in its recovery program, and therefore should deal with unions in administering offices of its own workers.

Mr. Babcock gave his views on reports that one department studying the conciliation committee scheme was considering election of employe members by all workers.

Mass meetings may be necessary in Government units which do not have any union members, he said, but not in others. This method of selection might prevent "full, frank, and open nominations, and in many cases the supervisors' choice would be elected. In the second place, the national recovery procedure is built on recognition of American Federation of Labor groups, and in so far as the Government is an employer it should act as industry acts and acknowledge the A. F. of L. organization."

Commenting on conciliation committees, Mr. Babcock said:

"We have no illusion that they will meet the situation, but we believe they are better than nothing. We do not expect they will be a cure-all. There will be cases in which employes will not dare to present appeals. However, we'll never get what we need until we get a board of appeals independent of supervising officers."

Girl Is Victim In $20 Fraud

Confidence Man Orders Ice Cream and Works Change Game.

A confidence man who averted suspicion by hiding figuratively behind a clergyman's cloak, last night defrauded a North Capitol street ice cream parlor out of $20.

The robber ordered 14 quarts of ice cream delivered to St. Martin's Church clubhouse, North Capitol and T streets, ostensibly for a card party.

When a girl clerk delivered the ice cream the crook allayed suspicion by ringing the doorbell of the parish and presenting three quarts to the Rev. M. J. Riordon.

The stranger then persuaded the messenger to hand over $20 in change with the explanation that he would get a $20 bill from his wife in the "meeting" and return. He disappeared. Investigation by police disclosed there was no meeting.

The theft was reported by Mrs. Myrtle Sanders, manager of the ice cream parlor.

The same man obtained $15.50 from a messenger for a Fourteenth street food shop by having two gallons of olive oil sent to another fictitious card party at Sacred Heart Church, Sixteenth street and Park road. Police reported he was thwarted by suspicious merchants in several other similar attempts.

Auto Yields Clew In Brewery Holdup

But More Evidence Needed to Hold Suspects.

Should "expected developments" in Thursday's holdup and robbery of the Chris. Heurich Brewery fail to materialize today, police probably will release two suspects.

An automobile like that used by the bandits was found abandoned yesterday. It bore West Virginia license plates, listed to Lawrence Shaffer, of Ridgely, W. Va. Mr. Shaffer reported the tags stolen on October 2.

Employes of the brewery were forced to lie on the floor while four gunmen took $1,646.

C. U. Student's Car Kills Farm Hand

Accident Occurs Near Hampden, Conn.

John F. Dowling, jr., Catholic University student, was arrested at Hampden, Conn., last night after an automobile he was driving struck and killed a New Haven farm hand.

Dowling was en route to his home in Hartford to visit his parents, Dr. and Mrs. John F. Dowling. Accompanying him was James Keelty, of Baltimore, also a Catholic University student.

Kalisty Bielicki, 47, the victim, died en route to a hospital. Dowling, after telling police the man ran in front of his car, was released under $1,000 bond pending an inquest.

Pickpockets Get $143 At Griffith Stadium

Pickpockets at Griffith Stadium got $143 yesterday.

George Wyncoop, of 750 Rock Creek Church road northwest, and Edgar Greever, of Tugwell, Va., reported losses. Wyncoop said his pocket was picked of $53. Greever told police he missed $90 after being jostled in the crowd.

Traveler Loses $300.

A traveling bag containing clothes and $300 in cash was lost or stolen from Mrs. Ida Miles, Petersburg, Va., while she was on a shopping tour of Washington yesterday. She is staying at the tourist camp.

Named Postmaster at the South Pole

John Oliver LaGorce, who will go with the Byrd Expedition, yesterday was sworn in as postmaster of Little America while Postmaster General Farley looked on. Left to right—Joseph C. O'Mahoney, First Assistant Postmaster General; Farley, LaGorce and Vincent Burke, Deputy First Assistant Postmaster General, administering the oath.

Mail Officers Of Byrd Polar Party Sworn

LaGorce Will Manage Post-office; Faces Stack of 30,000 Letters.

The first postmaster of the first polar postoffice—Little America—was sworn in yesterday.

John Oliver LaGorce, vice president of the National Geographic Society, took the oath in the presence of Postmaster General Farley.

He will serve without remuneration as will his assistant, Leroy Clarke, another member of the expedition, also sworn yesterday.

The postoffice, LaGorce said, will be an "underground igloo just 8,810 miles south of Washington."

Already at Norfolk, Va., from which the new Byrd crew will sail October 14, 30,000 pieces of mail have been received for the Little America office.

LaGorce will go to Norfolk within a day or two to handle the mail until the sailing date.

Guild Convention Opens Here Today

Catholic Group to Meet at Carroll Hall.

The annual convention of the National Conference of Catholic Evidence Guilds will open today in Carroll Hall. Leo A. Codd, of the Washington Guild, will extend greetings and President James V. Hayes will respond.

John G. Bowen, national treasurer and president of the Washington Guild, and Thomas J. Diviney, national secretary, will report.

The convention will close tomorrow night with a banquet. Mass and communion will be held Sunday morning in St. Matthew's Church. Dr. Charles A. Hart, of Catholic University, will be the celebrant and will preach.

The purpose of the guild is to train laymen to discuss Catholic doctrines at public meetings.

Two Held in Search For Machine-Gun Car

Two men were held for investigation last night, after the police radio flashed a lookout for the occupants of a certain make of automobile with red striped wheels believed carrying two machine guns.

The car was seen near Ninth and H streets northwest. Police of the Eighth Precinct arrested two men in a car answering the description. No machine guns were found. Capt. B. W. Thompson, attached to headquarters, said he would hold the men for questioning.

First Lady to Speak On Chest Needs Today

Mrs. Roosevelt will speak on "Human Needs" today at a meeting of the executive board of the Women's Crusade unit, Washington Community Chest, in the White House.

Mrs. John Boyle, jr., vice chairman of the crusade, said she expected Mrs. Roosevelt to inspire the women to greater accomplishments in the coming Chest drive for funds.

Assault on Policewoman Nets $25 Fine, 25 Days

Benjamin Taylor, 46, 1110 Sixth street northwest, was sentenced to $25 fine or 25 days in jail when he pleaded guilty in Police Court yesterday to assaulting Policewoman Agnes Ferrell of the Women's Bureau.

He was also sentenced to $25 fine or 25 days in jail on each charge of soliciting alms and being drunk.

Bike Perils!

Auto Group Says Cyclists Must Obey Traffic Laws.

A warning that bicyclists, now rapidly increasing in number, must obey regular traffic regulations if increase in fatalities is to be avoided was sounded yesterday by the American Automobile Association.

At present, the association said, less than half the States legally place bicycles in the same category as automobiles.

Obeying stop signs, riding on the right side of the road in single file, and using one-way streets in the same manner as automobiles were prescribed as necessary to public safety.

What's a Tip?

Cafe Man Asks Gifts Be Listed as Pay by NRA.

When a waitress receives a tip is it a payment for service or a gratuity?

It's an old question, but is one the local NRA headquarters may have to answer in connection with the restaurant code.

One Washington restaurant owner apparently believes a tip is given in payment for service. He has proposed a minimum wage for waitresses of not less than $15 a week, including tips. In cases where tips do not total $15 for the week, he would require the management to make up the difference.

Definite Price Fixed on Used Autos by Code

Pact Signed by President Sets Trade-in Rules for Car Dealers.

From now on the old family automobile will have a definite price on its head when it rolls up to the dealer's to be traded in.

Provisions regulating trade-in allowance on used cars were retained in the auto dealers' code signed yesterday by the President.

The allowance on any car will be fixed by the average that the public is paying for similar used cars in the market area. Motorists will get that price minus 5, 10 or 15 per cent, depending on the car's age, for selling, handling and reconditioning.

The National Auto Dealers Association periodically will publish a list of average prices paid for used cars in the area.

Eighty per cent of the sales involving the highest prices will be used to compute an average. Motorists turning in a last year's or a current model will be allowed the average minus 5 per cent. On the preceding year's model, 10 per cent will be deducted and 15 per cent will be taken off on earlier models.

A committee elected by local dealers will administer the code for the District. It is effective immediately, except for prices on new cars, which are effective November 2.

Police Hunt Missing Girl.

Police yesterday were asked to search for Mary E. Stailey, 18, of 1422 Massachusetts avenue northwest, missing since Tuesday.

District Plans Moving Wards From Fairfax

Welfare Board, However Hopes School Ban Will Be Lifted.

Unless the Fairfax County school board relaxes its ban on the 50 District relief wards attending Fairfax schools, the District welfare board will have to find other homes.

Welfare officials expressed hope yesterday, however, that an agreement may be reached with the Fairfax board.

Paul L. Kirby, assistant welfare director, said no formal word has been received from Fairfax authorities regarding ban on District children. He said the District has no funds to pay tuition.

District wards are placed in other nearby Virginia and Maryland homes and are permitted to attend school without charge. The welfare board clothes the children and pays the foster parents $18 a month for each child between the age of 3 and 12 and $20 for children under 3 or over 12.

Rent Adjustment Referee Considered

Court May Ask Senate to Create Post in City.

Recommendation that the post of rent adjustment referee be created in Municipal Court may be incorporated in the Public Utilities Commission report to the Senate, it was learned yesterday.

James Ring, special investigator, is expected to present data showing there were 41,913 cases involving landlords and tenants in that court during the last fiscal year, as compared with 17,128 in 1921. Most of these involved suits for possession.

Ring questioned real estate agents on conditions in poorer sections in an effort to improve conditions in the low-rent bracket.

Series Ticket Stolen From Service Station

Lee Gaskell, manager of a gas station in front of Griffith Stadium, did not see the world series baseball game yesterday. Nor will Gaskell see the game today.

Thursday night someone broke into his filling station at 2045 Georgia avenue, and without touching another thing, took Gaskell's world series tickets.

Milk Dealers Will Confer On Marketing

Independents Plan Parley With Dairy Affiliates on Proposed Pact.

Independent milk distributors and officials of affiliates of the National Dairy Products Corporation will confer next week on the Washington marketing agreement proposed by the Maryland & Virginia Milk Producers Association.

Independents met yesterday in the offices of the Board of Trade, and decided to confer with the National Dairy affiliates before formulating a policy on the proposed agreement.

Earlier in the day Elwood H. Seal, special counsel to the Senate Milk Investigating Committee, laid before the Agricultural Adjustment Administration "abuses in the milk industry uncovered by Senate hearings."

Accompanied by W. B. Watson Snyder, of the antitrust division of the Department of Justice, Mr. Seal conferred with Dr. Frederick C. Howe, consumers counsel of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Mr. Seal gave Dr. Howe a detailed report of developments in his investigation, with particular reference to alleged monopolistic control of the local dairy industry.

His revelations will be used by Dr. Howe to correct abuses which may exist in milk marketing agreements adopted in many metropolitan areas under sanction of the Agricultural Adjustment Association.

Milk Tax Hearing Set.

Secretary Wallace yesterday called a hearing for October 16 to determine rates of a processing tax on milk and its products and competing products to provide funds to finance a comprehensive production-control program for the dairy industry, according to the Associated Press.

Wallace said he believes that if the tax on milk and its products, including butter and cheese, were based on the usual formula for determining processing tax rates, the levy would be so high it would retard consumption and result in greater surplus.

Army Doctor Ordered Here

Maj. Huddleston Assigned to George Washington University.

Maj. Jarrett M. Huddleston, Army Medical Corps, now on duty with the Organized Reserves in Indianapolis, has been ordered to duty with the medical unit of the R. O. T. C. at George Washington University, it was learned yesterday at the War Department.

He will relieve Lieut. Col. Thomas D. Woodson, November 1. Maj. Huddleston was born here in 1893 and served overseas during the war.

He was graduated from George Washington University in 1916; from the Army Medical School in 1922, and from the School of Aviation Medicine in 1923. He is married and will live here at 2204 Hall place northwest.

Woman, Stabbed In Theft, Improves

Suspect in Bakery Case Proves Alibi.

Mrs. Louise Zimmerman, stabbed in the throat during an attempt Thursday to rob her bakery shop, 1706 Seventeenth street northwest, was "slightly improved" last night.

The arrest and subsequent release of a colored suspect marked developments yesterday. On the theory Mrs. Zimmerman's assailant suffered an arm injury when struck by an employe of the shop, police picked up a man with a bandaged arm.

The suspect proved an alibi and was released.

Knights of Columbus To Hold Vesper Service

District Chapter of Knights of Columbus will hold the annual vesper service at the Church of the Holy Rosary, Third and F streets northwest, tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock.

The sermon will be preached by the Rev. John K. Cartwright, newly appointed pastor of the Church of the Immaculate Conception.

The Washington General Assembly Fourth Degree Knights will act as guards of honor. Sir knights, under leadership of Dr. George R. Ellis, faithful navigator, will attend in full uniform.

Death Unkind

Crippled Boy, Baseball Fan Wanted to See Game.

A faithful fan known by thousands of baseball enthusiasts has been thwarted in his ambition to see Washington play in the world series.

John Wolf, 18, who hadn't missed a regular season game at Griffith Stadium for five years, died Thursday. He was buried yesterday in Washington Hebrew Congregation Cemetery after services from his home, 2653 Woodley road northwest.

Though crippled since the age of 6, John was a student of baseball. Visiting the ball park in a wheel chair, he often chatted with Joe Cronin and other players.

John listened to the first two world series games over the radio.

Quick Thinking Captures Man

Abusive Language Arouses Suspicions of Operator.

A telephone operator was given credit yesterday for apprehending of an escaped inmate of St. Elizabeths Hospital.

Mrs. Earl R. Cook, chief operator at the general Accounting Office, traced a call on her switch board. She sent police to a telephone pay station at Eleventh and M streets northwest.

A Second Precinct radio car arrived to find the man still in a booth.. He said he was Ernest Hancock, 31. Investigation revealed he escaped from St. Elizabeths last Monday. A companion is still at large.

Mrs. Cook said her suspicions were aroused when the man became abusive over the telephone. He was calling an employe of the accounting office.

Vanishing of Boy Laid to Teasing

Lad Who Went 'Wild West' on River, Leaves Again.

Because his playmates at Brightwood School teased him about running away from home, George McGowan, 11, who several months ago spent a week living in "Wild West" fashion in a shack on the Potomac River while police scoured the country for him, was reported missing again yesterday.

His mother, Mrs. Mary McGowan, told police her son left for school from his home, 6607 Sixteenth street, Tuesday, and failed to return.

Double-Slaying Charges Denied

Court Plea Entered by Charles McAvoy.

Charles McAvoy, named in two indictments for alleged first degree murder, pleaded not guilty when arraigned in District Supreme Court yesterday.

He is charged with having shot and killed Frank Snow and Charles Neil in a brawl near Ninth street and New York avenue last July.

Snow died the day after the shooting, and Neil died a week later. McAvoy was shot and seriously wounded by a policeman, who captured him in the poolroom where the shooting occurred.

Police Sergeant Bankrupt.

Police Sergt. Alvin S. Bohrer yesterday filed a petition in District Supreme Court, asking that he be adjudged a voluntary bankrupt. He listed his assets of $225 and liabilities of $1,215.17. Justice F. D. Letts signed an order permitting the action.

Federal Funds For City Court Center Urged

Board Asks $4,900,000 Grant; Congestion Cited to Ickes.

Congestion in present quarters causes confusion, District Commissioners reported yesterday in urging Secretary Ickes grant $4,900,000 for construction of the Municipal Center courts unit. They said failure to appropriate public works funds soon might force the District to erect a less desirable courts building in another area.

Immediate action the Commissioners insisted, would afford unemployment relief in other sections because 75 per cent of the money would be used to buy material outside of Washington.

It was pointed out the site has been purchased and cleared and plans for inclusion of the courts building in the Municipal Center harmonize with the Federal building program in the vicinty of the Capitol.

A grant of $4,900,000, the Commissioners wrote, would be fair exchange for the present District Building, to be taken over by the Federal Government.

"The development of this project," the letter added, "at least for the first unit of the Municipal Center makes it essentially a Federal project and on such basis the District Commissioners solicit your favorable action."

City to Entertain Planning Experts

Visitors Will Inspect New Buildings Here.

Plans were concluded yesterday for reception of planning experts who will visit Washington Wednesday. Following adjournment of their Baltimore sessions, delegates of the American Civic Association and National Conference on City Planning will inspect building projects here.

Frederic A. Delano, president of the American Civic Association and chairman of the National Park and Planning Commission, will preside at a dinner Wednesday at the Cosmos Club. Among the speakers will be Robert D. Kohn, public works housing director.

Delegates at Thursday morning's session at Interior Building Auditorium will hear speeches by Robert Fechner on the Civilian Conservation Corps; John D. Coffman and Robert Y. Stuart on emergency construction in parks and forests, and Wilbur H. Simonson on public roads recovery program.

"Chest of Gold" Fraud Case Waits

Woman, Too Ill to Appear, Causes Delays.

Reports from the District Jail that Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Purdy was too ill to be taken to District Supreme Court yesterday to be arraigned, caused indefinite postponement of proceedings.

Mrs. Purdy, and her husband, Dr. Frank L. Purdy, who is also in jail, are under indictment for allegedly obtaining several thousand dollars from Mrs. Florence Means Kay on the pretense that they needed the money to defray the cost of shipping a chest of gold to this country from England.

Mrs. Purdy was ill when brought back from Detroit recently, carried on a stretcher. Jail officers report a heart ailment has confined her to the jail hospital since her incarceration.

Commissioners Order Widening of C Street

Widening of C street southwest to 56 feet from Twelfth to Fourteenth streets, was ordered by the District Commissioners yesterday. The contract was awarded to Corson & Gruman Co., Washington.

Contract for rerouting and paving Michigan avenue, from North Capitol street to Columbia road, was awarded to Highway Engineering & Construction Co., of Washington on a low bid of $77,706.50.

Police Seek D. C. Man Missing After Illness

Thomas L. Healy, 49, of 174 Church street northwest, was the object of a search by police last night after his wife, Mrs. Annie Healy, reported him missing from home since Wednesday.

Healy had been ill and was worried over financial troubles, his wife said.

Two Nabbed at Grocery.

Caught by police as they allegedly were attempting to break into a grocery at 3119 M street northwest early yesterday, two colored boys were charged at the Third Precinct station with attempted housebreaking.

Strike Perils I. C. C.-Labor Elevator Work

Contractor Will Cease Installation Unless Row Is Settled.

Installation of elevators in the I. C. C.-Labor Buildings will stop unless the jurisdictional dispute on that project is settled within a week, the Westinghouse Electric Elevator Co. announced yesterday.

All other work on the connected structure was shut down September 15 by James Stewart & Co., general contractors. The elevator firm, under separate contract with the Government, was not affected and has been continuing with its job.

Agreement between carpenters and ironworkers on installation of radiator inclosures was no nearer yesterday than when the carpenters struck more than a month ago in protest against the other union getting the work. The shutdown has resulted in a $120,000 pay roll loss to 1,000 workmen.

Meantime one subcontractor on five Federal buildings continued with an eight-hour single shift for ironworkers while other employers, forced to accept the four-hour double shift, threatened appeal to the courts.

The union capitulated to General Bronze Corporation when that company refused to continue work on the Gompers memorial on a two-shift basis. Following dedication of the statue today, it was predicted the union would attempt anew to enforce its demands.

Two Hurt When Auto Crashes Viaduct Pillar

Injured when their automobile crashed into a pillar beneath the viaduct at Third street and Florida avenue northwest, Clarence E. Smith, 30, 2124 P street northwest, and Leroy W. Parsley, 28, 715 Newton street northwest, were taken to Casualty Hospital yesterday.

Missing Boy Found "Bossing" Road Gang

Three-year-old Buddy Reich disappeared yesterday from his home, 1750 Harvard street northwest.

After searching the neighborhood for three hours, police located the boy "supervising" a road building gang.

D. C. Rulers to Cut Budget But Not Report.

District Commissioners submit with little protest, when several millions of dollars are lopped from their annual budgets, but they draw the line when the Budget Bureau suggests they consolidate all District annual reports in 10 printed pages.

Following an exhaustive study of municipal reports by the economy committee, the Commissioners yesterday informed Budget Director Douglas his proposal that the seven departmental reports, of nearly 500 pages, be reduced to a single volume is impractical.
